Strain Is Eased In Rural Areas

Nation-Wide Tribunals to Guard Against Unfair Tactics.

Moving to placate critics and simultaneously to strengthen the recovery program, President Roosevelt yesterday ordered a letup in the strain of NRA burdens on rural communities, brought an estimated 1,543,000 retailers under a master code which will revolutionize merchandising and ordered establishment of Nation-wide protective tribunals to keep merchants from hiking prices too high.

As approved, the retail code prohibits merchants from selling their wares at less than cost except in certain instances.

Clauses in the proposed code which would have required merchants to sell for not less than 10 per cent above cost and prohibit pharmacists from selling products at prices less than 21 per cent under those printed on the containers, were eliminated because of protests.

Farmers, consumer organizations, economists and the Department of Agriculture had fought these proposed provisions as conducive to price fixing.

Provisions of Code.

Under the code, merchants in communities of more than 2,500 will be required to maintain minimum wages and maximum hours, be prohibited from engaging in misleading advertising, inaccurately laying claims to their ability to undersell competitors, and must uphold a variety of trade practices under the policing of a code authority representative of the Government and business.

Local merchants in communities of 2,500 or less which are not in the trade territory of cities and which employ not more than five persons were exempted by executive order from the code and from the President's reemployment agreement.

The exemption applies also to other small town retail services, including barber shops, automobile service stations and the like, which may come under other codes; but it does not apply to chain stores. Thus the local merchant is being given assistance by the Government to enable him to compete better against the chain stores' capital and ability to purchase more cheaply.

The exemption, a price investigation and establishment of local compliance boards, brought forward in an executive order by the President, were explained by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson as steps taken by the administration to protect the farmer. But he defended the code.

400,000 Driven Out.

"In recent years and especially with the growth of the chain stores, a practice has grown up of selling one or two items at a loss to get people into the store," he added. "The little fellow can not afford this. The public is fooled because what it saves on one item it loses on another. In the last four years, 400,000 small retailers have been driven out of business and it is bitterly complained that this so-called loss leader was partly to blame. For these reasons the retail code provides that it is an unfair practice to sell any article for less than its invoice cost plus at least a portion of the wages paid to employes in the stores.

"This is frankly an experiment. A distinguished committee is to be appointed at once to watch closely the operation of this code and to make recommendations on February 1."

Under the code, which affects more persons than any other and which will become effective November 1, the local rural stores, which comprise more than 8 per cent of the Nation's merchants and which did a business estimated to total around $3,750,000,000 in 1930, will continue on their present basis. The remainder, which did approximately $49,000,000,000 business, will find themselves under great restrictions. Pharmacies are treated in a separate category.

The 11,000 retail establishments of the District of Columbia—minus groceries and the like—will be called on to pay their experienced employes at least $12 for a 40-hour week, $12.50 for a 44-hour week and $13 for a 48-hour week. That is the scale of minimum wages for cities of between 100,000 and 500,000 population, with $1 subtracted for locations in the Southern zone.

Minimum Wage Scale.

In Northern cities of more than 500,000 population minimum wages will range from $14 to $15; in towns of 25,000 to 100,000 from $12 to $13; in towns of 2,500 to 25,000, where a $10 minimum prevails, wages shall be increased above June 1 levels by at least 20 per cent, provided this action shall not raise individual salaries more than $11 a week.

In villages of less than 2,500, the chain stores alone will be required

Debuchi, Moved on Eve of Litvinoff Visit, Doubts Return.

On the eve of conversations between President Roosevelt and the Soviet emissary, Maxim Litvinoff, which may be fraught with interest for his country, Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi, of Japan, has been ordered to return to Tokyo immediately to report on Japanese-American relations.

The ambassador, who has been in Washington already a year longer than Japanese custom decrees for its envoys, said last night he would sail for home about the middle of November and that he did not expect to return.

For some time there has been a feeling in the State Department that the affable and popular Debuchi no longer was qualified to speak for his government, which now is dominated by the war party. In addition, it was understood the present Japanese leaders, influenced by the army group, felt their envoy had not been sufficiently aggressive in handling negotiations with Washington bearing on the Manchurian dispute.

Tokyo Wants Information.

At the Japanese Embassy it was pointed out that that country ordinarily does not leave its ambassadors in one post for more than four years. With the arrival of a new administration in Washington, it would have been natural for Japan to have made the change last fall. At that time, however, Ambassador Debuchi returned home to report on conditions here, and was sent back by the same war party leaders.

In diplomatic circles last night there was a tendency to minimize the significance of Debuchi's withdrawal. It was pointed out the Japanese government, in view of impending conversations between President Roosevelt and Litvinoff, naturally wants first-hand information as to what the President has in mind regarding possible recognition of Russia. Mr. Roosevelt's monetary

U. S. Orders Lamont Pay Back Taxes

Morgan's Partner Loses Appeal and Finds Sum Increased.

Thomas W. Lamont, banking partner of J. P. Morgan, will pay the Government $111,575 for a deficiency in his 1929 income tax.

The Board of Tax Appeals yesterday not only refused the financier's appeal from a deficiency assessed originally at $73,271.11, but granted the petition of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for a further assessment of $38,304.63.

It is believed the counter petition of the Bureau of Internal Revenue is the direct outcome of the special Senate investigation into the affairs of the J. P. Morgan & Co. partners. It was revealed at the time Morgan was testifying before the committee that none of the 20 Morgan partners had paid an income tax for 1931 and 1930 and that in 1930 the total taxes for all partners was only $48,000.

Check Attempted.

At that time the Bureau of Internal Revenue undertook to make a minute check of its income tax returns and the facts revealed before the Senate committee.

Lamont's original return for 1929 showed a taxable income of $6,199,556.70, with a total tax of $1,802,046.73. He filed a petition claiming deduction for losses in connection with the sale of 3,775 shares of Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, which the commissioner of Internal Revenue had disallowed. The total losses in this connection amounted to $265,110.22, of which Lamont conceded the disallowance of $175,570.20 losses on 2,500 shares, admitting he had repurchased these within 30 days. The balance, $89,540.53 losses claimed on the remainder of the shares, he claimed as a fair deduction.

Claims Deficiency.

This petition therefore claimed a deficiency of only $51,781.38 tax instead of the $73,271.11 computation by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

E. Barrett Prettyman, counsel for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, filed a counter petition setting forth that Lamont realized a profit of $246,393.20 on the sale of International Telephone & Telegraph Co. stock, which had not been mentioned in the original deficiency assessment.

In addition, Prettyman claimed, Lamont received dividends of $3,300 on his I. T. & T. stock during 1929. He asked that these two sums be added to the original taxable income, thus setting the new total tax to be paid at $111,575.74.

Premier Loses in Fight for Balanced Budget to Save Franc.

Hunt for New Leader Begun by LeBrun as Ministry Quits.

Paris, Oct. 24 (Tuesday) (AP). The French cabinet headed by Premier Daladier resigned at 3:55 a. m. today, following its defeat by a vote of lack of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies.

The chamber voted 329 to 241 against a compromise proposal submitted by Daladier in his fight to balance the budget, providing for wage cuts of government functionaries.

The ministers, headed by Daladier, presented their resignations directly to President Lebrun, who accepted them and thanked them personally for their services. The president asked that they continue at their posts temporarily.

New Premier Sought.

Lebrun will commence consultations later this morning with political leaders in an effort to select a new premier.

Premier Daladier went down to defeat fighting to the last for a balanced budget in order to save the franc. He immediately prepared his resignation.

The Chamber threw the ministry out, unmoved by Daladier's impassioned warning that failure to strike a budgetary balance would mean that inflation was inevitable "within five or six weeks."

Salary Cuts Refused.

The deputies refused Daladier's proposal to cut the salares of government functionaries. Members of the cabinet withdrew immediately from the chamber following the vote.

They assembled at once to prepare their resignation after holding office almost nine months—the average life of a French ministry.

The chamber session ended in a hubbub which was reflected on the streets of Paris, where the heaviest guards in many years kept order.

The vote came on a compromise amendment cutting in half the government's original proposal to slash functionaries' salaries despite Daladier's firm stand that his proposed salary cuts should be retained.

It had been hoped the government's last-minute acceptance of the compromise, which some deputies called "capitulation," would satisfy the Socialists. But at midnight Leon Blum, Socialist leader, refused the compromise, thereby drawing a terrific denunciation from Daladier.

Beaten by Socialists.

Pressure from the functionaries, whose salaries Daladier wanted to cut, caused the majority of Socialists to throw their weight against the ministry.

The overthrow of the ministry came when it failed to rally sufficient votes from the center to counterbalance the top-heavy Socialist ballot.

Among the men most prominently mentioned to succeed Daladier is Minister of the Marine Albert Sarraut, because he is a senator and thus detached from the chamber wrangling.

Camille Chautemps, who was premier in 1930, also was suggested, but his support of former Premier Edouard Herriot in the matter of paying the war debt to the United States last year was likely to prove a handicap, even though the debts are no longer an issue.

It was expected the next ministry would have much the same politi-

Stocks Soar, Dollar Falls With New U. S. Gold Policy

President Roosevelt yesterday ordered immediate Government purchases of new gold above the prevailing world price.

The French government fell last night after Premier Daladier failed in his fight to balance the budget, maintain the franc, and prevent inflation.

Reactions to the newly announced American monetary policy were pronounced throughout the world.

Stocks gained an average of 3.6 points on the New York Stock Exchange, with gold stocks leading the market. The curb closed higher with stocks at their day's peak at the close. Bonds were slightly lower.

Grain markets boomed, with wheat up 3⅞ to 4⅜ cents; corn, up 2½ to 3 cents, and oats up 2½ to 2⅞ cents. Cotton advanced $1.25 to $1.35 a bale. Sugar was up 7 to 9 points. Rubber gained 19 to 29 points. Live stock failed to follow the trend of other markets, with hogs, cattle and sheep steady to slightly lower.

Silver was up 49 to 70 points.

The dollar sold off sharply in all European markets.

The French franc closed at 5.59, as compared with Saturday's close of 5.51. In Paris, the new United States monetary policy was welcomed as meaning a more stable dollar.

The British pound sterling closed at 4.61½, up 9⅛ points over the previous close. British financiers expressed themselves as receiving the Roosevelt plan with satisfaction.

The German mark closed at 34.10, as compared with the previous close of 33.60. German newspapers felt President Roosevelt would not adopt an extreme course, but would act as necessity dictates.

By Elliott Thurston.

As a first step in his unprecedented monetary policy, President Roosevelt has directed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to begin immediately buying gold newly mined in the United States at a price above quotations in the Paris and London markets.

Exactly what this price will be is not yet determined, but it was explained upon administration authority that the President believes such transactions will serve to free the dollar somewhat from control of the London and Paris banks and European speculation.

This should be followed, it was set forth, by two effects: First, a cheapening of the dollar in terms of francs and pounds; and, secondly, an increase in the world price of gold, because the 20,000 to 30,000 ounces of gold which previously have been shipped out of this country weekly will now be retained in the United States.

Gold Rise Expected.

Therefore, it was added, with a lessened supply of gold available on the European market, the probabilities are that the price of gold will go up in Europe. Finally, it was explained that the President does not have to issue an Executive order to put the gold-buying policy into effect, and that the RFC will proceed with the buying at prices to be approved by the President and the Treasury.

This was the only clarification of the new program to issue from official sources after a day of many White House conferences in which Chairman Jesse Jones, of the RFC, Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson; Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration; Harvey Couch, a director of the RFC, and Henry Bruere participated.

Price Fixer in Doubt.

Nor is it clear as to which advisers are to aid in determining the prices at which gold will be bought, although Mr. Couch was mentioned as the one likely to be in charge of the RFC gold purchasing.

Despite considerable uncertainty among various Presidential advisers over the precise meaning of the new policy, the consensus is that Mr. Roosevelt intends to try out the variable gold dollar theory of such economists as Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale; Prof. George F. Warren, and Prof. Frank A. Pearson, both of Cornell, and Prof. William I. Myers, formerly of Cornell, now deputy governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

End Foreseen.

Several prominent administration officials, who have opposed the commodity dollar scheme as unworkable, predicted yesterday that the President would discard it after a period of experimentation to see whether, as its proponents appear to believe, it will raise commodity price levels more or less automatically by the expedient of arbitrarily fixing domestic gold prices in terms of dollars.

So far as was evident from yesterday's conferences, the intention is to have the R. F. C. buy gold at a price slightly above the world market and then to see what effect this action has before taking another step. There was some unofficial talk of having the the R. F. C. buy gold in the world market also if it be considered feasible in helping to drive down world gold prices.

How long this could be continued without foreign reprisal or measures of self-protection is a matter of much debate but no official conclusion. Some of the President's close advisers, nevertheless, pondered the portentious possibilities of driving France and the gold bloc to cover, picturing the RFC as a sort of superagency for manipulating world gold prices, buying to drive the price down, or selling to counter "raids" on the dollar. Likewise, there was much talk of the uses to which a large hoard of gold accumulated by the RFC could be put in backing new currency.

White House Silent.

If the President harbors any such purposes, it was not evident. The White House appeared gratified by the receipt of some 300 telegrams

Convict Held In Lindbergh Kidnap Hunt

Former Hopewell Man Is Seized in Boston; Bank Box Revealed.

Boston, Oct. 23 (AP).—Department of Justice agents, New York and New Jersey State police converged on Boston tonight to interrogate John Gorch, 37, under arrest in the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Gorch was arrested with a Vermont girl in a Back Bay garage last Saturday. Today he was arraigned in city court and held in bail of $10,000, charged with participation in a Philadelphia real estate swindle.

Police said they found a receipt for a safety vault in the Bankers' Trust Company, in New York, on Gorch's person and this information was given to New York police. The vault was to be searched for the notes used in the $50,000 ransom paid in the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Capt. John J. Lamb, of the New Jersey State police, said Gorch lived in Hopewell, N. J., and moved away about the time of the kidnaping.

Lamb said the suspect would be queried as to his activities while a resident of Hopewell and the reason for his departure.

Gorch had been questioned previously in the kinaping.

New York police said Gorch was discharged there in 1916 on a felonious assault charge and was sentenced in 1926 to Sing Sing Prison for two years and a half on a grand larceny charge. They said Gorch was listed as having used the aliases Stephen Woods, John Sallie and Steve Sidelunk.

Frank W. Allen, Department of Justice agent, said today that Gorch had not yet satisfied his department concerning his movements since the kidnaping. Five $100 bills and five $10 bills in the possession of Gorch were examined by Allen, who said the serial numbers of the smaller bills would be forwarded to Washington for checking.

When Gorch appeared for arraignment, Herbert E. Callahan, prominent Boston criminal lawyer, appeared in his defense and said he was acting under instructions from the law office of Alfred E. Smith, jr., in New York.

Chase Loan To Machado Told in Query

Bank's Confidential Notes on Cuba Read to Senators.

Confidential memoranda leading up to and following $80,000,000 in Chase National Bank loans to Cuba, disclosing a $30,000 personal loan to former President Machado, and undercover negotiations for public works financing, yesterday were revealed by the Senate Banking Committee.

Relations with the late Henry Catlin, who received $55,000 from the bank for legal advice over a five-year period, were described in this communication.

"He runs in and out of the palace every little while and is trying to get his own taxes reduced and would be delighted to play Lady Bountiful with the funds of the Chase Bank," the memorandum read in part, referring to Catlin.

Written in 1931.

Dated February 25, 1931, it was addressed from James Bruce, a vice president of the bank and son of a former senator, to Joseph Rovensky, another Chase vice president in New York.

This letter referred to the Machado personal loan. Discussing a conversation with Catlin, Bruce wrote:

"He told me, which I think is entirely true, that the president is desperately in need of the money for the government and that it was most important for us to put up $1,500,000.

"In fact, he had at least 10 very good reasons why we should do this. He stated among other things the $30,000, which the president borrowed from us in his private account, he loaned to the government."

Written After Loans.

Shepard Morgan, another Chase vice president, who passed most of the day on the witness stand, was quick to point out the Bruce letter was written long after his bank negotiated the loans.

He reiterated the position of the bank's officials that no "intermediaries" were used in effecting the

2 Banks Raided; Lose $52,000

Minnesota Robbers Hold Place 3 Hours Until Time Clock Opens.

Greencastle, Ind., Oct. 23 (AP).—Four men executed a daring robbery of the Central National Bank & Trust Co. shortly before the closing hour this afternoon and escaped with approximately $20,000 in cash and $50,000 worth of bonds.

Kenneth West, cashier, said only a small part of the bonds were negotiable and that the loss was covered by insurance.

State police were notified and nine men were sent here to aid in the search.

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 23 (AP).—Taking possession of the First National Bank for three hours, five bandits terrorized 14 employes and patrons, took $32,000 in cash, and escaped today without a shot being fired at them.

They came into town about daylight, and beginning with the janitor, overpowered all the bank force. Then they waited until the time lock opened the vault. They reached their automobile without an alarm being sounded and after a farewell blast of lead down the main street raced out of town.

Jury Views Scene Of Nudist Capers

Defense Attempts to Show Shrubbery Hid Camp.

Allegan, Mich., Oct. 23 (AP).—A jury of elderly, gray-haired men, mostly farmers, today began consideration in circuit court here of charges of indecent exposure against Fred T. Ring, proprietor of a nudist camp raided on Labor Day.

Their first official act was a lengthy inspection of the Sunshine Sports Club, 8 miles from here, where the prosecution contended nude persons played games within sight of residents.

Clare Hoffman, defense counsel, demanded the visit to the camp, saying he would show it was impossible for witnesses to have viewed the nudists because of shrubbery.

Woman Fires Clothing, Kills Self in Leap

Dose of Poison Precedes Nine-Story Dive From Hotel.

An attractive young woman, registered at a Baltimore hotel as "Miss Michael Ambrose, 2911 Connecticut avenue northwest," plunged nine stories to her death last night, after swallowing the contents of a bottle of poison, saturating her body with cleaning fluid and setting fire to her clothes.

Described as blonde and blue-eyed, the woman registered at the hotel early yesterday. She was apparently alone and brought few belongings.

Her plans had been made carefully, police found after breaking into her room. Two empty bottles of poison were on a table. A can of cleaning fluid was beside the bed. Near the can were matches.

A note found in the room stated her real name was Elise Capezio, of a Baltimore address. No reason for her act was given.

The Washington address was found to be a vacant lot. Residents of that section knew nothing of a "Miss Michael Ambrose." Baltimore police expressed a belief she formerly lived here, and knew the city.

Zeppelin on Way Here From Miami

Weather to Govern Route on Chicago Journey.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, German transatlantic dirigible, took off at 9:44 p. m. here tonight for Akron, Ohio, en route to A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

Heavy rain squalls delayed departure of the airship, which had been moored at the naval air station here since midmorning, when it arrived with 17 passengers from South America.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, said he planned to proceed to Akron via Charleston, Richmond and Washington if weather along the Atlantic seaboard continued favorable.

Turtle Buried Six Feet Since 1925 Found Alive

Oklahoma City, Oct. 23 (AP).—A large live turtle was uncovered today by workmen digging 6 feet beneath the cement floor of the main Zoo building at Lincoln Park.

The building was erected in 1925. Leo Blondin, Zoo superintendent, said there was no way the turtle could have got where he was since that time.

Police Bring Matin Back For Grilling

Accused in Warrant of Killing Usher, Despite Doubt of Story.

Isadore Matin, 23, who confessed again—after nearly three years—to the murder of Beulah Limerick, was brought to Washington last night from Philadelphia on a warrant charging him with the slaying of the 19-year-old theater usher.

Issuance of the warrant, Capt. Bernard W. Thompson said, was a mere formality to facilitate Matin's removal. Authorities are frankly skeptical of the truth of Matin's admissions, but are bringing him here for a further check of his story.

After a prolonged interrogation by Detective Sergts. George Darnell and John C. Dalglish, Matin failed to withdraw his story that he had killed the girl.

Pleads to Go Back.

"I want to go back with them," he said, "because I want to get this thing over."

Asked if he was convinced that Matin was telling the truth, Darnell replied, "I am convinced of nothing."

The warrant charging Matin with the crime was issued in Police Court yesterday by Judge Gus Schuldt.

"Matin gives enough exact detail of the crime to make it imperative that he be returned to Washington for further questioning," Darnell said.

Matin said he killed the girl because he was afraid she would interfere with his plans to marry a Philadelphia girl to whom he was engaged.

Tells of Covering Wound.

Authorities said Matin claimed he shot the girl, then covered the wound in her head with a piece of gauze, pulling her hair down over it.

Darnell was quoted as having said:

"Here is a man known to have been an acquaintance of the girl. He claimed to have committed the crime, tells where the girl was shot, gave the exact caliber of the weapon and knows how the wounds was covered up."

When Matin confessed to the crime in January, 1931, the police were unable to find any one who knew of his supposed acquaintance with the girl. Her relatives and friends did not know of him, and he was unmentioned in her diary.

Under persistent questioning by Darnell, on the occasion of his first confession, he said he admitted the crime to obtain publicity for a golf school he had started.

Lodgers Deny Story.

On that occasion The Post reporter talked with the proprietor of a rooming house at which Matin

Orville Harold, 55, Noted Tenor, Dies

Once With Metropolitan; Friend at Bedside.

Darien, Conn., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Orville Harold, for many years a tenor with the Metropolitan Opera company, died today at his home in Darien, a victim of cerebral hemorrhage.

Harold, 55 years old, leaves his wife and two children, Pattie Harold, of Hollywood and Paul Harold, of Muncie, Ind. The body is to be taken to Muncie for burial.

Kidnap Witness Called.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 23 (AP).—Geraldine Arnold, 12, of Memphis, who testified in several trials in connection with the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, was here today to confer with Department of Justice agents.

Four D. C. Youths Burned When Tar Pitch Explodes

A terrific explosion of a drum of tar pitch splattered the flaming fuel over four Central High School students who were attempting to extinguish a grass fire yesterday in a vacant lot at Sixteenth and Lamont streets northwest.

Two of the students were seriously burned in the blast, which shook the entire neighborhood.

Only the presence of another youth saved two of them from almost certain death. He is Julius Davis, jr., 19 years old, a resident of the Soldiers' Home, who tore the burning clothes from the terror-stricken youths and smothered the fire with a trench coat.

The injured are Bernard Welch, 16 years old, of 1403 Newton street northwest, serious burns on legs, arms and face; Daniel Leonard, 18 years old, of 1755 Euclid street northwest, burns on legs and arms; George Rowles, 16 years old, of 3221 Mount Pleasant street northwest, serious burns on face, arms and legs, and Edward Farhood, 17 years old, of 3252 Rock Creek Church road, burns on face.

Leonard is the son of J. D. Leonard, former treasurer and vice president of the Washington Savings Bank.

The high school students were in a nearby park when they saw the grass fire in the lot adjoining the rectory of the Sacred Heart Church. Two small boys, believed to have started the fire, were seen to run away.

The youths ran to the lot but failed to keep the flames from the oil drum, stored in the lot by a street construction company. Suddenly the terrific explosion came.

Welch and Rowles, terror-stricken, tried to beat out the flames. Davis, who had just left the Mount Pleasant Branch of the Public Library, tackled Welch first and tore off his clothes, then brought Rowles to the ground.

Wilson Judd, 22 years old, of 1868 Columbia road, was thrown 10 feet by the explosion but was not hurt. He took the injured to Garfield Hospital.

Police searched for the boys believed responsible for the fire.

Roosevelt's Son Calls On Duce and Pope

Rome, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—James Roosevelt, son of the President, and his wife were received today by Premier Benito Mussolini and Pope Pius XI, in separate audiences.

Mussolini told Roosevelt he admired his father's work and also his book, "Looking Forward." During thier audience with the Pope, the pontiff praised President Roosevelt's address at the Catholic Charities dinner in New York.

Drunkards Will Be Sterilized Under Germany's New Law

Berlin, Oct. 23 (AP).—Chronic drunkards face sterilization under a law "for the prevention of hereditary incurables" which will become effective January 1, 1934, it was learned today.

According to the Essener National Zietung, the law is applicable to heredity cases of feeble-mindedness, schizophrenie (psypathologic term for split personality), insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, blindness, deafness and dumbness and serious physical deformities.

The newspaper emphasized that the law will be compulsory in only such cases where the individual is completely irresponsible, but others can apply for sterilization if they choose.

"The law is an act of welfare, not of punishment," the Zeitung said.

Aged Widow Plunges Five Stories to Death

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Mrs. Keren Warner, 84, widow of a wealthy manufacturer, fell or leaped to her death today from a fifth-floor window of her apartment in East Fifty-seventh street. She was said by her daughter, Mrs. William Gallowhur, to have been ill for some time.

Farmers Stop Trucks, Dump Milk in Strike

Several Midwest Marts Feeling Effects of Growers' Strike.

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 23 (AP).—Reports of milk dumping and picketing marked the first direct thrust of the national farmers' strike at produce marketing today.

In Wisconsin, farm pickets spilled part of a load of milk en route to a condensery at Vesper and at Neilsville allowed only 800 pounds of milk to reach the latter town's condensery during the day.

Plans for peacefully picketing all highways leading to the important Sioux City market in northwestern Iowa, a militant farm sector, were announced by W. C. Daniel, president of the Woodbury County Farm Holiday Association, who received offers of support from the county groups in adjacent South Dakota and Nebraska counties. During the day pickets turned back many livestock trucks bound for Sioux City.

Iowa Receipts Normal.

Most Iowa markets reported milk, grain and poultry products received in average volume. An exception was Council Bluffs, where produce trucking dropped off sharply. Across the Mississippi River, at Omaha, Nebr., live stock trucking also was diminished, but the rail shipments brought the total receipts to normal.

Grain receipts at the Omaha exchange were curtailed. Dealers said elevator men were apparently withholding grain to "see what happens."

Southern and eastern Wisconsin market receipts were normal. Several small cheese factories in the Fox River Valley, near Appleton, and a number of creameries in four northwestern counties were closed.

Although 21 States are listed with membership in the National Farmers' Holiday Association, sponsor of the strike, only six have joined the movement. They are Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Governors to Meet.

Gov. Floyd Olson of Minnesota, and Gov. Clyde Herring of Iowa, exchanged telegrams concerning an immediate conference of farm State governors.

To Olson's suggestion that a conference be summoned, Herring replied he already had invited 15 governors to meet and had favorable answers from the chief executives of Texas, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Indiana. Gov. Murray of Oklahoma and Gov. Park of Missouri have declined, Gov. Herring said. The date for the meeting will be set as soon as the remaining executives have replied.

To Feed Strikers.

Minneapolis, Oct. 23 (AP).—John Bosch, Atwater, Minn., vice president of the National Farmers Holiday Association, said tonight the association had offered to supply food to striking laborers in various parts of the country.

"The chief obstacle," said Bosch, "to successful conclusions in previous strikes has been the inability of the strikers to secure sufficient food." Striking groups, he said, "no doubt will avail themselves of this opportunity."

Oklahomans to Strike.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 23 (AP).—A State-wide farmers' strike will be called within ten days, R. L. Rickerd, president of the Oklahoma Farmers Holiday Association, said tonight.

"This strike will be on everything," said Rickerd. "There will be no exceptions. It will cover cotton, wheat and other commodities that were left off the no-sale list last year."

Rickerd said the State association now had more than 25,000 members and 50,000 supporters who would "go to the limit."

Matin Returned For Slaying Quiz

lived in Philadelphia. Roomers said he had not left the house on the night of the murder.

In his latest story, he said he planned the crime for six weeks in order to deceive the roomers. He left at night for Washington and returned before other roomers awakened on five occasions, he said.

He said he left Philadelphia on a 7 o'clock train for Washington the night of the shooting and after the murder rode back to Philadelphia with an automobile salesman.

When Darnell asked Matin where the girl lived, he replied: "In a house on Sixth street."

Found Slain in Home.

The girl was found murdered on the morning of December 31, 1930, in her drab home at 18 Nineteenth street southeast, on the Anacostia flats.

Her death was first attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage but an embalmer found the bullet wound in her head. The wound had evidently been cleaned to avoid detection.

Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said there was no gauze found in the bullet hole by the embalmer and there was none at the time of the autopsy.

In an earlier story, allegedly told by Matin on Sunday, he said the bullet wound was in the temple. Actually, the bullet hole was in the back of the skull. In his latest story he said he shot her in the back of the head while kissing her.

Girl's Lips Rouged.

In the opinion of Acting Coroner MacDonald, her hair had been arranged and her lips rouged to make the body appear life-like. Matin allegedly admits that he applied the rouge and arranged her hair.

When he was first arrested police found a number of clippings telling of the murder, in which these facts were outlined.

Now, he says, he disposed of the gun while on a boat trip to Puerto Rico.

Discuss Gold Order With President

Text of President's Order

Roosevelt Exempts Firms Employing Not More Than Five Persons in Towns of Less Than 2,500 From Reemployment Agreement.

The text of President Roosevelt's Executive order exempting from the President's reemployment agreement "employers . . . who do not employ more than five persons and who are located in towns of less than 2,500 population," follows:

In order to effectuate the policy of title I of the national industrial recovery act, approved June 16, 1933, and to provide for equitable enforcement of agreements heretofore made with the President and codes approved by the President under said act, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States, pursuant to the authority vested in me by title I of said national industrial recovery act, hereby prescribe the following rules and regulations which shall have the effect of modifying any inconsistent provisions of any order, approval rule of regulation heretofore issued under title I of said act.

Defines Exemption.

The provisions of the President's reemployment agreement, issued July 27, 1933, shall not be held to apply to employers engaged only locally in retail trade or in local service industries (and not in a business in or affecting interstate commerce) who do not employ more than five persons and who are located in towns of less than 2,500 population (according to the 1930 Federal census) which are not in the immediate trade area of a city of larger population, except so far as such employers who have signed the President's reemployment agreement desire to continue to comply with the terms of said agreement after the date of this order; and this release of such employers who have heretofore signed the President's reemployment agreement shall be further extended so as to release to the same extent all such employers of obligations not voluntarily assumed under the provisions of a code of fair competition approved by the President.

This exemption is intended to relieve small enterprises in small towns from fixed obligations which might impose exceptional hardship, but it is expected that all such enterprises will conform to the fullest extent possible with the requirements which would be otherwise obligatory upon them.

Orders Price Inquiry.

In view of general increases in prices which may or not be justified in specific instances by increased costs caused by compliance with the President's reemployment agreement, or with approved codes of fair competition, the Administrator for Industrial Recovery is hereby directed to cause to be conducted such investigations as may be necessary to determine the extent to which manufacturers and producers have increased prices following, or in anticipation of the approval of codes of fair competition, or after the signing of the President's reemployment agreement, and to set up adequate organizations for the handling of complaints against such price increases and of local complaints against retail price increases alleged to be contrary to the requirements of codes of fair competition, or the President's reemployment agreement, or in conflict with the policy of the National industrial recovery act.

Tokyo Calls Envoy Home for Data

plans, also, are bound to have their effect in Japan, whose currency is acutely sensitive to fluctuations elsewhere.

With the Japanese Diet due to meet early in January, the Japanese cabinet also has indicated a desire for a full report on American public opinion concerning naval disarmament and Pacific problems generally, the ambassador said last night. The question of Japanese silk exports, in the light of the Roosevelt administration's policy, also is a vexing one, and Ambassador Debuchi said he felt he would be able to make such reports better in person.

Will Leave Within Fortnight.

Those who were inclined to minimize the importance of the order withdrawing Debuchi also pointed out that Councilor Sotomatsu Kato, who had been regarded as highly successful in his duties at the Japanese Embassy here, recently was transferred to London.

Ambassador Debuchi, who said he would leave with his family inside a forenight, has had a longer term of duty in Washington than any of his predecessors as head of the Japanese Embassy. He presented his credentials to President Coolidge in October, 1928. Included in his 31 years of diplomatic service was his appearance here as a member of the Japanese delegation to the arms conference in 1921.

The departing envoy said last night he had no intimation that any other post would be offered him, nor any idea who might succeed him here.

Japan Worries Russia.

Moscow, Oct. 23 (AP).—The possibility that Moscow may seek some sort of understanding with Washington regarding Japan, if conversations between President Roosevelt and Foreign Commissar Litvinoff bring recognition, was seen in foreign circles here tonight.

Although official sources continued a close-lipped silence, well-informed persons expressed the belief that Russia is almost certain to attempt to obtain active American cooperation in the Soviet's efforts to keep peace.

Observers said they would not be surprised if this subject were one of the main questions discussed in Washington.

Senator Bailey, Veteran Dry, Favors Repeal

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—United States Senator Josiah W. Bailey, leader of the successful prohibition fight in North Carolina 30 years ago, announced tonight he will vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in the State repeal election of November 7.

London, Oct. 23 (AP).—A verdict of suicide was recorded today in the inquest into the death of an American, Severn Teackle Haviland, 36, of Minneapolis, who was found gassed in his London apartment Wednesday.

Green Charges Hidden Scheme To Wreck NRA

Labor Must See Recovery Efforts Do Not Fail, Says President.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said today that hidden efforts have been made to scuttle the NRA.

"I regret," he said, "to observe failure of influential groups and individuals to give this recovery effort support. I believe undercover efforts have been put forth to defeat this act.

"We cannot permit it to be sabotaged. We cannot permit it to be torpedoed. It must succeed and labor must see that it shall not fail."

He was addressing the convention of the Cloth, Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union.

"I believe the NRA means a new day for workers. I believe it means a new day and a better life for the masses," he said.

The NRA, he said, is the Government's answer to the "four-year failure of industrial management to solve the problem on unemployment."

He said he came to New York to address what he hoped would be a united meeting of the Cloth, Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union and the United Hatters of America.

He expressed disappointment that differences had arisen between the two organizations and said he would devote the day in an effort to unite them.

Litvinoff's Rank To Govern Honors

First Lady to Entertain Him as an Envoy.

Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday told the Associated Press that Foreign Minister Litvinoff of Russia would be entertained "exactly as any other envoy would be entertained."

Since he is not a prime minister, she said, he will not stay at the White House. However, all the courtesies due to his rank in his own country will be extended to him and to his wife, if she decides to accompany him.

There had been some discussion concerning what courtesies would be advanced because of the fact Russia as yet is not recognized by the United States.

Retail Code Eases Rural NRA Burden to boost salaries 20 per cent over June 1 levels if the maximum raise does not increase pay more than $10 a week.

It will be permissable to employ apprentices and juniors—those under 18 years of age or with less than six months' experience—for $1 a week under the normal scale, though the number of this class of workers is to be limited in each establishment.

As to hours, each store shall be required to operate under one of three classifications. Class A shall remain open from 52 to 56 hours a week, and work employes not more than 40 hours, with an 8-hour-a-day maximum. Class B shall operate from 56 to 63 hours with a 44-hour week for employes who will work not more than 9 hours a day. Class C will remain open more than 63 hours and will be able to work employes 48 hours a week provided their day is no longer than 10 hours. "Staggering of hours will not be allowed. Employes will work straight through a given period, then quit."

Exceptions Explained.

The code provides prices may be lowered below cost to meet competition if the Retail Trade Association is notified, may be cut for clearance sales, to avoid losses on highly perishable goods, to get rid of imperfect stock and discontinued lines. Further exceptions will cover business liquidation, sales for charity, to public carriers, governmental departments, schools, clubs and hotels.

Besides preventing merchants from using inaccurate or misleading advertising, they are forbidden to bestow gifts to influence sales or to urge substitutes upon prospective purchasers in a manner which "disparages the ordered product."

After a 90-day period during which the Government hopes to bring prison industries under codes, it will be unfair practice for a merchant to purchase prison-made goods which competes with free labor, unless the prison, too, is under a code.

The retail code authority will consist of the recovery administrator or his deputy and three men appointed by the President, who will sit with a merchant-elected trade council in determining policies.

Judge Crater, Missing Since 1930, Reported Seen Recently

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—The New York Daily News says Joseph Force Crater, missing supreme court justice, is alive and well and was known to have visited his Fifth avenue apartment seven months ago. The jurist disappeared August 6, 1930.

Michael Fiaschetti, former captain of the Italian squad at police headquarters, now head of a private detective agency, was quoted as saying:

"We know that Judge Crater has been hiding near his boyhood home recently and I think in time we'll find him. I think we know, too, why he disappeared, but that's something I can't tell you right now. Neither can I tell you who hired me to make this search."

Since the visit to his New York apartment, when he arrived at 9 p. m. and remained until about 4 a. m., the newspaper says Justice Crater has been seen several times in the mountainous regions of eastern Pennsylvania, where he spent his boyhood.

Tragedy of 18 Pigs Is Avenged As 2 Bears Die

Suffolk, Va., Oct. 23 (Spl.).—The three little pigs and the big, bad wolf tale has been changed to the three bears of old and 18 young hogs, at least here in Suffolk.

Returning home from a squirrel hunt, J. A. Briggs, Nansemond County farmer, found the traditional three bears, Big, Middlesize and Little, in his hog pen. Their presence explained the tragedy in the lives of 18 young hogs, whose disappearance Briggs attributed to unknown prowlers.

The big black bear advanced on Briggs. Briggs retreated in good order, firing his squirrel gun. After repeated volleys he brought the big bear down. Then he killed the little bear. Middlesize escaped. Briggs intends to have the hides mounted.

National Guard Ready to Back Ban on Wheat

Governor of North Dakota to Use Army if Sheriffs Fail in Embargo.

Bismark, N. Dak., Oct. 23 (AP). North Dakota sheriffs tonight prepared formal orders to warehouses to refuse wheat for shipment out of the State in an effort to tighten Gov. William Langer's embargo.

The governor informed county officers "a man can haul his grain to an elevator," but directed that none be accepted for shipment.

Meanwhile, railroads continued to transport wheat out of the State as they have done since the embargo was ordered Thursday. They said Federal Interstate Commerce regulations compelled them to move any wheat offered them.

Sheriffs said many elevators had ceased receiving wheat for shipment and they expected no trouble. The governor has ordered the National Guard to assist in case sheriffs do not obtain obedience to his edict.

Duluth, Minn., grain traders ascribed limited wheat receipts there today to the embargo. At Minneapolis, however, traders said neither the embargo nor the general farm strike had produced any noticeable effect.

The North Dakota attorney general said the embargo, proclaimed under a State law giving such authority if prices fell below production costs, was legal.

The Federal Tariff Commission in Washington announced protests over rye importation, including that of Gov. Langer, had resulted in a hearing being ordered for November 23 to determine whether the tariff should be increased.

Veterans Given Month Respite

Roosevelt Order Continues "Presumptive" Pensions Until November 30.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt yesterday issued an order extending for a month the time in which the special review boards set up by the Veterans' Administration may complete their work of examining compensation cases.

The original order provided that the work should be finished by October 31 and that veterans in "presumptive" cases should receive 75 per cent of the amount they were getting on March 20 until their cases were disposed of.

Daladier Defeated In Vote of Deputies cal complexion as that of Daladier and would be more or less temporary in nature, until the domestic situation becomes clearer.

Herriot Out of Picture.

Herriot is out of the picture due to his illness as well as his attitude on debts, on which the chamber's attitude remains unchanged.

It is expected heavy pressure will be placed upon President Lebrun to attempt formation of a concentration government, but many doubted that the political situation is ripe enough to permit such a step.

The whole problem of participation by the Socialists in the cabinet is likely to arise again with a strong contingent of Socialists apparently ready to bolt the party and take cabient posts.

Informed circles expect no change in the French stand in favor of continuing on the gold standard, but the next government is likely to seek a balance of the budget by less drastic means than did Daladier or to balance it partly, claiming that a complete balance is not essential.

Breaks With Socialists.

Before his fall Daladier broke with the Socialists ending the left cartel of Socialists and Radical Socialists which has given a precarious support to cabinets for the last year and a half.

The Socialists also split within their own ranks by a vote of 55 to 45 on the government's last-minute compromise.

In his eleventh-hour appeal to stem the tide of defeat Daladier reiterated his plea for France to make sacrifices and balance its budget declaring:

"I am against inflation; I am against devalorization of the franc!"

He asserted the franc had been attacked in London and New York and "even in countries attached to the gold standard."

Railway Labor Gives Support To Farm Strike

Moral Backing Pledged in Reply to Appeal of Milo Reno.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—Organized railway labor tonight extended its moral support to the farm strike movement in its fight for higher returns on farm products.

Alexander F. Whitney, chairman of the Labor Executives Association, in a statement issued after a conference with Milo Reno, of Des Moines, head of the National Farmers Holiday Association, said his organization pledged its "sympathetic cooperation."

Whitney asserted the railroad brotherhoods, although conservative organizations, used the strike as a last resort to better conditions which they found intolerable and that he saw no objection to farmers using the same means.

"If the farmers are unable to get relief through farm credit associations or other relief agencies of the Government that would permit them to protect their homes, they certainly have the God-given right to strike as a last resort.

"As the railroad industry and other industries throughout the country can not prosper unless the purchasing power of the farmer is materially increased to a level at least of the cost of production," he added, farmers could depend on the "sympathetic cooperation" of railroad workers.

Earlier, Reno had outlined to Whitney and a committee of trainmen what his organization sought to do through the holiday movement.

Members of the committee at the conference were:

S. N. Berry, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, president of the Order of Railway Conductors; J. G. Luhrsen, president of the Train Dispatchers Association; James M. Burns, secretary-treasurer of the Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor, and A. E. Lyon, assistant to the president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen of America.

loans, and not one dollar paid in the way of commissions.

Earlier, Morgan, who said he made a "special study" of the Cuban loans, although he handled this phase of the bank's activities only since 1931, identified memoranda from other agents disclosing the late Ambassador Enoch H. Crowder's opposition to some of the proposed financing.

Protest Threatened.

One represented Gen. Crowder as threatening a protest to the State Department if a suggested $100,000,000 financing program was carried out. Crowder pointed to Cuba's $98,000,000 indebtedness at that time, alluded to the "deplorable" economic condition of the country and declared Cuban citizens already overtaxed, according to the memorandum.

He was represented as holding the proposed loan in violation of the Platt amendment to the Cuban constitution, which prohibited financing through other than "ordinary revenues."

Morgan pointed out the $100,000,000 loan never was consummated, but said he did not think the loan would have violated the Platt amendment.

The Crowder memoranda, dated March 27, 1926, concluded:

"It is clear that the bank should preserve cordial relations with the United States Ambassador, but while not telling him anything that would damage our interest in Cuba, to be careful not to make any statements which he might easily learn were not the facts."

Machado's Kin Bank's Aid.

During cross-examination, Senator Fletcher (Democrat), Florida, brought out that Jose Emilio Obregon y Blanco, a son-in-law of former President Machado, was co-manager of Chase National Bank's Havana branch while the major portion of the Chase Cuban loans were negotiated.

In addition to Morgan, Charles F. Batchelder and A. K. Geiger, also vice presidents of the Chase bank, were questioned briefly.

Morgan insisted Chase interests had never resorted to "intermediaries" in negotiating their loans. He reiterated this even after Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, quoted Batchelder as advising that Chase should "add another string to its bow" by directly "impressing its own individuality" on President Machado, in addition to reliance on "intermediaries."

Pecora read from a memorandum Geiger prepared discussing preparation of the statement and the advisability of "denying" payment of commissions by Chase interests. Geiger admitted the authorship and repeated that no commissions were paid.

Catlin Mistreated.

Morgan testified at length Catlin's advisory connection with the Chase Bank and the $55,000 in legal fees paid him.

In view of services rendered, Pecora asked why Bruce did not "trust" him when he wrote Rovensky in February, 1931.

Pecora quoted again from the Bruce letter:

"It is impossible to talk frankly with him," he wrote of Catlin, "as you know what you say will be repeated in the palace."

Morgan replied that Catlin "was not the same man" in 1931 that he was in 1926 when he first connected with Chase.

Early in the day Chairman Fletcher made public a letter from President Richard Whitney, of the New York Stock Exchange, offering to distribute to members the committee's stock market questionnaire with the recommendation that they fill it out.

Fletcher wrote Whitney the committee had decided to circulate the questionnaire unaided.

Crisis Likely to Jeopardize Currencies of All Nations on Gold Standard.

By Andre Vulliet.

The future of the franc and consequently that of all foreign currencies which, under the leadership of France, are still on the gold standard, may be jeopardized following overthrow of Daladier's government yesterday by the Chamber of Deputies.

It will be of interest in this country to follow developments of a political crisis which eventually may mean loss of the disparity that now exists between the dollar and the franc.

To a foreigner it may seem strange that the chamber should have voted the government down while the situation in Europe is so tense. But the French are used to such frequent changes in government as their foreign policy is seldom given due consideration in the political battles of the chamber.

The first government of M. Andre Tardieu similarly was overthrown on a minor question of internal policy, in 1930, in the middle of the London Naval Conference.

It may also seem strange that Daladier, whose firm stand on the future of the franc was approved unanimously by public opinion, was not supported by the deputies on the very measure he proposed to guard the country against inflation.

Not Ready For Sacrifice.

The French people, although decidedly against inflation, are not yet ready to undergo the sacrifices necessary to avoid it. They have not yet decided which is stronger—their personal interest, or their fear of inflation.

It is neither a question of sound or unsound money nor a battle between inflationists or anti-inflationists. The very word inflation makes every one shudder. It is a question of deciding on who is going to pay the expense of a sound money policy.

The Socialist-Radicals, the largest party in the chamber, followed Daladier and voted for his program which included both economies and new taxation with several concessions to the Socialists.

The Right and the opposition, with such prominent members as Andre Tardieu, P. E. Flandin and Paul Reynaud, stand for economies without new taxation.

President to Decide.

The president of the republic must now decide who is going to succeed Daladier. But none of the parties has a clear majority. A socialistic government, if approved in the Chamber, would be overthrown in the Senate, which feels, like M. Tardieu, that "the Socialists in the government means a franc worth 2 sous." A government of the Right alone could not obtain a favorable backing in the Chamber.

The only possible solution in the long run is a "concentration government," that is, a nonpartisan government, similar to the combination headed by Raymond Poincare in 1926. Such a combination is possible only under the leadership of a man whose integrity and personality are strong enough to curb all partisanship among the members of his cabinet.

Edouard Herriot, who is an effective advocate of such a combination, seems to be temporarily out of the question because of his recent illness. Deladier is held in high esteem both by the Chamber and the Senate. He might come back with a wider Cabinet including some members of the Right.

Experts Favor Senator.

Political experts think, however, a Senator would be a better choice to ensure the success of the combination. Perhaps the fact that M. Poincare was, and still is, a Senator accounts for that opinion.

The president of the Republic will begin his consultations today. If a "concentration Government" can be arrived at, either immediately or after a very short socialistic experiment, the franc will not be in real danger.

Its technical position, based on ample gold supplies and sound financial practice, is strong. It could resist any temporary strain. But if this situation should last too long, if the Government expenditures should remain at a high peak with receipts running far below, then the permanence of the budgetary deficit would lead to inflation. The question would then be: Will the franc go down to two cents again before France can find a new Poincare?

Gold Men See Boom in Edict By Roosevelt

New Life Stirs Western Fields; Double Price Is Anticipated.

San Francisco, Oct. 23 (AP).—Gold producers of the United States and its possessions, studying President Roosevelt's money policy as they gathered here to form a national organization, found themselves today in a position not greatly unlike that of Alladin contemplating his lamp.

From the pick-and-pan prospector and the heads of great quartz-mining operations came the opinion that the President's policy would mean a steadily increasing price for gold until it sells for double its old price of $20.67 a troy ounce.

Everything was being seen double—a 100 per cent increase eventually over the old price for gold. A 50 per cent devaluation of the dollar in terms of their favorite metal; a doubling of the potential value of the unrecovered gold under their feet, and greatly expanded operations, employment and explorations for the precious metal.

Sees Big Gain in Output.

"The increasing price probably will bring 25 per cent more gold out of California mines and streams this year than last," said George W. Starr, of Grass Valley, president of the Mining Association of California and head of the Empire mine, which under his management has wrung $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 in gold from the mother lode north of here.

Last year the production in this State was about 2,500,000 ounces, worth approximately $50,000,000 at the old price. A 25 per cent increase in quantity would give the California producers 2,285,000 ounces at prices ranging all the way from the traditional $20.67 to the potential $41.34—if the price eventually doubles—making the return somewhere between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000.

New Life Stirs Fields.

To Starr and to Kemp Vanee, secretary of the California organization, the promise of increasing prices means the rejuvenation of the mother lode and other gold bearing areas and the restoration of some of their pristine glitter.

"Big capital is coming into the gold fields again," said Vanee. "Already the number of men employed in the quartz mines of California has jumped 10 to 20 per cent. A great expansion of operations in the available mines is under way and many thousands of dollars will be spent and hundreds of men employed in exploration for new bearing veins."

375 Wire for Home Aid on President's Bid.

About 375 persons yesterday accepted President Roosevelt's invitation, contained in his radio speech, to telegraph directly to the Home Owners Loan Corporation for assistance if they were in immediate danger of losing their homes through foreclosure.

The messages, some of them night letters of 100 words or more, began pouring in early yesterday morning and most of the corporation staff was busy all day with them. Attention was given in every case where it was indicated a home was about to be lost.

Where time permitted the cases were referred by mail to State managers or regional directors of the corporation. In a few cases, where home owners indicated they might lose their property within the next 24 hours, State or regional managers were notified by telegraph.

Gold-Buying Order To Elevate Price

and messages, all but one or two of which commended the new departure in managed currency, it was said, and by the inflationary effect upon stock and commodity markets which rose at the news of indefinite deferment of stabilization and the Presidential pledge to lift prices to something approximating 1926 levels.

This inflationary effect was expected by the White House, as was the accompanying sagging of the dollar and of Government and other high-grade bonds.

The President's adoption of the new policy marks another setback for his orthodox advisers in the Treasury and another enlargement of the influence of Jesse Jones and the R. F. C., which would have to be perpetuated by Congress in any event now if it is to conduct the long-continued gold operations envisaged by Mr. Roosevelt in his radio announcement Sunday night. He explained that he was definitely embracing a managed currency and embarking upon a course of gold-manipulated price increases up to the approximate level of 1926, as measured by the commodity price index.

Several Years Needed.

This, he set forth, would take several years to accomplish, and meanwhile the stabilization for which his treasury advisers have begged would be out of the question. When the desired price level is reached, according to White House explanations, stabilization will be undertaken.

In the long interim, assuming the new monetary policy is pursued and produces the results predicted by its proponents, the price of gold will be steadily elevated, the value of the dollar steadily depreciated.

Congressional inflationists, as expected, greeted the new policy with general approval. Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, leader of the currency inflationists, saw in it a vindication of his ideas and was certain that impending meetings of his inflationist followers would end in acclaim instead of further criticism of the President.

Chairman Fletcher of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee said the new policy would be "most helpful" and that it "may be all that is needed."

"The main object," he said, "is to expand the currency and credit, restore property values and raise commodity prices.

"If the buying and selling of gold doesn't accomplish it, we will know how to deal with it to bring about the results the President has in mind."

That the President's new and unexpected move was meant to appease the West, where farm leaders have been whipping up revolt, is freely conceded around the White House.

Thomas had arranged a session here today with some of the agrarian agitators for the purpose of renewing the inflation drive.

Sees Control Move.

"Now our conference will be for the main purpose of getting actively behind the President," Thomas said yesterday. He construed the President's policy as meaning "definitely that the President is for controlled inflation."

Pending the R. F. C.'s assumption of the new and far-reaching functions, the Treasury set yesterday's price for newly mined gold at $29.59, an increase of 58 cents since Saturday. The Treasury price is found by taking the quotation on the London or Paris market, whichever is higher, converting it into dollars and deducting handling charges.

The reserve banks have been buying at the Treasury figure and selling to licensed domestic manufacturers, but such amounts as remain have been sold abroad.

State Bank Aid Group Named By Roosevelt

U. S. Loans Will Be Made With View to Granting Deposit Guarantee.

President Roosevelt announced yesterday creation of a division of cooperation wtih State banks which will operate under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in furnishing Government capital to such of the 8,600 nonmember banks as may need it to become eligible for Federal deposit guarantee on January 1.

In a letter to Chairman Jesse Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the President directed creation of the division, to be headed by Harvey Couch, of the R. F. C., and to consist of the following, in addition to Jones, who will be an exofficio member:

Eugene Black, governor of the Federal Reserve Board; Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson, Budget Director Lewis Douglas; Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation; Henry Bruere and Frank Walker.

Triumph for Treasury.

This represents a partial triumph for the Treasury in establishing its plan for fortifying nonmember banks to make them eligible for deposit guarantee. Previously Jones had taken under his exclusive command the plan for relief of closed bank depositors.

As a result, Mr. Bruere appeared to be sidetracked from the mission desired for him by the Treasury after the President induced him to leave his New York bank to come here. Now Mr. Bruere is replaced in the picture by the White House.

The President, in his letter and a statement, outlined his purpose to provide capital for nonmember banks, through purchase of their preferred stock by the R. F. C. Thus the Government intends to make virtually all banks now open eligible for deposit insurance and to avoid further closings.

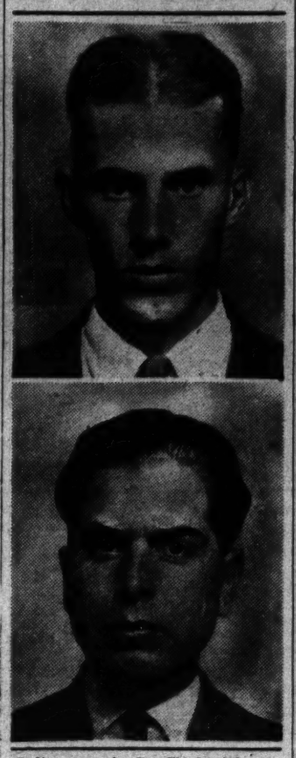
Outlines Hopes.

The President said that he wished to follow the same plan in regard to nonmember banks as had been followed in dealing with the question of paying off deposits in banks closed since January 1, 1933. He said that distribution to depositors in banks closed since January 1 had been started and that there are about 3,500 such banks. He said he hoped up to $1,000,000,000 would be distributed to depositors without delay.

"The thawing out of frozen deposits will put money in the hands of thousands who desperately need that money to live on," he said, "and it will restore working capital and credit to business men and farmers all over the country."

He declared that the drive to restore frozen deposits is one of the major steps in the recovery program. Banks, he said, are essential to recovery.

In Gun Battle



Policeman A. B. Clark (above) was wounded in a gun battle last night. Policeman R. D. Chenault (below) also was in the affray. Their assailant, identified as Fred Briggs, colored, 318 New York avenue northwest, was killed.

Slayer Suspect Will Be Jailed At Alexandria

Decision of Boston Court Returns Crawford for Trial in Virginia.

John Crawford, Negro, alleged slayer of Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Nina Buckner, of Middleburg, Va., will be brought from Boston to Alexandria Jail within the next few days.

Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher, of Leesburg, Va., said he would send for Crawford as soon as he received official notification of the action of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston yesterday releasing Crawford to Virginia authorities.

Galleher said Sheriff E. A. Adrian and one deputy will go to Boston for Crawford. He said no precautionary measures will be taken to avoid any possible demonstration except that Crawford will be jailed at Alexandria and not at Leesburg. Galleher said Crawford probably will be arraigned within a day or two and an early trial date set.

Officer Is Shot, Assailant Dies In Gun Battle

Man Who Refused Taxi Fare "Shoots It Out" in Apartment.

A policeman was shot and a colored man killed in a gun battle last night in a New York avenue apartment house, precipitated when the officer attempted to arrest the man for having pointed a gun at a taxicab driver in refusing to pay his fare.

The gun battle was staged at 318 New York avenue northwest. Policeman A. B. Clark, Second Precinct, was taken to Emergency Hospital with a bullet in his leg. The dead man was identified as Fred Briggs, of the New York avenue address.

About a dozen shots were fired in the apartment house affray between Briggs and two policemen.

Police received a call that there was trouble at the New York avenue apartment house and Clark, accompanied by Policeman R. D. Chenault, went there in a police car.

They met Ernest A. Fairfax, colored taxi driver, who said Briggs had been riding in his cab and refused to pay his fare. He said he pursued Briggs into the building. Fairfax declared when he failed to find Briggs he summoned police.

The policemen went into the building, opening doors in search of Briggs. As they opened a door on the third floor a shot blazed out of the dark. Both policemen shot in the direction of the flashes.

Clark was struck in the leg by the last shot fired by Briggs.

When the lights were turned on Briggs' body was found huddled behind a bed. His .45 caliber automatic lay on the floor. He had evidently been crouched behind the bed when the police opened the door.

The apartment building is known as the "Fairmont" and is occupied by colored families.

McKee Links Macy's Attack To President

Says G. O. P. Chief Backs LaGuardia to Hamper Roosevelt.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Joseph V. McKee, independent, today charged the Republican State chairman with offering to support him for the mayoralty last fall if he would refrain from taking an active part in Franklin D. Roosevelt's Presidential campaign.

McKee, in a press conference, declared State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy is supporting the Fusion ticket of Fiorello H. La Guardia this year because he was interested in "the defeat of Gov. Lehman and anything he can do to weaken and lower the prestige of President Roosevelt."

"And I know what I'm talking about when I say that," McKee added, "because last fall, when the question of my nomination was being considered, I received a direct message from Mr. Macy that he would support me as a candidate for mayor provided I took no active part in the campaign for the election of Roosevelt.

"What actuated Mr. Macy then actuates him now, and is the reason for the rally of Republican leaders to the support of a candidate they do not believe in."

Macy, when asked whether he had any comment to make on McKee's statement, said:

"I have no desire to enter into a controversy with one who has such apparently unlimited inclinations to distort the facts and discolor the truth."

Maj. LaGuardia, addressing the Downtown Athletic Club, acknowledged he had Republican support, but said he also had the backing of numerous other factions, including many Democrats.

Mayor John P. O'Brien warmed to his campaign in a speech before the City Club, declaring he never had taken orders from any "bosses" while in City Hall.

The revolt of Democratic district leaders in Brooklyn, who were threatening to abandon O'Brien for McKee, appeared definitely quelled when John H. McCooey emerged from a meeting with the smiling announcement that "everything we did was unanimous."

ENCOURAGING support is being received from Representatives to the proposed restoration of the Government pay cuts by the next session of Congress, E. Claude Babcock, of the American Federation of Government Employes, reports.

Letters and telegrams were received from 6 representatives yesterday in support of the proposal, bringing the total to 21 thus far. Most of the communications declared the restoration of the pay cuts is necessary in view of the rising prices now prevalent. And most of the representatives heard from now view that portion of the economy act providing for the salary cuts a mistake that should be rectified as quickly as possible.

Too Much Work.

OWING to increased work at the commission, employes of the Civil Service Commission are being required to do overtime.

In the first quarter of this fiscal year, ended September 30, the Commission received throughout its organization 463,692 communications of all kinds, as compared with 278,736 in the corresponding period of the last fiscal year.

A total of 2,733 examinations were announced from the Washington office during the last three months, as compared with 595 in the corresponding period last year. The increase was due to a number of causes. First, the number of presidential postmaster examinations were announced as 879, as against 133 in the first quarter year. Second, many registers of eligibles which are a number of years old are being replaced by new registers established from new examinations. Third, increased activities in a number of field branches caused by the national recovery program calling for new examinations.

The number of applications received in the first quarter of this fiscal year was 145,932, as compared with 17,238 in the corresponding period last year.

Court Upholds NRA in Suit Over Lost Job

Judge Declares Right to Hire Is Not Involved in Reduced Hours.

Knoxville, Tenn. Oct. 23 (AP).—A United States district judge today upheld the validity of the national recovery act. He ruled there was nothing in the law that operates upon the right of employers to engage any "necessary or even unnecessary labor."

The suit was brought by Ralph Starring, mill worker, against the Southern Silk Mills, Spring City, Tenn., and United States Attorney James B. Frazier, jr., sought to enjoin the mill from complying with the code for underwear and allied products and Frazier from prosecuting the mill for alleged violation of the code.

Starring charged he lost his job because the code limited hours in the mill.

"I do not think it was intended by Congress," Federal Judge George Taylor said, "in authorizing the limitation of hours of use of machines, to deprive dyers of their employment or right to contract with respect thereto.

"Neither the act nor the code expressly or necessarily required the defendant silk mills to discharge the complainant. The relationship of employer and employe was not the subject matter or made an end in itself nor does either necessarily prevent his being reemployed.

Three Youths Convicted On Robbery Charges

A Prince Georges County Circuit Court jury yesterday found three youths guilty of robbing Lawrence Lammers, State road employe, near Bowie, Md., last July 28.

The youths were James Devan, 21, David Johnson, colored, 19, and Norman Foote, 16, colored, all of Bowie. They were found guilty of robbery, assault with intent to rob, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

James Jenkins, Beltsville, Md., was found guilty of nonsupport of his two children, Jesse, 2, and Howard, 4.

Women Fight Plans to Stop Consumer Roll

Workers in Drive Here and Over Country Aroused by Rumored Move.

Indignant women NRA workers, threatened with disbandment, were preparing yesteday to protest any abandonment of the feminine campaign to help put the Blue Eagle across.

According to reports received here from State women chairmen, orders to terminate the women's campaign are about to be issued by Miss Mary E. Hughes, national head of the women's group. Her workers throughout the country were prepared to protest directly to President Roosevelt if the campaign is abandoned.

Miss Etta L. Taggart, lieutenant colonel of the local women's campaign, conferred with Thomas P. Littlepage, general of the District NRA. Both Miss Taggart and Mr. Littlepage said it was "ridiculous" for the women workers of Washington to disband.

"We have several important sections to canvass yet," Miss Taggart said. "Our work would be half done if we disbanded now. We have no intention of doing so."

Since the local NRA campaign started more than 5,000 Washington women have been distributing pledge cards. Thousands of these cards, signed, have been sent in and thousands are yet to be mailed, she added.

Miss Taggart also expressed concern yesterday over receipt of a letter from Miss Hughes asking for the names of all women who have taken part in the NRA drive here. Miss Hughes explained in the letter that she had received the request from an official at the White House, and presumed the names were to be include in an honor roll. Miss Taggart said it would be impossible to get the name of every Washington woman who has contributed part of her time to the campaign.

Tennessee Valley Body Picks Manier

Nashville Lawyer Elected Association Head.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 23 (AP). W. R. Manier jr., Nashville lawyer, was elevated from the vice presidency to the presidency of the Tennessee Valley Association today. He succeeds W. H. Mitchell, Florence, Ala.

T. M. Rogers, Florence, Ala., was elected vice president. R. B. Beal, Nashville, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

The officials were chosen by a board of directors composed of 16 incumbent directors and 8 new ones chosen earlier today.

Artist Faces Alimony Nonpayment Charge

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—McClelland Barclay, illustrator, was arrested today on charges of failing to pay his September alimony of $1,000 to his former wife, Nan Barclay, and neglected to post security of $34,000 to guarantee past and future payments under a Chicago divorce decree.

Affidavits submitted by Mrs. Barclay's counsel, said the artist had sublet his studio on Fifth avenue, and was wilfully absenting himself from the city to avoid payment.

Federal Engineer Held in Forgery

Alexander N. Bellony, 61, Falls Church, Va., assistant architectural engineer in the office of the superintendent of architecture in the Treasury Department, was arrested yesterday as a fugitive from Buffalo, N. Y.

According to the warrant, Bellony was indicted in 1928 by a Buffalo grand jury for forging a note for $1,000. Bellony has been in Washington five years, he told police, first serving in the War Department and later transferring to the Treasury.

Bellony said he was innocent of the charge and that he would willingly go with United States marshals to Buffalo to stand trial.

Police Demand Federal Laws In Crime War

Officials Urge Senators in Chicago Hearing to Ban Machine Gun.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—New legal weapons for a relentless war on crime by the Federal Government were demanded today as a Senate subcommittee on racketeering and crime began hearings in Chicago.

The demands followed testimony of cities ensnared in the nets of racketeering, of gangsters operating with impunity, of kidnapers operating unchecked, and of police and courts helpless for want of proper laws.

Police chiefs and prosecutors from a dozen States called upon the subcommittee to put through Congress Federal laws that would outlaw the machine gun, send third-offense felons to Federal prisons and strengthen prosecutors.

A Federal spokesman—Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan, assigned to fight racketeering—replied to police officials that all they need to stamp out crime is honest and efficient police departments, uninfluenced by politics.

"How could Al Capone," he asked, "operate in Chicago virtually unmolested for a dozen years? Can you tell me honestly that it was because there were no laws on which to convict him?"

Police officials united in calling for the machine gun to be limited to the Army, declaring it was a weapon of little value to police, but tremendously dangerous in the hands of criminals.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker of Chicago said his men never had occasion to fire a machine gun except in target practice. Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the committee, declared he believed manufacture of machine guns should be stopped.

Confessed Wife Slayer Eager for His Trial

"I'm anxious to get back and get it all over with," he told police.

Firms Reveal Officials' Pay

Resistance Is Slight to U. S. Quiz; Deadline Set for Tomorrow.

"Big business" of the Nation is showing little resistance to revealing salaries of officials, the Federal Trade Commission declared yesterday.

Corporations valued at upward of $1,000,000 are steadily returning questionnaires showing in detail how their officials and directors are compensated. Tomorrow is the deadline set by the commission, but indications are that there will be few late returns.

A few firms replied they were not listed on the stock exchange and were outside the questionnaire rule.

The results of the survey will be tabulated by commission experts and will be presented to the Senate shortly after January 1.

Drys Seek to Ban Pennsylvania Vote

Dr. Chase Pushes Court Fight in Election.

Harrisonburg, Pa., Oct. 23 (AP).—Coincident with the refusal of the United States Supreme Court to review a similar case, National dry leaders today attacked the Pennsylvania and National prohibition repeal machinery and sought to prevent the State from voting on the question November 7.

The case was argued in county court here as a preliminary to an ultimate appeal to the Nation's highest court, which today declined to review the same legal questions raised in a Missouri test case.

Prohibition leaders, headed by Dr. William Sheafe Chase, of the International Reform Federation, Washington, argued that the State act and the Federal legislation create a convention from which debate is barred and which is not representative of the people.

$144,913 Contracts Let at Army Posts

Bolling and Ft. Humphreys Get Improvements.

Contracts totaling $144,913.10 of public works funds have been awarded for projects in Army centers in and around Washington, it was announced yesterday at the War Department.

The sum of $42,489 was awarded for construction at the dispensary at Bolling Field. The total allotted for improvements there is $290,400. Of the $2,283,787 specified for work at Fort Humphreys, Va., two contracts for sewerage and engineer barracks totaling $93,400 were awarded.

At Langley Field $822.10 of the total sum of $1,786,100 was awarded for linoleum for officers' quarters. A contract for an addition to the radio station at Fort Myer, Va., was awarded at $8,402. The total amount allowed there is $345,201.

Winter Hits Juneau With Record Storm

Juneau, Alaska, Oct. 23 (AP).—With near zero temperatures and terrific gales, Juneau today experienced its worst weather in a decade.

Roofs were torn off buildings, chimneys were knocked down and plate glass windows broken. The temperature was 13 degrees above zero and water p[illegible] were frozen.

$100 Reward Offered in Post Carrier's Death

Parents of Boy, 13, Found Dead in Channel, Sure Son Was Slain.

Reward of $100 was offered yesterday for information leading to conviction of "the persons responsible for the death of Francis Long," 13-year-old Post carrier, whose body was found October 15 in the Washington Channel.

The money was posted by a friend of the boy's parents, who are convinced their son was slain. The boy disappeared from his home on October 10 and was not seen again until his body was discovered in the channel, near the spot where an overturned canoe had been found a few days earlier.

William Cogger, attorney for the boy's parents, says any information will be treated confidentially so far as legally permitted. His offices are in the Earle Building.

There were no marks of violence on the boy's body. Death was attributed to drowning. Homicide detectives, who investigated his death, have been unable to uncover any clews to indicate the boy was murdered.

Smith Assails "Bureaucracy"

Industry Hindered Greatly by Government Rule, Chicago Is Told.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—Former Gov. Al Smith of New York speaking here today, asserted the "cold and clammy hand of buresucracy" has done much to hinder progress in industry.

Speaking at ceremonies in his honor at the World's Fair, the former Democratic Presidential candidate said private industry with all its defects is "still vastly superior to Government planning and Government control of business and of human effort."

Praising the attainment of the business men, who conceived and built the world exposition, the New Yorker said:

"It may be and will be urged that private industry often labors for private gain. It may be that its ends sometimes are selfish. It may be that there are times when it needs the curb and the bit of Government regulation, but it is still vastly superior to Government planning and Government control of business and all human effort."

"Smith Day" originally was planned for Saturday but a drenching rain—"regular Democratic weather," the former governor commented—postponed the celebration until today.

Idea 'Astounding World' Jails New York Inventor

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (AP).—A man who identified himself as John Rivielle, 33, an inventor of New York, was held tonight on suspicion of attempting to extort from Heather Angel, English film actress, sufficient money to finance "an idea that will astound the entire world."

Rivielle, who told police he came to Los Angeles from New York a week ago, was taken into custody after he had asked authorities to help him reach Miss Angel so he might give her a letter.

Reorganized NRA Machine Ready to Act

(Associated Press.)

The reorganization program of NRA, including machinery for policing the operation of codes throughout the country, is expected to go into effect within 24 hours.

Together with local boards to hear price complaints, as provided by President Roosevelt's executive order yesterday, the NRA will create a regional network of enforcement agencies under direction of Commerce Department representatives.

They will receive complaints and seek adjustment locally, and where not successful will take the cases to Washington.

The Federal Trade Commission is expected to act only in cases of violations which defy adjustment.

As fast as it can be done, it is intended to substitute State representatives of NRA for the Department of Commerce men.

In Washington the huge staff will be divided under four lieutenants, whose job it will be to lift a big share of the routine from the shoulders of Hugh S. Johnson.

The four are Arthur D. Whiteside, in charge of service trades and textile manufacturing; Kenneth M. Simpson, with metals, mining, chemicals and related industries; Malcolm Muir, with "capital goods" industries or those producing equipment that goes into creation of other goods, and C. C. Williams, supervising unclassifiable manufactures. They will settle all issues not involving basic policy.

C. of C. Exhibit Attracts 4,000

Ninth Annual Industrial Exposition Opens at Auditorium.

With virtually every branch of Washington's industries represented, the Chamber of Commerce last night formally opened its ninth annual industrial exposition in the Washington Auditorium.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 visitors thronged the vast display hall.

Following selections by the Holy Comforter Boys Band, directed by Father Denges, the show was opened by Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the trade body, who paid tribute to the industrial leaders of the city for their efforts to make the 1933 exposition a success.

The first of a series of unusual musical programs—to be presented each night of the show—was offered by the Edna Bishop Daniel School of Singing. Artists included Raymond Chisholm, lyric tenor; Francis Deremer, basso, and Catherine Schofield Honse, with Jennie Glennan at the piano.

Tonight's musical offering will be by Mme. Marie Von Unschuld University of Music.

The show will continue throughout the week, with hours daily from 2:30 to 5, and 7 to 10:30 p. m. Alfred L. Stern is managing director.

Bride Plans District Rum Law; Weighs Alien and U. S. Ideas

Measure Will Be Handed King; Details Yet to Be Decided.

A composite liquor control plan for the District, embodying features of legislation abroad and in America, is being considered by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride for submission to Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Details have not been worked out and will not be made public until the plan has been presented to the committee chairman, Mr. Bride said.

District officials yesterday awaited receipt of an opinion from Attorney General Homer S. Cummings that the Volstead law would continue in effect in the District even after the thirty-sixth State votes repeal. The opinion is expected to be transmitted soon.

Mr. Bride is going forward with plans for the control of liquor buying and selling after Congress repeals the Volstead law. Opinions of various groups are being gathered and studied. These opinions probably will be aired by spokesmen at public hearings by congressional committees.

Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee, said she believed public hearings should be held on the question.

Senator King indicated hearings also woud be held by his committee.

Mr. Bride's plan is certain to contain provision against selling or giving of intoxicating liquors to minors. It will prescribe hours and conditions under which liquor may be sold, make public drunkenness an offense, fix license fees for sellers, set up a supervisory agency, and probably prohibit "bargain sales" or employment of other special inducements to increase sale of intoxicants. But details of none of these general provisions have been worked out.

Along with his own plan, the corporation counsel will transmit copies of law and regulations which are or have been used elsewhere, including the Swedish Bratt system, Canadian and Delaware systems and the plan proposed by the Retail Liquor Dealers Association.

Free Tickets Offered For City Boys Club

Any Washington boy may obtain a ticket for use of the Boys Club of Washington, 230 C street northwest, for one week by applying to Charles M. Fyfe, director, at the clubhouse.

"Our club is designed for boys from any part of the city," Mr. Fyfe said. "We have planned an elaborate sports program this winter with a special emphasis on basket ball."

Blue Ridge Chemist To Hear Dr. Browne

Sugar Authority to Tell of Joseph Priestly.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 23 (Spl.).—Dr. C. A. Browne, of Washington, D. C., will lecture about Joseph Priestly at the monthly meeting of the Blue Ridge section of the American Chemical Society here Saturday.

Dr. Browne is chief of chemical and technological research in the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, and is an authority on sugar.

The meeting is under auspices of Chi Gamma Theta, Washington and Lee's honorary chemical society.

Texas Oil Boom Town Christened "New Deal"

Palestine, Tex., Oct. 23 (AP).—The name "New Deal" has been given to an oil boom town which has sprung up with the advent of oil production in southwestern Anderson County.

The development is based upon the strike of the Texas Seaboard-Tidewater Long Lake gasser several weeks ago.

Speeches at Abingdon.

Abingdon, Va., Oct. 23 (Spl.).—Three of the four leading Republican candidates for office in Virginia will speak here tomorrow at 2 p. m. They are Maj. Henry A. Wise, Fred W. McWane and Clarence R. Ahalt.

Radio Waves and Ripples

VOLUME ONE, Number One of "Happy News"—"Official publication of the Gospel Spreading Association of the Church of God"—appeared here yesterday. Excerpts quickly culled from its eight four-column pages:

"Elder Lightfoot Michaux, most popular radio preacher on the air today and whose audiences are limited only by the States in the Union, is . . .

"I was invited recently by Elder Michaux to visit his home for evicted tenants . . .

"Buses and heavily-loaded cars come from everywhere . . . to hear the radio preacher, Elder Michaux . . .

"The WJSV radio station . . . is entitled to the good-will of the public . . . For instance, the children's hospital . . . Another instance . . . Wherever in Washington and other cities Elder Michaux spoke, throngs gathered to hear him. There was a wide and insistent clamor for him to come over the radio. WJSV stepped into the breach.

"In this day of the silly sisters and the sex saxophone . . . it is good to have the monotony of it broken by such cheering messages as those of Elder Michaux over the WJSV.

"People all over the country are hearing over the radio the Word of God, which is being preached without fear or favor by his manservant, Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux. . . .

"All of us are going to be preachers when we get to heaven, and many of us will say, 'I heard you when you were on earth.'"

Whitecaps.

WJSV—Elmer Everett Yess, another chapter in the life of a high-powered salesman, 8 p. m.; Nino Martini, tenor, 9:30 p. m.; Vincent Lopez and orchestra, midnight. WRC—Author Desmond Holdridge interviewed by William Lundell on the Amazon River country, 4:15 p. m.; Blackstone Plantation, 8 p. m.; Fire Chief, 9:30 p. m. WMAL—Central-Roosevelt High School football, 3:15 p. m.; Lowell Thomas, 6:45 p. m.; Smith Brothers, 8:45 p. m. WOL—Irving Chandler, tenor, audition contest winner, 6 p. m.; Blanche Ring, "When Old New York Was Young," A. B. S. premiere, 8:30 p. m.; Night on Riviera, 10:30 p. m.

Columbia's bosses in New York were said to have been mad when WJSV made known the company that's paying for the new Ethel Waters-George Beatty show, "The American Review," by including the word "oil" in its Sunday program schedule.

What the minds want to do is build up an audience for the show's talent before directly tying in the name of the advertiser. In that way they hope to overcome some of the commercial "plug" resistance that long has passed the growing stage among listeners.

Aside from the show's title, the closest approach to direct advertising we remember as "Americans march forward from Maine to California." Even the newspaper ads chiefly repeated printings of "Americans."

How long this process known as "teasing" will continue depends upon the audience gathering and holding qualities of the Waters-Beatty efforts.

What today is only another popular ballad tomorrow may rank with the classics. Thus does Countess Albani (above), account for inclusion of at least one hit tune in her N. B. C. solo programs. Sound effects and gags are making a radio living for "Ole" Olson and "Chic" Johnson, Columbia showmen. Olsen's on the right.

When WOL engineers went to the White House to set up for their first Presidential broadcast Sunday they brought along one of the A. B. S. station's standard microphones, a large one with call letters printed on it.

The news camera men kicked, pointed to three small, unlettered mikes on the President's desk, told the WOL people what they had not known—the President objects to his broadcasters using microphones lettered N. B. C., C. B. S., &c.

Result: WOL is in the market for a new microphone, a small one, without any letters on it.

Two former All-Americans, Michigan's Harry Newman and New York University's Ken Strong, now playing professional football with the New York Giants, are WOL Today in Sports broadcasters at 6:15 tonight.

Mrs. Roosevelt will radio an appeal for the Affiliated Summer Schools of New York, on a WMAL mike at 9:30 tonight. The broadcast will be for the special benefit of dinners to be held throughout the country to stimulate interest in summer schools for workers conducted by colleges.

The Washington dinner will be under the auspices of the workers' education committee at the Y. W. C. A., at which Mrs. Roosevelt will be the other honor guest.

Other speakers: Education Commissioner George Zook, director of Southern summer school for workers, Mrs. Louise Leonard McLaren; emergency education secretary, Louis R. Alderman, and Mrs. Eugene F. Duffield.

The First Lady has a way of slipping into the broadcasting studios unannounced and alone to see what's going on. She did that Sunday night during the Howe-Trumbull interview radioing, after knitting quietly in the White House while the President was at the microphone.

NBC has induced Lieut. Col. C. P. George, Fort Myer, to share the microphone with Walter Huston and possibly Frances Dee on WMAL Friday night at 6:20. Huston is to reenact a scene or two from "Rodney," the picture RKO is making at the Virginia Army post.

Announcer John Mayo has a new system for tabulating football plays he intends to try out at the Central-Roosevelt game today. Tech-Western Friday is next on the WMAL high school schedule.

WMAL is to be outfitted with facilities for relaying programs to the networks. The minds also have called in the painters to redecorate studios.

WJSV has given up the Bob Trout Wilkins interviews. Last night's performance was the last. Hereafter, the hillbilly music of McCravy brothers will go on the 6:45 p. m. period Mondays in addition to their Tuesday and Thursday broadcasts. The McCraveys are getting more fan mail than they expected.

New Dollar Policy.

In announcing his intention to establish a Government market for gold in the United States the President said that he was authorizing the R. F. C. to buy gold newly mined in the United States at prices to be determined from time to time after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the President. He describes the proposal as a policy to control the gold value of the dollar, not a passing expedient to offset a temporary fall in prices. "We are thus continuing," the President said, "to move toward a managed currency."

Although the details of the plan remain obscure, the inference is that the price of gold will advance by degrees as buying continues, thereby lowering the gold value of the dollar until the desired rise in the level of domestic prices has been attained. "When we have restored the price level," the President stated, "we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt-paying power during the succeeding generation."

Stabilization of the dollar is not contemplated until the desired price level is reached and it may be one, two or three years before permanent revaluation will be attempted. Meantime, the value of the dollar in terms of gold will continue to fluctuate, presumably in accordance with officially announced changes in the Government's buying price for newly mined gold.

The plan as outlined, together with the references made to the goal of a dollar of stable purchasing and debt-paying power, reveals many points of theoretical kinship with the proposal of advocates of the so-called commodity dollar, sometimes referred to invidiously as the "rubber" dollar.

Commodity dollar advocates believe that the purchasing power of the dollar can be changed at will by varying the number of grains of gold in the dollar. For example, some of the most naive of these monetary manipulators think that an advance of 100 per cent in the general price level could be secured by cutting in half the gold content of the dollar. Since two debased dollars would only contain as much gold as one former dollar of full weight, they conclude that, on the average, twice as many dollars would be required to buy a given amount of goods.

Devaluation of this crudely simplified type, which has been advocated for years by Prof. Fisher and his followers, is not feasible under existing conditions with gold payments suspended. However, the method of dollar devaluation that is to be followed belongs in the same category of manipulative expedients, although the President proposes to vary the gold value of the present irredeemable dollar by changing from time to time the number of these dollars offered in payment of a given number of grains of gold. By such means, he hopes to reduce the purchasing power of the dollar to any desired extent and thus raise the general price level.

Why should a dollar no longer payable in gold and already heavily depreciated in terms of gold be affected by advances in the buying price of a small amount of newly mined gold to such an extent as to raise domestic prices to some predetermined level? The proposal assumes that there is a close and calculable connection between the amount of gold in a dollar and the level of domestic prices, whereas the nexus is neither direct nor capable of exact determination. The domestic purchasing power of the dollar depends upon many factors which have little or nothing to do with the amount of gold which the dollar contains.

In modern industrial nations the gold standard performs an invaluable function as a means of preventing an excessive expansion of the credit currency which today does most of the money work of the world. As an effective regulator of international exchanges, too, the indispensability of gold has been proved beyond doubt. But since the advent of modern elastic credit and currency systems, the importance of gold in determining the internal purchasing power of the currency unit in general use is by no means as great or as direct as it is commonly supposed to be.

In any case, there is good reason to question whether governmental buying intended to raise the price of newly mined gold will result in lifting the domestic price level by some predetermined percentage. Certainly, the existing depreciation of the dollar in terms of gold has not been reflected in a commensurate rise in prices within the country. And incidentally the President now condemns the speculation which contributed so largely to the price rise of last July, although at that time the administration was pointing with pride to that rise as indicating the success of its policy of advancing prices by depreciating the exchange value of the dollar.

Assuming, however, that a substantial increase in prices might be brought about by manipulating the gold value of the paper dollar, what advantages are supposed to follow? Prices of farm products might rise in terms of debased dollars, but so would the prices of manufactures. Furthermore, an inflationary price advance obtained by keeping the dollar in a state of perpetual unrest can not bring permanent benefits to any class of producers. Currency instability destroys the confidence which is essential to the orderly conduct of all business, and prevents the revival of investment activity upon which the prosperity of the heavy industries depends.

The kind of price rise that brings sustained business improvement has to be based upon increasing demands for goods, expanding production, and growing employment. Fear and anxiety caused by uncertainty as to the fate of our monetary system never will put idle men to work, bring savings into active employment, or effect a better distribution of the national income.

We shall be indulging in a costly form of self-deception if we permit ourselves to be persuaded that monetary manipulation can be depended upon to bring about a recovery that awaits the completion of fundamental adjustments of our productive and distributive machinery to the changed requirements of the present day.

The Federal Lump Sum.

Fear that an increase in District tax rates may be necessary for the next fiscal year is expressed by the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association. If employes of the District government should be partly relieved of the 15 per cent salary cut on January 1, the prospective budget surplus for the fiscal year 1934 would be substantially reduced. Another slice may be taken from this prospective surplus for relief purposes unless additional funds are forthcoming from the Federal Relief Administration. If the surplus should be thus reduced, provision would have to be made for additional funds in 1935, or for reduction of the current budget estimates.

It is not yet certain that these additional expenses will be incurred by the District. Even if the 1934 surplus available for expenditure in 1935 should be reduced, additional revenue may be obtained without an increase in the real estate tax rate. Maj. Donovan, the District auditor, has pointed out that a considerable amount of unpaid taxes may be collected. Amendment of the present law to make collection of these levies easier will be urged at the coming session of Congress. Taxation of liquor also may become a source of local revenue.

More important than these contingencies is the Federal contribution to the District budget. The lump sum contribution was reduced to the extremely low figure of $5,700,000 for the current year. Congress justified this reduction of $2,075,000 on the ground that the budget had been cut by a proportionate amount. Since the budget was approved, however, it has been expanded by action of the District Commissioners and the director of the budget in releasing surplus funds for public improvements. The Federal contribution, of course, has remained at the same figure, and it is proposed to allow the District a similar lump sum in 1935, although the budget probably will be increased to take care of urgent needs.

The obligation of the Federal Government to assist in financing its National Capital is generally recognized. Yet the tendency is to push the Federal contribution down when the District budget is contracting and to maintain the low figure when the expenses of maintaining the District increase.

It is astonishing that this haphazard financial relationship between the District and the Government should be perpetuated year after year.

World Employment Conditions.

A decided improvement in employment conditions throughout the world became apparent at the beginning of the present year, according to a German survey which has recently appeared. Only a few countries continue to report current increases in numbers of unemployed, and available statistics, which are of course subject to a wide margin of error, indicate that the total number of idle workers in countries for which records are obtainable has decreased substantially since last January.

One of the significant facts brought out by the survey is that this observed improvement in employment conditions is not confined to regions in which vigorous measures have been taken to stimulate business activity. Countries in which there has been comparatively little intervention by the Government for this purpose also have shared in the benefits of the upswing. In commenting on this situation the Frankfurter Zeitung points out that it is scarcely possible to draw any hard and fast conclusions as to the effect of the policies followed by any particular country upon the state of the labor market.

The statistics, however, tend to confirm the views of those who believe that the year 1932 marked the transition from the depth of the world-wide depression to a period of gradual recovery, reflected in world-wide increases in industrial production, with accompanying increases in the demand for labor.

An Italian Puzzle.

One of the strangest matrimonial cases ever to confound a court came to a perplexing end last week in Italy. The celebrated plight of Mario Bruneri, grave robber, alias Professor Canella, cultured Italian scholar, or Professor Canella, tragic victim of amnesia wrongfully accused of being Mario Bruneri, confronted the Italian judiciary with an unprecedented problem.

In the latter days of the great war Professor Canella, an Italian officer, was reported missing and probably killed after a battle in Albania. By a strange mischance Professor Canella was not finger-printed when he entered the service. Out of this omission has arisen the greatest case of doubtful identity of the century.

In 1924 a man was found wandering in a dazed condition near a cemetery in Turin. He was placed in the Collengo Asylum and entered as an amnesia patient. Upon the publication of his picture in sympathetic Italian newspapers, the wife of Professor Canella identified the tragic figure of the insane asylum as her missing husband. Then began four years of happy married life between Madame Canella and her recovered spouse.

Dimly the inmate of Collengo recognized his old surroundings. Months of care brought with it a remarkable revival of memory, and the Collengo unfortunate succeeded in recalling numerous incidents from the past. He even wrote a book about his experiences, which showed a high degree of culture. Suddenly charges were preferred against him by an Italian woman who claimed that he was her husband, Mario Bruneri. Bruneri was a type-setter who several times had been in trouble with the police and who had disappeared while they were looking for him on a charge of having stolen a burial urn from the cemetery near which the unknown man had been found.

A long-drawn-out legal battle ensued. The man's finger-prints corresponded exactly with those of Mario Bruneri. But how explain the book written by the alleged Mario at the chateau of Madame Canella? Its literary and cultural excellence clearly was beyond the capacity of the uneducated Bruneri. Madame Canella tearfully contended that surely a wife could identify her husband; that since she had been married a number of years before the war it would have been impossible for Bruneri to have acquired the numerous mannerisms and characteristics of her missing husband.

As the mother of four children Madame Canella was a tragic figure at the trial. The judges obviously were deeply moved at her plight. But their verdict was a bomb-shell. Professor Canella was Mario Bruneri. Madame Canella appealed, only to be rebuffed. Again she appealed, this time to the highest court in Italy, but again failed to obtain a reversal of the decision. Her recovered husband was marched off to jail to serve a long term for grave rifling.

The queer case touched the heart of the Italian monarch, and the sentence was considerably reduced. Last week the term expired and a man officially recorded as Mario Bruneri sailed for Brazil with Madame Canella and called himself Professor Canella. Legally the Italian courts bound him to support Mrs. Bruneri as Mr. Bruneri. Legally they made him pay the costs incurred by the state in proving that he was not Professor Canella, and yet legally permitted him to go on as the husband of Madame Canella.

The records of audacious crime, of justice miscarried, of decisions that fail to decide tangles that can't be untangled, contain no more remarkable case.

Federal Taxes.

Whence comes the money to finance the far-flung activities that are being carried on by the Federal Government? This question assumes particular importance just now because of the mounting receipts and expenditures of the Treasury. It is predicted that a new peace-time record for the collection of internal revenue will be set this month. Taxpayers are making heavy contributions to the various emergency programs.

A considerable part of the money that is being spent by the Government is obtained by borrowing. This does not mean, of course, that the burden of taxation has been lightened. During the past three years old levies have been increased and numerous new sources of revenue have been tapped. Federal taxation has undergone a drastic evolution in a very brief period.

In the early days of the Republic customs receipts were the chief source of revenue. As recently as 1910 customs exceeded internal revenue by a considerable margin. In more recent years the Government has relied heavily upon the income tax. In the fiscal year 1931 income tax receipts were by far the largest item in the Government's revenue. But income taxes amount to only a little more than one-quarter of the internal revenue collected thus far this fiscal year. Miscellaneous taxes have become the most prolific source of revenue.

During the first quarter of this year the Treasury collected $53,617,188 through a levy on capital stock. Taxes on tobacco amounted to $110,582,905, gasoline taxes, $56,748,137, and the beer tax, $42,565,332.

In addition the public is paying taxes on corporation dividends, long-distance telephone and telegraph messages, safe deposit boxes, bank checks, admissions to theatres, soft drinks, candy, chewing gum, cameras, firearms, sporting goods, mechanical refrigerators, radios, automobiles, jewelry, tires, electrical energy, lubricating oil, playing cards and numerous other items. In the last three years Congress has built up an astonishing maze of taxation.

Taxes now constitute a part of the purchase price of so many items that it is extremely difficult for the average citizen to determine the actual burden that is placed upon his pocket book. Processing taxes for the benefit of the farmer recently have been added to the welter of levies imposed directly by Congress, and these are being passed on to the consuming public in the form of higher prices for food, clothing, etc. The Treasury is reaching into the pockets of virtually every citizen.

It is well that congressional committees are looking into this hodgepodge of legislation for the purpose of eliminating inequities and simplifying the whole tax system.

Probably it is called Indian summer because the weather man no sooner gives it to us than he takes it away again.

Wide Travels of a Spider—At Home Everywhere on Ford Windshield.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Spiders are home-loving creatures, but I recently studied one which traveled over 3,000 miles with me and apparently enjoyed it. On the morning of September 4, I noticed a web built across the corner of my Ford's windshield. It did not arouse my curiosity because motorists who leave their cars outside continually will notice that many spiders mistake their cars for solid structures that don't move.

The web blew away, but the next morning it was back again, so I went after Mr. Spider, but he retreated into a crack below the visor and refused to come out. I left him there and drove to Norfolk. The next morning my friend had rebuilt his web in identically the same position. Each day the web was blown away, due to the motion of the car. Each night the spider rebuilt it, caught his mess of flies, and each morning he retreated into his den, to withstand the shock and vibration which only a four-cylinder Henry can give.

I won't tire your readers naming all the places Mr. Spider and I went, but every time the web was destroyed, there was a new one there in the morning. I traveled to Springfield, Mass. Mr. Spider waxed fat. He seemed to know when I was through with the car for the day, and would come out merrily to spin his web. In my own circle of friends he became famous, and there were bets placed as to how long he would stay with me.

The parting came in October. Resting in the Berkshires of western Massachusetts, I realized my car needed cleaning and waxing, and set to work. I waxed the entire car and put a slippery coat on the windshield frame. That was the end of our friendship—Mr. Spider didn't find it a good anchorage for his silvery strands. Maybe I'm wrong. I was returning to Washington, and I preferred to stay in the beautiful Berkshires. Altogether, he had traveled with me for 34 days better than 3,000 miles.

Plea for Preservation of Trees Against Fires Resulting From Carelessness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Too many of the trees of our forests give way to the hungry teeth of giant saws and the humbler ax. They yield up their lives to destructive insects and fungi. They lie prostrate in the face of the wind, and crash under the lightning bolt.

But one enemy surpasses all others. Forest fires lit by careless, heedless people level more trees than all other causes. A match tossed into the darkness, a cigarette butt only half extinguished, and there lie in desolation stretches of land that were once a harp unto the Lord.

Is it not up to each one of us to be careful, and not drop lighted cigarette butts or matches?

If you would like some seeds from my silver, cut-leaf weeping maple tree, just send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and they are yours.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Reading Diaries

During the last 25 years there has been a great increase in the number of biographies. Outside of novels, it is probable that more "Lives" have been written than any other form of literature. Many of these biographies are interesting and many of them untrustworthy; for the author, even if he is not looking for sensational incidents, is likely to reveal more of himself than of his subject.

Hence, if one really wishes to know the facts of history or biography, it is best to read diaries. In reading private journals, we really live in the times when they were written. One of the greatest additions to our knowledge of English life in the eighteenth century is "The Diary of a Country Parson," edited by John Beresford. In these pages we see exactly how the Rev. James Woodforde lived and worked and thought. The fact that he was a quiet, obscure country clergyman with no ambition, makes his journal more trustworthy and a better picture of the social life of the times.

In June, 1932, I visited the hamlet where he preached for so many years and where he is buried. It is a few miles away from the city of Norwich, in England. Readers of his incomparable journal will be glad to see his lonely church at Weston, whose appearance has not changed.

If You Must Pay the Fiddler, Exercise Your Right to Call the Tune.

By Robert Quillen.

All bills are eventually paid. If one man doesn't pay them, another must.

It is now commonly understood that the people of America will pay the cost of the great war if Europe refuses to pay, but few people realize how often they are called upon to make up losses in business.

The customer knows he pays the freight, but there are other charges of which he isn't aware. He also pays the cost of wrecks and storms burglaries and fires, blunders and thefts.

Every expense and every loss is added to the cost of goods or service, and eventually comes out of the consumer's pocket.

Consider the matter of fire insurance.

Nearly all of us carry insurance in some amount, and all of us pay more than we should.

If we paid no more than enough to cover ordinary losses and give the insurance company a profit, no one could complain. But we are charged enough to pay for the company's carelessness.

Incendiary fires increased 50 per cent last year. That is, 50 per cent more people deliberately burned their property to get the insurance.

In my State that wouldn't be profitable. The agent examines the property and insures it for no more than three-fourths of its value. If he is too generous he loses his job, for the policy he writes is a contract that pays the full sum written on the dotted line. No appraisal is required.

But in other States a property owner can get any amount of insurance he is willing to pay for. "Spotters" have obtained $127,500 of insurance on property worth $3.96. And in one arson case a man went to court to collect $140,250 of insurance on $2,600 worth of property.

Why do the companies permit such things? Because they make profit enough to take the risk. They take the premium the customer is willing to pay, and let him collect if he can. If he does, the rest of us pay the bill.

In my town the rate is high. Every merchant in town carries insurance and not one has had a fire in 20 years. On their own showing they deserve a low rate, but they have had to pay for fires in other parts of the country—including the "set" ones.

Honest property owners deserve better treatment. The law should require insurance companies to determine the value of property before they insure it.

If you must replace the money your neighbor loses, you should have the right to mend the holes in his pockets.

Sure Signs of Recovery.
Portland Oregonian.

No better gauge of the rise and fall of business in the Pacific Northwest can be found than the amount of traffic to be hauled by the railroads in the next three months as compared with the same period of last year. When a committee from each industry informs the railroads that it will require a certain number of cars to haul its traffic within a given period, there is no room for overoptimism or padding. The trend was shown at the session of the Pacific Northwest advisory board.

On all classes of traffic combined an increase of 16 per cent in traffic is forecast. That alone would be gratifying, but far higher percentages are shown for lumber, machinery and boilers, flour and mill products, grain, chemicals and explosives. These increases are offset in some measure by decreases in cement, sand, gravel and rock, which may be attributed to delay in construction of the Government's public works.

Rubber Stamp Commissions.
Springfield Union.

Whatever the Supreme Court may decide as to the President's right to dismiss William E. Humphrey, a Hoover appointee to the Federal Trade Commission, the incident raises a serious question of propriety.

Carried to its logical conclusion, a Chief Executive may defy all claims of nonpartisanship involved in the appointment of a Federal Trade Commission, not more than three of whose five members were meant to belong to the same political party. He could enforce a "rubber stamp" commission wholly amenable to his will and compel its members to conform to his personal views on the conduct of business and industry. Under such an interpretation a President could virtually dictate policies of the trade commission, with the threat of removal for recalcitrants, if he were so inclined.

COLONEL MAE!

("Mae West made a colonel on the staff of Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky."—News item.)

When I was a girl I served my term
As a chorus girl to a producing firm;
I kicked my heels and I showed my legs
And I made a big sensation with the front row "eggs."
I made 'em cheer and I made 'em laugh,
And now I'm a member of the guv'nor's staff.

In dramas bad I was pinched so oft
They made my existence anything but soft;
They called the wagon every day for me,
Which all gave me plenty of publicity.
I went for the headlines in a great big way,
And now in Kentucky I am Colonel Mae.

In sexy plays I made such a name
That a notable girl I soon became;
I did my stuff in so many courts
That trying me led the indoor sports;
And those prosecutions did so much for me
That now I'm a colonel down in Ken-tuck-ee.

The courts they declared my plays obscene
And drove me out of town to keep the drama clean;
I shipped my belongings off to Hollywood
And found (as I'd suspected) I was very good.
To stardom I ascended so very soon
That now I'm a colonel under R. Laffoon.

The moving pictures found both swell and grand;
I gave 'em sex stuff by the cargo lot
And never spoke a line that wasn't good and hot;
I found Will Hays' rules an idle jest
And now in Kentucky I am Colonel West.

So show girls all, whoever you may be,
If you want to rise take a tip from me—
Be a bad, bad girl with a naughty leer
And you'll never have to struggle for a great career;
Play a bad, bad girl in a picture show

SNAILS PUT TO WORK.

Hard upon the story of new duties of late years laid upon the pearl-making oysters of Japan, comes a news item from Jamaica describing a delicate job hitherto accomplished by the tedious labor of human hands, but now trusted to the good offices of a multitude of snails.

The work assigned the snails, according to the Knoxville Journal, is that of keeping the trunks and limbs of trees in the citrous orchards free of the fungus moss, which injures them and retards their growth.

The snails, it seems, are experts in the matter of dining often and well on this the moss, but not injuring the leaves of the trees they thus keep clean, to the relief of the human workers, whose task they now perform.

WHITE BUFFALO BORN.

When the Department of Agriculture looked over the crop of 75 calves born to the herd of more than 400 buffalo that roam the national bison range in Montana this spring they found to their surprise a white or albino youngster, according to the Pathfinder.

An albino was a rare animal among buffalo even back in the days when millions of the animals roamed the plains. They were considered "big medicine" by the Indians, who would pay a good price for a white hide, in horses or other barter. These skins were much sought after by the white traders. White men have seen but a few of these rare animals.

And they will greet me one and all
At any hour I care to call.

There's Dickens with his humble crew
That has no end of joy to give
With all his people I can live
By moving just a foot or two.
Or should I choose to sail the sea,
Stevenson there will pilot me,
While jovial, lovable Mark Twain
Waits patiently my call again.

Sometimes a friend drops in and looks
My little sitting room around
And, in a manner most profound,
Remarks: "Your shelves are lined with books!"
"Not books," I say, "but people wise
And men to cling to or despise.
Vast peopled cities, calm and still,
For me to visit when I will."

Litvinoff Uses Rigid Formula On Recognition

U. S. Required to Meet Same Conditions as Other Powers.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—The procedure generally adhered to by the Soviets in recognition negotiations is known as the "Litvinoff formula."

It is: Aside from the act of recognition, an agreement on all points at issue must be made concurrent with, or subsequent to such an act.

The Soviets have maintained that satisfactory solutions to problems of claims, counterclaims and the propaganda of Communists can not be made before the establishment of orderly diplomatic relations.

There is no indication that this position will be abandoned in the discussions between the President and Litvinoff in Washington.

Three U. S. Objections.

The American policy of nonrecognition was based primarily on three things: Russia's repudiation of debts, the confiscation of property of United States nationals and the subversive propaganda of the Communist (third) International.

The Soviet Union repeatedly has signified a willingness to negotiate the pre-Bolshevik Russian obligation in bargaining for recognition, but on this condition: That the negotiations also take in the Soviet counterclaims resulting from the allied expeditions into Siberia and about Archangel.

The principal of the Russian public debt to the United States incurred before the Soviet regime is approximately $192,600,000. Of this, some $187,000,000 was in war-time advances to the provisional government—set up after the overthrow of the Romanoffs and subsequently overthrown by the Bolsheviks. Plus the interest, this debt today runs around $325,000,000.

$400,000,000 in Claims.

While no total of American private claims against Russia is yet available—although the State Department is now gathering such data—it has been placed at approximately $400,000,000. This includes the principal of $86,000,000 in imperialistic bonds, plus interest, and some $58,000,000 in known capital losses written off by American industries for confiscated property. Of the latter, the International Harvester Co. wrote off some $31,000,000 and the Singer Sewing Machine Co. $25,000,000.

The residue is computed to be unreported confiscation losses and property damage in the civil wars that followed founding of the Soviet Union.

The Soviet claims for damages are based upon the sending of troops into Russia and Siberia by the allies several months before the armistice. The rough aggregate of such claims has been put as $60,000,000,000.

Probable Procedure.

One authoritative New York observer of international affairs today advanced the following as a quite likely method of procedure in settling these questions:

De jure recognition would be extended by America and by the Soviets. This would be accompanied by a protocol signed by either the President or Secretary Hull announcing that both the Soviet and United States governments had agreed not to engage in internal activities looking toward the overthrow of either nation, and, further, that the whole question of claims and counter-claims had been placed in the hands of a mixed claims commission.

All of this would be contingent, however, on each nation admitting the validity of the other's claims. For the act of recognition, the President alone has authority.

Leader of Middies Gets Gift Sword

Cadet Commander Fahy Year's Honor Man.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23 (AP).—The sword presented annually by the Naval Academy class of 1879 to the midshipman commander of the regiment was given to Midshipman E. J. Fahy, of New York City, today at the regular dinner formation at the academy.

Beaudette Leaves Million to Family

Detroit Manufacturer's Will Is Probated.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (AP).—The will of Meados J. Beaudette, retired Detroit manufacturer, who died at his Beverly Hills home September 26, was admitted to probate today. Approximately $1,000,000 will be divided among members of his family.

The beneficiaries are Josephine Beaudette, widow; Alpha J. Beaudette, a son; Ann Taylor Beaudette, daughter-in-law, and Phillis Ann Beaudette, granddaughter.

Farmer Repents, Pays; Cheated on Untaxed Gas

Oklahoma City, Oct. 23 (AP).—Because a Kansas wheat farmer's conscience bothered him, the State of Oklahoma became $3 richer today. The farmer, who lives just across the State line, said in a letter accompanying the money that he used a tractor in cultivating wheat on a tract in Oklahoma.

Tractor gasoline is exempt from the State's recent tax, but he confessed that he put "tractor gas in my car several times, for which I am repenting and asking your pardon."

Ah, Wilderness of Economics!

By William Harlan Hale.

You can hold a civilization together by early ideals, religion, growth and conquests; but can you hold it together by monetary stabilization programs? By allotments, debentures, revaluations and compensated dollars?

Even to the most sympathetic, such things seem awesome, and through their very complexity, rather doubtful. And as for the more conservative, they see doom right around the corner; if nothing else will wreck the program then its terminology will. The whole thing is strange, unnatural, and not to be trusted.

Spain became prosperous by getting gold, even as our Government is to get gold now; but she got hers by stealing it from the Aztecs, while we are to get ours by buying it through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Ah, times aren't what they used to be!

It is not only the common man whose mental powers are completely routed by the amazing complexity of current changes in economics. Even our smartly educated and properly tailored young man down from Yale is in a bad state of confusion.

Why, it's not long ago that I was sitting up there myself and taking exact notes to the effect that "the currencies of all nations except India and China are firmly based on gold;" or that "free competition is the essence of the capitalist system;" or that "a tariff should be erected only to protect a country's infant industries;" or that "the more money in circulation, the lower the level of prices;" and there were many notes, oh, so many notes, about that invariable law of supply and demand.

They were such noble ideas, and so simply expressed! I learned them with loving care; but what good do they do me now? I don't hear them mentioned once a month, unless I happen to pick up the Wall Street Journal. It all seems very ominous, indeed.

The break-down of so many great old ideals seems to check with Spengler's vast thesis of the Decline of the West. It checks also with most of the Seventh Day Adventist literature which some anonymous friend obliges me with every week.

And then we heard so much about the logic and the sanctity of profits! The first shock came when I picked up Harpers Magazine to find an article by Henry Pratt Fairchild on "The Fallacy of Profits." He showed that profits just did ont exist—or that, if profits were actually taken, they were taken to the eventual ruin of the capitalist system. That was a very bad day for the mind of a student who failed to shine even in Elementary Economics, room 101, Sloane Hall.

And then, from theory they got into actual practice. They dared question the right of life insurance company presidents to get salaries of $200,000 a year; they frowned when hearing of Eugene Grace's bonus in 1929 of $1,600,000 when his Bethlehem Steel Co. had passed dividends on its common stock for the three years preceding. They dared—with almost suicidal temerity—to haul J. P. Morgan on the carpet, and, to cap the climax, place a midget on his lap.

They ventured to violate that great law of supply and demand and to ask why telephone, power and insurance rates remained skyhigh when the popular earning power had fallen into the depths.

Why, they even went so far as to try to discredit those sacred ideals of individualism, enterprise and self-reliance, by assailing bankers who floated watered stock issues, who engaged in gigantic market pools, or who formed affiliates to loot their own banking customers.

Naturally, all this has helped to get us hopelessly lost in the dark. We seem unable to find a way out of the wilderness. There are a few guides who whisper in our ears from in back, saying that all we should do is to look for those old guideposts, individualism and big profits and hard money and "no Government in business." But as, in our confusion and our doubt, some of us go back to look for these guideposts, alas! they can not find them.

And some of the rest—probably just irresponsible individuals—seem, on realizing that fact, to be indulging in a little quiet glee.

U. S. Officials Await Arrival Of Litvinoff

State Department Aids Plan for Talks on Recognition.

Precisely when Maxim Maximovitch Litvinoff intends to set foot on American soil was the outstanding question yesterday in the minds of State Department officials.

Indications were, however, he would appear before Secretary Hull leaves for South America, either November 5 or 11. Final preparations for forthcoming Soviet recognition conversations were delegated to J. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State.

Mr. Moore will be assisted by William C. Bullitt, assistant to the Secretary, and Robert Kelley, chief of the eastern European division of the State Department.

Most of the material which the United States will lay before the Soviet delegation is in shape and only needs to be collected from the State, Commerce and Agriculture Departments. All probably will be submitted to President Roosevelt this week for study.

Soviets Seek Credit.

Claims and counter-claims, the inheritance of 16 years of ignoring each other, will yield first place in the discussions to more positive consideration of trade possibilities. Half a billion dollars worth of orders to be placed in the United States is the offer the Russians are reporting to be contemplating. This is, of course, dependent on what the Soviets term "satisfactory credit arrangements," understood to mean not more than 50 per cent down, preferably less, and payments to extend five years.

Cotton, pork, cattle, machinery, both industrial and agricultural, and copper interest the Russians just now. These commodities fit into the needs of the second Five Year Plan.

He Knows Diplomacy.

The squat, gruff Russian, People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs Litvinoff, has sewed up more peace agreements than any other living diplomat. He has been twice mentioned in Moscow dispatches as likely to receive the Nobel Peace Prize. A disciple of Tchitcherin, the Soviet Union's first foreign commissar and one of the master diplomats, Litvinoff has a shrewdness all his own. It has been said that Litvinoff was the only celebrity at the London Economic Conference to go home with tangible plums.

Most spectacular of his triumphs was a secret agreement with Germany in 1922, while the powers were assembled at Genoa seeking to smooth the way for Russia's return to the family of nations. This agreement was announced as the Treaty of Rapallo on Easter Sunday, 1922, and destroyed the Genoa gathering. Rapallo was generally a trade agreement, but many Europeans thought there were a few clauses not published. This treaty was the basis of German eastern orientation until the rise of Hitler broke down what was left of a Kremlin-Wilhelmstrasse understanding.

Soviet Leaders Leave For Fete at Istanbul

Moscow, Oct. 23 (AP).—A Soviet good-will mission, headed by Klementi E. Voroshiloff, commissar of war and marine, and one other commissar, entrained late today for Istanbul to represent the Soviet Union in the celebration of the Turkish Republic's anniversary.

U. S. Will Fight To Keep Life In Arms Meet

Davis, Acting on Orders of Chief, May Accept Short Adjournment.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Geneva, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The United States will insist on continuation of the preliminary disarmament conference when the steering committee meets Wednesday, the United Press learned authoritatively today.

Norman H. Davis, chief United States delegate, will make another attempt to lead the European powers back to some compromise which may permit Germany to return to Geneva, it was indicated.

A spokesman for the American delegation said that Davis, acting on President Roosevelt's instructions, probably will accept a short adjournment, however, when the preliminary conference reconvenes here Thursday.

Davis personally is represented as feeling that it would be futile to resume the arms conference until after the German elections on November 12, when the Nazis will seek to sound public opinion on Chancellor Hitler's "strong policy" toward the former League of Nations.

However, he will fight a long adjournment, the American spokesman indicated.

Hull to Tour South America For Good Will

Cruise Planned While Roosevelt Discusses Soviet Deal.

While President Roosevelt is exploring the questions of Soviet recognition and trade with Litvinoff in Washington, Secretary of State Hull will be cruising around South America, cementing relations in a number of important Latin American capitals, preparatory to the meeting of the Pan-American Congress Conference in Montevideo on December 11, it was learned at the State Department yesterday.

The Secretary of State said he hoped to sail November 5 via the Panama Canal and the west coast ports of South America to Santiago, Chile, where he planned to entrain on the Trans-Andean to Buenos Aires. He would then cross to the Uruguayan capital to take charge of the American delegation to the conference.

Plans Are Definite.

It was made clear these plans depend on no unforeseen developments in foreign affairs arising in the interval.

Unofficially, it was understood trade and credit matters will be uppermost in the minds of the Americans at Montevideo. Those most closely concerned with the preparations indicate privately that an extension of the bilateral agreements now being fashioned with various South American countries into a comprehensive whole will be sought.

The fundamental idea appears to be a set-up comparable to the Ottawa agreements.

Five Likely to Go.

The American delegation, not yet formally announced, presumably will be five in number:

Secretary Hull, chief of the delegation; Jefferson Caffrey, Assistant Secretary of State and Ambassador-designate to Cuba; Butler Wright, American Minister to Uruguay; J. Reuben Clark, former Ambassador to Mexico, and Spruille Braden, copper magnate, of New York and Connecticut.

Descendant of Clinton Says Mate Maimed Her

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—Charging that her husband beat and kicked her so severely she was permanently injured, Mrs. Edith Clinton Drewes, great-granddaughter of De Witt Clinton, has brought suit for divorce from Henry W. Drewes. The couple was married at Detroit August 23, 1931.

A ballet dancer before her marriage, she alleged that she could no longer support herself in her profession because of her injuries. Her parents live in England. There is one child.

C. C. C. Men Will Get Leave to Vote Nov. 7

Army corps area commanders were directed yesterday by the War Department to grant two days' leave to men in the Civilian Conservation Corps who wish to vote at home in the November 7 elections, according to the Associated Press.

U. S. Treasury Issue Twice Oversubscribed

Acting Secretary Acheson announced yesterday that subscriptions totaling $168,678,000 had been received for the issue of 91-day Treasury bills, to be dated October 25, of which $80,034,000 was accepted, the Associated Press reports.

Average price of the bills to be issued is 99.597, with an average interest rate of .17 per cent on a discount basis.

British Premier Chides Germany

Lack of Neighborly Spirit Hit by MacDonald.

Crawley, Sussex, England, Oct. 23 (AP).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald declared tonight "this country can look Germany in the face without any blush or without any apology."

Speaking at a political meeting, the premier asserted "the nations of Europe must develop the spirit of neighborliness" and that "there can be no settlement in Europe until every European nation can sit around the same table on terms of equality with each other."

Germany, he said, must make it possible for other nations to cooperate with her without arousing fear or distrust.

The British government is not going to give up its attempts to obtain a disarmament convenion, he added.

Experts Hint Reich Firebug Is Scapegoat

Parliament Blaze Was Hard to Start, Chemists Testify.

Berlin, Oct. 23 (AP).—The opinion that Marinus van der Lubbe might have been a mere scapegoat for others in firing the German Reichstag Building last winter was expressed today by a chemical expert at the trial of Van Der Lubbe and four others.

The chemist, Dr. J. Schatz, pointed out in his testimony a possibility that some "self-combustible" chemical or liquid could have been used in setting the blaze.

He agreed with two other experts that the fire could not have been started merely by placing tinder, and that the heavy oak furniture and thick wall coverings in the Parliament house could not easily be ignited.

Van der Lubbe, a phlegmatic Dutch brick mason, has confessed that he set the fire, but has refused to say whether others helped him.

A dramatic incident developed when an expert testified "the incendiarist undoubtedly used large quantities of other igniting materials besides tinder." Another defendant, Georgi Dimitroff, demanded that the court ask Van der Lubbe for the last time to reveal his "accomplices."

"It is clear," declared the Bulgarian refugee who is his own counsel "that he could not have done it alone."

Roosevelt Names U. S. Attorney for Virginia

President Roosevelt yesterday appointed J. Saxton Daniel to be Federal attorney for the Southern District of Georgia, and Sterling Hutcheson, of Boydtown, for the Eastern District of Virginia, according to the Associated Press.

Dollfuss Near Open Break With Prince

Vienna, Oct. 23 (AP).—Widening differences between Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss and Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, a leading aid of the chancellor, were the subject tonight of an earnest discussion in political circles and it was generally expected they would soon part company.

Whether this would mean a complete break between Dollfuss and pro-Fascist Heimwehr led by the prince or only the removal of Starhemberg as the vice leader of the chancellor's patriotic front was not apparent.

A clear indication was given of an imminent showdown in the suppression of the text of a speech Prince Starhemberg gave yesterday in which he attacked the recent warning of a Czechoslovakian newspaper concerning what it described as extreme tendencies in Austria.

Newspapers, however, were permitted to attack Dollfuss violently. The general tenor of these attacks was that the chancellor must drop his recently appointed lieutenant or face a shipwreck.

Nazis, meanwhile, were blamed by police for an apparently incendiary fire which today threatened to burn down the hangars at Salzburg, where police planes for guarding the border are kept.

East Balks Cut In Rail Fares

Carriers Refuse to Join Movement to Slash Rates Dec. 1.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Plans for a Nation-wide reduction in the base railroad passenger rate of 3.6 cents a mile on December 1 were sidetracked today by the refusal of the Eastern carriers to join the movement.

The committee of Eastern presidents, headed by Frederick E. Williamson, New York Central head, which had the question of a fare cut under discussion for several weeks, announced "it has been determined to make no change in the basic rates at this time."

The committee pointed out that, under the passenger rates now in effect in Eastern territory, the average rate per passenger per mile for 1932 was less than 3 cents, and on some of the heavy passenger-carrying lines, as low as 2.66 cents.

Job Aid in Utilities.

Luray, Va., Oct. 23 (Spl.).—Mayor H. M. Strickler has set on foot a plan for Virginia towns and cities to finance civic improvements and give work to the unemployed out of revenues derived from municipal utilities.

Swastikas Bloom In Austrian Field!

Farmer Held for Planting His Grain That Way.

Vienna, Oct. 23 (AP).—Mother Nature went Nazi in the countryside near here today by displaying on a hillside overlooking a highway two great green swastikas.

Armed police rushed to the scene and arrested a farmer who had planted his winter rye in the shape of the Hitler emblem.

London Keeps Simon Away From Geneva

Cabinet Action Follows Germans' Charge He Caused Break.

London, Oct. 23 (AP).—The British cabinet decided today that Sir John Simon, the foreign secretary upon whose head German leaders heaped the immediate blame for their withdrawal from the disarmament conference, will not return to Geneva.

This decision was regarded as indicating British agreement in a plan to adjourn the arms parley temporarily, although it was indicated permanent adjournment would be opposed.

Sir John's youthful understudy, Capt. Anthony Eden, will leave for Geneva tomorrow to represent the government at sessions of the conference steering committee Wednesday and Thursday.

While the government opposes anything longer than a comparatively brief recess, the situation was regarded as delicate in view of the controversy between Sir John and the German foreign minister, Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, and Germany's action in linking its withdrawal to Sir John's last speech in Geneva.

For these reasons Great Britain is not ready to take any drastic steps to put new life into the discussions.

Such action is believed impracticable until after the German Reichstag election and plebiscite on foreign policy November 12 and after an easing of the parliamentary situation in France.

Alcatraz Plan Rushed Over 'Frisco Protests

Despite protests of citizens and civic groups of San Francisco, the Federal island prison of Alcatraz will be ready for recalcitrant Federal prisoners in 45 days, it was indicated at the Department of Justice yesterday.

Attorney General Cummings has received many letters and telegrams from San Francisco protesting against the use of the rocky island for a prison for the worst offenders in Federal penitentiaries. However, it was indicated the island would be used as planned.

Cuba Orders Shops to Stay Open in Strike

Labor Federation Balks at Supporting Grau San Martin.

Havana, Oct. 23 (AP).—The Cuban government tonight adopted forceful measures in an attempt to prevent general closing of commerce which strikers scheduled to start at midnight.

Apparently realizing that the strike movement is following the identical course of that which preceded former President Machado's fall, authorities sent police captains to every precinct where they ordered shopowners not to close their stores.

Previously strike committees from the National Syndicate of store clerks had visited the establishments asking them to close. Late tonight workers in cafes, saloons, barber shops and other union establishments lined up in the movement.

Following upon a manifesto by the National Syndicate assailing President Grau San Martin, the National Labor Federation published a statement that it was not supporting the government.

Police guarded tramcars and railroad properties in reinforced numbers. Increased patrols of soldiers covered the residential districts, presumably on guard against robbery.

Railway union leaders were suspending their decision regarding an island-wide strike pending a referendum of administrative employes.

King of Siam Flees, Bangkok Reports

Country Declared Near Financial Collapse.

London, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The Daily Mail today published a dispatch saying that an official communique had been issued at Bangkok confirming reports that the King and Queen of Siam had fled to Singora, near the Malayan frontier.

Despite a strict censorship at Bangkok, the report said the situation was most critical. Siam was declared facing financial collapse and possible dissolution of the monarchy.

Prince Bovaradej, leader of the rebellion against the present semi-Communistic government in Siam, was reported to have retired to the mountains northeast of Bangkok.

Crosbys Move Into Davidson Suburban Home

Edgemoor Estate Occupied by John F. Crosby for Brief Visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Crosby have taken possession of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson in Edgemoore, Md. Mr. and Mrs. Crosby are at present in New York for a brief visit.

The Davidson house has been leased for the past two years, Mr. and Mrs. R. Golden Donaldson having recently moved to their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel after spending the summer in their handsome suburban home.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson, who spent last winter in Southern Pines, N. C., returned to Washington recently from a North Cape cruise, and are again planning to go to Southern Pines for the season.

Here for Brief Visit

MRS. JULIUS C. HOLMES,
wife of the Third Secretary of the United States Legation in Bucharest, who left yesterday for New York after a brief stay in the Capital. Mrs. Holmes will join her mother, Mrs. Henry J. Allen, wife of former Senator Allen, in New York, and later will go to their home in Wichita, Kan., for several weeks before rejoining Mr. Holmes in Europe.

Visitors to England Tell of Tiny Princess

Washingtonians who have been passing the summer in England bring back interesting tales of the most admired member of the royal family, tiny Princess Elizabeth, who may some day be the second Elizabeth to sit on the throne of Great Britain.

Princess Elizabeth, it is said, shares her mother's delight in fun. The Duchess of York is a merry soul, and once told this story of her eldest born.

Wriggling into the arms of a visitor one day, little Elizabeth whispered:

"I have been so naughty. I'll tell you, but you must promise not to tell mother before I do."

The promise was made and the question asked, "What have you done, Elizabeth?"

She responded, "I have taken my new scissors and cut a sheet into strips."

"Oh," exclaimed the visitor, "what will your mother say?"

"Oh, Elizabeth!" predicted the tiny culprit.

Students Reverence Roosevelt Tree

There is a tree in the yard of Force Public School on Massachusetts avenue that the boys and girls who attend that educational institution regard with unusual respect and attention.

It was placed there in memory of Quentin Roosevelt, youngest son of the late President and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who was killed in France while in the American Air Service during the World War.

Quentin Roosevelt was a pupil of Force School while he was in the elementary grades.

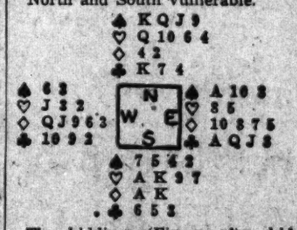
Making an Unmakable Contract.

When an expert player contracts for, shall we say, four-odd in a major suit, and finds upon looking at the Dummy, that there are four losing tricks in the hand, he does not automatically give up and mentally consider himself to be down one trick. He immediately looks for an opening by which, either through clever play on his own part or a mistake by the opponents, he can save this extra loser and thereby make the game.

An interesting hand played in the recent Individual Masters Tournament shows the making of a contract which could have been defeated had the Opening lead been different or the subsequent defense more alert.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figure after bid refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

South	North
1♡	1♠
2♠	3♡
Pass

1—This bid is a most unusual one, and is not particularly to be recommended. However, there was considerable reasoning behind it. South, from the bidding, was not certain as to whether his partner had four hearts or not. Furthermore, he was not sure as to the strength of North's spade suit. If he could possibly play the hand in hearts, he wished to do so, but he did not wish to play it in that suit with only seven trumps. His four-club bid forced North to make the decision whether the hand should be played at a game in hearts or spades. In addition, South felt that he did not particularly mind if he prevented the opponents from opening a club.

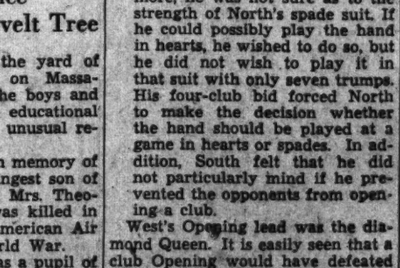
West's Opening lead was the diamond Queen. It is easily seen that a club Opening would have defeated the contract, as three club tricks would immediately be taken, followed by the Ace of spades. As it was, Declarer won the first trick with the King in his own hand, and saw that unless the Ace of clubs lay in the West hand he would go down one trick. However, he decided he would give himself some extra chance of fulfilling the contract through the cooperation—even if unwilling—of the opponents. Accordingly, he drew trumps, knocked out the opponents' Ace of spades, and played out all his good spades and diamonds, ending in Dummy. He now led a low club from Dummy, figuring that, no matter who took the trick, clubs would have to be returned, and even if West won the first round of clubs, he would still make the hand by going up with the King if West held the Ace. However, he knew that if East were forced to win the first round of clubs, no play could possibly defeat his contract, as a lead of any other suit by either opponent would give him a ruff and discard.

In the meantime, the East player had slipped on his defense. For no particular reason he had decided to signal his partner with the eight of clubs, and thus when a club was finally led from Dummy, he was forced to win the trick with the Knave. Of course, from this point on he took but one more trick, as the Ace-of-clubs lead would set up the King in Dummy, and a diamond lead would give Declarer a valuable ruff and discard. Proper defense by East, if he felt impelled to discard a club at all, would be to throw the Knave, foreseeing the impending end play.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If South bids out of turn on the hand below and West has bid up to five clubs, what should South now bid, and how should he plan the play of the hand against a club Opening?

West, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Formality Banished by Younger Social Set at Season's Jolliest Event.

Now, as dainty fingers are regretfully turning the pages of diaries, the 1933 Tacky Party with all its Harlem atmosphere, frocks of three years ago, "hot dogs" and glorious time is a thing of the past.

Beginning sharply at 10 o'clock last evening, the first eager-eyed maids and lads of darkest hue expectantly entered the Night-Club-for-a-Night, at the Mayflower Hotel, and the party lasted through gay hours of dancing, fortune telling, eating and fun making until far into the morning.

Such a lot of fun! As everyone entered he was faced by a sign: "Park Your Razors and Guns Here."

The rough boxes stretched forth their splinters to clutch at the costumes, but no one cared. At a tacky party a snag is a snag and the more the merrier. Old dolls, feather boas, ribbons, tiny derbys, white gloves, all gathered in the Italian garden of the Mayflower. Not even after the longest hike on a fine autumn day, with a large fire snapping, did "hot dogs" ever taste as nice as they did last night, served on thick broken dishes and accompanied by sauerkraut, beer and, of course, pretzels.

Miss Mary Dwight, off in one corner, was of a very light shade, but fetching nevertheless in her stiff shirt and white trousers. In another part of the dance hall Miss Alice Fleming was the picture-come-to-life of the sweet, gentle miss from the country, stiff hat and stick-up flowers. Miss Dorothy Nicholson, with her red and yellow garb and her coppery skin, was quite a belle, as was Miss Vera Connell, as a dusky miss from Texas. A very interesting group off in another corner was that of which Miss Katherine Brown, regal in pale blue satin, was the leader. There was Miss Barbara Roll, in her crinoline frock of yellow, and Miss Margaret Nixon, a regular Southern mammy.

Smart Assemblage Sees Benefit Show

Headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, many distinguished persons in Washington society attended last night's benefit performance of "Mary of Scotland," given at the National Theater, under the auspices of the American Association of University Women for its fellowship fund.

Among them were Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Ballou, Dr. and Mrs. William John Cooper, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mr. and Mrs. Whitman Cross, Mrs. Frederick Farrington, Mrs. Henry W. Fisher, Mrs. Herman Gasch, Dr. Julia Hahn, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. C. H. Marvin, Mrs. Charles Matthews, Dr. and Mrs. Earl B. McKinley, Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, Dr. and Mrs. Merriam, Mrs. William Slade, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. Henry Alva Strong and Mrs. Horace Shares.

Two boxes were occupied by representatives of the education department of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Harvey Wiley, president, occupying one with a group of friends and Mrs. Otto Veerhof, chairman of the education department, acting as hostess in the other.

Miss Walters to Wed Mr. Robert T. Van Unden

The first Assistant Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Theodore Walters have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ione Walters, to Mr. Robert Thomas Van Uden, of Wallace, Idaho. No definite date has been set for the wedding, but it will take place next month in Washington.

Attache's Wife, Son Visit Here

Mrs. Julius C. Holmes Will Return to Bucharest Before Christmas.

Mrs. Julius C. Holmes, wife of the Third Secretary of the United States Legation in Bucharest, went to New York yesterday after a brief stay at the Mayflower. Mrs. Holmes, who was formerly Miss Henrietta Allen, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Henry Allen, of Kansas, arrived in this country last week accompanied by her parents and her small son, Henry Allen Holmes.

Senator Allen is now in Chicago, where Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Holmes will join him on Thursday. Later they will go to their home in Wichita, where Mrs. Holmes will remain for about six weeks. She will leave her son in this country with his grandparents and will rejoin Mr. Holmes in Bucharest before Christmas. Later in the winter, Mr. Holmes will be transferred to the United States Legation in Sofia, Bulgaria. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes will come to Washington for several weeks in the late spring.

Miss Harris Entertains For Envoy's Daughter.

Miss Florence Harris, daughter of Mrs. Russell-Bennett, entertained a small group of friends at tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Nella Veverka, daughter of the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mm. Veverka, who have recently returned from several months' visit in their home in Czechoslovakia.

Miss Bertha Bolling arrived at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday from Atlantic City, where she spent the summer months. Miss Bolling will go to Chicago to visit her niece, Mrs. John E. Moeling, returning to the Raleigh Hotel later in the fall for the winter season.

Mrs. G. D. Wise, of Giroude, France, with her daughters, Miss Collette and Miss Gacquehice Wise and Miss Grina Langa, are making an extended tour of the United States. During their stay in Washington they are at the Willard.

Mr. John E. Kehl, United States Consul General of Hamburg, and Mrs. Kehl, are at the Willard for a short visit.

Birds Welcomed

Their feathered friends fare well at the hands of former Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry N. New, who for years have fed all the birds of the neighborhood, near their country place, Hemlock Hedge, Edgemoore, Md.

Hundreds of birds gather at Hemlock Hedge in the course of the season. It would seem as if the birds acquaint their fellows by a kind of telepathy with the fact that here as in the days of St. Francis of Assisi birds find welcome and food.

Walter Huston, Wife Among Dinner Guests

Col. and Mrs. C. P. George Complimented at Function Given by Archainbaulds

Col. and Mrs. Charles P. George, United States Army, of Fort Myer, were entertained at dinner at the Shoreham last evening by Mr. and Mrs. George Archainbaud, who are spending several weeks at the Shoreham from Beverly Hills, Calif. The group attended the opening of "Mary of Scotland" after the dinner.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Huston, of Hollywood, Calif.; Capt. and Mrs. Harold W. Blakeley, United States Army; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edmund Jones, of New York City; Mr. Frank Conroy and Mr. Albert Levino, both of Hollywood, Calif.

Mrs. Robert W. Taft, of Providence, and Mrs. Gerald Whitman, of Greenwich, visiting their daughters, Miss Mary F. Taft and Miss Eleanor Whitman, who are attending school here, entertained for them at dinner at the Little Tea House last evening.

Popeye Kayos Mickey in Hot Halloween Bout

New Champion Insists Small Fans Wear Seaman's Rig and Big-Jawed Mask.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

"Operator, give me Cheese 6110." "Hello. Is that you, Minnie? This is Mickey. Yes, Mickey Mouse. Listen; what do you think has happened? We've got a rival. And what a rival. Remember how popular you and I were last year at Halloween parties? Why, every youngster wanted a Mickey Mouse or a Minnie Mouse costume. Lots of grown-ups wore them, too. But this year all the boys and girls want to be Popeye. Sure, that sailor with the underslung jaw and muscles made of spinach.

It's a tough break for us, Minnie. Of course we'll still be in the swim with the Spanish senorita, the favorite of the harem, the pirate and all those people. But Popeye is the biggest pumpkin this Halloween. An F street store is selling seaman's rig in all sizes and all color combinations. The same store is selling lots of other attractive costumes, too."

Books can easily be made worth their weight in gold if they hold money rather than words between their covers. Attractive book-shaped banks have imitation leather covers in blue, red and green. A cream-colored one with gold edges has been made for baby's first gifts of money.

Coins and currency are held firmly in the bank with a special mechanism. To open the "book" a key must be used.

The book banks are priced at 50 cents.

A pair of slippers to match every evening gown isn't a fantastic idea when good-looking ones may be bought at a ridiculously low price. An F street department store has satin, faille and moire slippers, in white or black, for $2.95. The former price was almost twice that.

The white ones may be dyed to match Halloween costumes at small expense, although they're quite nice enough to wear just as they are.

The size range is broken, but there are a number of narrow lasts.

As warm as fur are soft, wooly slip-on sweaters in interesting new weaves and styles. A ducky orange crochet has upstanding peaks at the shoulders of the boat neck. Huge brown buttons keep the points in place.

Another striking one, brown and orange checked, has an amusing little round neck, bordered with plain brown. Brown also makes the tight band at the waistline.

These sweaters are priced at $2.95.

Tailor-made stockings. Those are the words a hosiery manufacturer uses to describe the new stocking he has just put on the market. It is specially designed to meet the requirements of the individual customer, to fit snug on the small foot and to have generous elasticity for those who need it. By some magic process he has done away with cramped toes, ill-fitting ankles, slipping heels and breaks from strain.

The thread, strong and dull in finish, gives a sheer, clear weave less susceptible to pull threads. What a blessing that should be.

The colors are fascinating. Taupe is an ideal shade to wear with browns. Night and marabou are gunmetal types and are hugely successful when worn with grays or blacks. Vanitie, a delicate pinkish cream shade, is perfect for pastel evening gowns.

The daintiest things imaginable are petit point fine Irish linen guest towels in an F street shop. Gay, floral designs in bright, fast colors bring out all the beauty of the delicate-looking but long-wearing material. Some of the designs are in tiny detail; others are a bit bold. All are beautiful. The price of these towels is 59 cents.

Those who appreciate petit point will find it hard to resist a five-piece bridge set in the same store. The cloth is richly embroidered. Petit point also decorates each napkin. The price of the set is $1.95.

Mannish severity marks the tailored blouse of wool jersey lounging pajamas, but there is a world of dashing femininity in the generous cut of the trouser legs. This cut allows them to swish about the ankles in skirt fashion, but they are ever so much more comfortable than skirts.

Scarlet blouse and navy trousers is an excellent combination. Others are rust with gray, tan with brown, blue with gray, and light blue with dark blue.

The pajamas may be had with long or short sleeves. Some of them are one-piece styles.

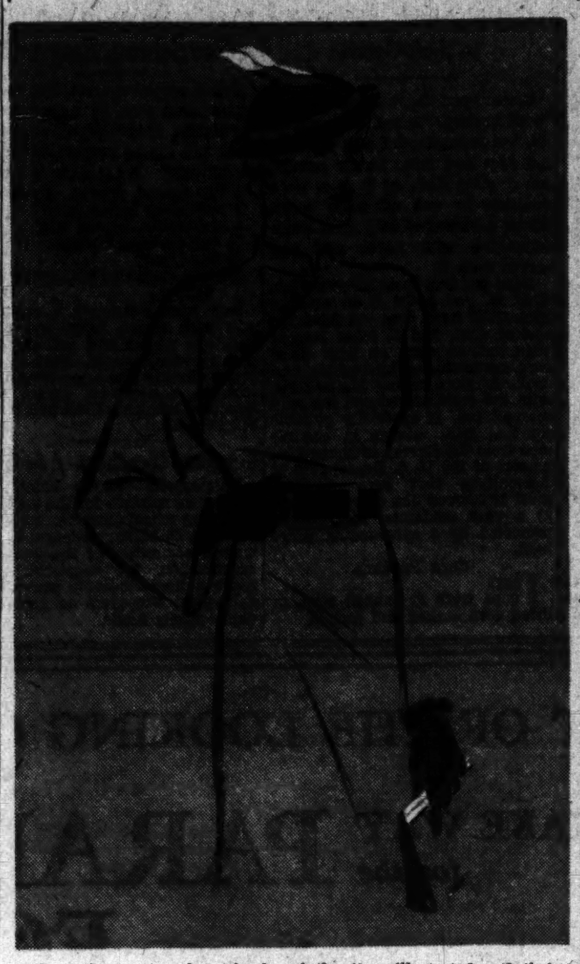
Hats Use Jewels

"Jeweled velvets" is the title bestowed upon small, off-the-face hats with stitched brim and bonnet-like flange in back. Soleil, trimmed with jeweled ornaments, is also being shown in off-the-face types.

What's in Fashion?

East and West Meet In Many New Frocks

Directed by Amos Parrish



Information as to where frocks of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

East is still East, and West remains West, but in fashions at least the twain have certainly met. For they've gotten right together in many of the dresses smart women are wearing this year.

Shoulder Buttons.

And don't you think of slant-eyes when you see high turn-over collars and buttons fastening a dress on the shoulders? Especially when the collar is in Chinese red and gold embroidery and the buttons gold. But instead of eyes like accent marks you find bright American blue eyes smiling above such an Oriental dress.

Straight, loose sleeves, slanting fastenings (such as you notice in the sketch), embroidered bands at neck or shoulders or waist . . . all these are definitely Chinese. Even the stitched, rounded epaulets that make sheltering eaves over dress and blouse shoulders can be traced to the costumes of Chinese priests.

Schiaparelli Started It.

These Eastern details have been snatched up by the designers and applied to Western clothes. And that clever, do-as-she-fancies Schiaparelli started it.

Along with the Chinese details, they brought some Chinese colors, too. Lacquer red, oriental blue, jade green and Chinese gold will make many winter afternoons gay, either in whole dresses or as contrasts on darker costumes.

D. C. Club Women Hold Fall Meeting

Senator William King Discusses Needed Legislation for the District

At the first fall meeting of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, held yesterday morning at the Y. W. C. A., the principal speaker was Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, who spoke on "Needed Legislation for the District of Columbia." Enlarging upon the alley bill which was passed by the Senate at the last session, he stated that further improvements in housing conditions are being studied by his committee. Regarding the liquor question, he said that the District could secure prohibition if it wanted it. However, he wants to see legislation enacted which meets the approval of the residents of the District of Columbia. He will endeavor to secure the opinions of various groups. The committee is also working on the needed Municipal Center, increased public works, a survey of the sanitary conditions of the District, with special reference to the Potomac River. They are also pressing income and inheritance tax bills. In conclusion, talking on the improvement of schools, he said that the home is largely responsible for lack of discipline. There is too much uniformity in our schools. We need good schools, competent teachers and all that can be done to build up a great people founded upon true principles of liberty and justice in order that they may carry to succeeding generations these eternal ideals.

Miss Pauline A. Frederick spoke on the needs of the Community Chest. This year the need is not only for physical help, but for spiritual rehabilitation.

Rings Match Bracelets

Sachet in Hat Makes Sweet Scented Hair

Witchery of Perfumed Hair Preserved by Tiny Bag Under Lining.

The newest way to scent the hair is to stitch a sachet bag to the hat band.

For thousands of years women have known—and acted on the knowledge—that there is something appealing and lovely about sweet-scented hair.

Some 4,000 years ago some one discovered that perfumes play upon the emotions. The Greeks employed perfumes and incense to drive away melancholy, soothe "edgy" nerves, counteract fatigue, assuage jealousy and turn the mind to love.

And our 1933 century of progress still clings to the custom, improving it only in matters of exquisite freshness and hygiene.

While hair freshly shampooed has its own tantalizingly elusive fragrance, there is no doubt that a dash of perfume adds a subtle finishing touch. For an evening of dancing it casts a spell of witchery that, other things being equal, should make its wearer irresistible.

There are several ways of perfuming the hair in addition to the sachet method. One is by means of perfumed wave-setting lotions. In shampooing the hair at home a few drops of one's special perfume may be added to the last rinse.

Again, in steaming the hair to promote a wave, a few drops of perfume added to the water will permeate the locks delightfully. Or a spray of perfume on the hairbrush will carry the scent through one's crowning glory.

In completing a formal evening toilet, a fine spray of perfume from an atomizer is always in order for the coiffure. It seems unnecessary to remind the fastidious woman that perfume should only be used when she is immaculately bathed and shampooed, and never, never when there is the slightest possibility of a conflicting perspiration odor.

Scarf of Autumn.

A weaver sits before a loom
And ties the waiting threads
With reckless color, green and gold—
The russet and the reds

Of oriental shawls that hung
Behind a Sultan's throne,
Deft fingers of the weaver work
Until the cloth has grown

To magic size. Bright loveliness
From every pattern spills
Then she removes it from the frame
And lays it on the hills.

Sees Women's Faith Pushing NRA to Victory

President of Women's Club After Tour, Finds Women Hopeful

American women, by tenacity, energy and faith, are doing their utmost to insure success of the NRA.

Such is the conviction of Grace Morrison Poole, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Poole is just back from a four weeks' speaking campaign on behalf of the President's emergency recovery act.

With a personal letter from President Roosevelt as her credential, she urged women's support of the NRA in Wyoming, Idaho, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, New Mexico, Colorado and Texas.

Everywhere she found women more optimistic, more willing to patiently await eventual good from the NRA, than men. Even in Nebraska and the Dakotas—which have voiced vigorous protest against and disappointment in the NRA—the women are not altogether hopeless, she believes.

"Women really are taking hold of the NRA, especially from the consumer angle," declared the brown-eyed, gentle-mannered little woman yesterday, from the depths of a comfortable chair in a reception room at the federation's headquarters, 1734 N street northwest.

"They are taking an active, intelligent interest, patronizing the shops and industries lined up with the NRA, keenly noting those that are keeping a balance between rising prices and salaries of employes. Women are naturally more patient than men," Mrs. Poole explained. "They hold faith longer than men. Woman has a bulldog tenacity. Once get her to commit herself to a cause, and other things being equal, she'll hang on to the bitter end.

"Of course, man's comeback to that statement is that he is seeing the workings of the NRA from a different angle than women in the mass. He is in the center of the game and realizes the economic difficulties to be overcome more clearly than she does. But if men had women's patience, I think they could surmount these difficulties more readily."

The next review, that of Tuesday, Oct. 31, will present Mr. Hogan's book, "The Bishop of Havana," in dramatic form . . . several scenes from the book will be presented by experienced actors and incidental music of the same period as the book . . . will be given by Mme. Louise Coutinho, popular Washington pianist.

Mrs. John Otto Johnson, of the Washington Drama Guild, will speak on current drama and, assisted by Mr. Maurice Jarvis, will present a short scene from "Dinner at Eight."

These reviews, which are held at 4 o'clock in the Carlton's patio, will continue through the season on alternate Tuesdays.

Bright Plaids Predicted

The Family Marketer

Dahlias, Marigolds, Begonias and Chrysanthemums on Sale at Markets.

"Here you are, miss, 15 cents a bunch or 12 bunches for a dollar. All these flowers the same price! Brown dahlias, marigolds, chrysanthemums, this big bunch for only a dollar!"

The Marketer saw piles of brilliant blooms, fresh from 15 acres and two greenhouses in Virginia. And the market florist raises them himself.

"Yes," he said, "I work for the man that owns the place. He sells them to all the florists here in town, and sends truckloads to the five-and-ten-cent stores in the morning. I've been working with flowers for 15 years now.

Bittersweet sells at 50 cents a large-sized bunch. Ferns at 25 cents to $1. Begonias are 25 cents a plant.

You have had grapefruit fresh and candied, but have you ever had it pickled? The Marketer found a place where you can get a pint jar for 45 cents. At the same stall is imported Danish liver paste for pate de fois gras at 25 cents a can, mustard from Germany (extra hot) all fixed up in a little stein for 85 cents, and vinegar made from sherry wine that came all the way from Italy for 45 cents a quart. The bottle is wrapped in a grass skirt and looks very much like the bottle from which the Marketer had her first champagne.

A butcher in one of the markets makes a specialty of corned beef. Boneless brisket, corned, is 20 cents a pound, and plate beef 10 cents a pound. He sells calves' tongues, two for 25 cents, large beef tongues for 28 cents a pound. Calves' hearts (they are delicious stuffed) are 15 cents each and some of them weigh almost a pound.

Hubbard squash is selling for 5 cents a pound, summer squash for 10 cents, savoy or curly cabbage is 5 cents a pound.

The marketer paused in front of a bakery stall. Half-sized pies, 5 cents each. Cute things, they are, and just right for luncheon for two. Squares of ginger cake for the same price. The squares are about 6 inches across. The ever-so-good brownies are 20 cents a dozen. And Pfeffernusse from Germany, for 35 cents a pound. It is made of honey and looks altogether delicious.

Today's menu marks the last of the lamb that the marketer planned for last Sunday. You can use the rest of the brown gravy in the stew today.

Baked Hubbard Squash.

Break squash in large pieces; remove seeds and stringy portions. Season each piece with salt, pepper and butter. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 1½ hours. Serve in slices, or scoop out of shell and mash.

Dinner for 4 at 76 cents.

Baked Beans Make Excellent Eating And Help Balance Small Budget, Too

By Ann Barrett.

Even if you were rich as Croesus, you might still hanker after baked pork and beans. And still feel like shouting hurray when you found yourself in front of a good bowl of black bean soup.

Meaning that beans are popular first because they make such good eating. (Banker Frank A. Vanderlip, Artist Neysa McMein and Actress Norma Shearer are only a few of the "celebs" who sing their praises.) And second, because they cost so little.

All this is true of dried peas, too. A point which I'd better call attention to right here, before my Southern friends rise up and smite me. In fact, Authoress Maristan Chapman, who has sent me some of her east Tennessee recipes, says "Beans is only food, but black-eyed pease is nourishment!"

Do's and Don'ts of Cooking.

Both dried beans and peas come under the same general cooking rules. And the greatest of these is: Give 'em time! You must simmer (not boil) them long and slowly—so as to cook them tender but not mushy, and so as to blend in the seasonings gloriously. If you can not give them this much time, you had best get your beans, at least, by the can-opener method, for commercially cooked beans are beautifully mellowed by slow cooking.

The second big step toward success is to season them properly—each dish according to its needs—with such savory items as bacon, pork, molasses, onion, garlic, celery, tomato, mustard, chili powder, cheese.

To come still closer to the point, here are two outstanding bean recipes—Boston baked beans and New York baked beans.

Boston Baked Beans.

For this celebrated dish you'll want 3 cups of dried pea beans, navy beans or yellow-eyed beans. Pick them over, wash them, soak them overnight in cold water to cover. Then drain them and put them on in boiling water to cover. Cook gently till the skins burst when you take a few of them upon a spoon and blow on them. (About 20 minutes.) Then drain them and mix with the following ingredients: 2 teaspoons salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1-3 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 cup boiling water, and molasses according to your own taste for sweet—say from 1 tablespoon to ¾ cup.

Next, scald ½ pound salt pork with boiling water. Then take it out and scrape the skin thoroughly. Next, cut off a slice about 1 inch thick and put this in the bottom of a bean pot. Put the beans on top. Now take a sharp knife and score the pork into small squares, taking care not to cut these through the skin. Next, bury the pork in the beans (meat-side down) and add enough more boiling water to not quite cover the beans. Cover the pot and bake beans in slow oven about 275 Fahrenheit for 6 to 8 hours. Then take off cover, turn pork over and let it brown. (Beans must be kept moist, and may, therefore, need more boiling water from time to time.) Although I understand this touch is not pure Boston, most folks like a small onion in the bottom of the pot along with the pork. Others like the peppier flavor you get by increasing the mustard to ¾ teaspoon.

New York Baked Beans.

For New York style beans, use the same recipe with these changes: leave out the molasses. Put the beans in a shallow pan or baking dish, lay the pork (sliced) over the top, pressing it into the beans a little. Add just enough more boiling water to barely cover beans. Bake (uncovered) in a slow oven till done, adding boiling water from time to time, so as to keep beans moist. The last half hour let water cook off a little so as to give beans a thin brown crust on top.

Some New Yorkers like a medium-sized onion chopped, mixed and cooked with their beans. Others like tomatoes with them—say ½ to 1 cup, strained.

Black Bean Soup.

The internationally famous black bean soup starts with 1½ cups black beans soaked overnight in cold water and drained. Then put them on to cook with 2 quarts boiling water and ¼ teaspoon soda. Simmer gently till about ¾ done (about 3 hours). Then add ½ pound ham or a ham bone, ¼ cup each minced onion and celery, several whole cloves, and cook another hour. Next, mix 3 tablespoons flour with 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon dry mustard. Blend this into 3 tablespoons ham or bacon fat, and add to soup (after removing meat or bone). Cook it up a few minutes, then force mixture through a sieve, return it to kettle, heat up again. Finally add 2 teaspoons lemon juice and 2 hard-cooked eggs chopped. Serve very hot, in small quantities for a dinner soup, or in larger portions as main dish for lunch or supper.

Mrs. Roosevelt Patroness for Canon Stokes' Lecture

Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt consented to serve as patroness for the illustrated lecture on "Africa," to be given Friday evening at 2400 Sixteenth street, by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes for the benefit of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. Canon Stokes will show for the first time a remarkable collection of lantern slides made during a six months' tour of the entire African continent last year. The Rev. Alfred J. Wilder, recor of St. Andrew's Church, and a committee of laymen are in charge of the distribution of tickets. All proceeds will be devoted to emergency demands now confronting the parish.

Chinese Apple Tree Brightens Our Gardens

Flower Colonists From Many Lands Now Splash Their Colors in Home Pots.

After years of tiresome detention in floral quarantine, that graceful young Oriental, Cotoneaster, most winsome and delicate of the apple family, has been busy for some time now spreading her pink and white blossoms and her scarlet and black berries in American gardens.

This diminutive Chinese tree is only one of many plant immigrants to our shores. The botanical wanderers come from all parts of the globe to make their home amongst us. In return our own horticultural experts choose the finest of our native blooms to represent us in foreign lands.

But America, which abounded in healthy and hearty red men when our ancestors arrived here, was almost poverty-stricken in so far as native flowers were concerned. Most of the gorgeous blooms that grace our modern gardens are themselves colonists who who arrived in the early days, or have been more recently imported, from Europe, from the Orient, from the South Seas, from Africa—from every spot where our botanical explorers, roaming in search of new flower faces, have discovered something new which might add to the brilliant regalia of our garden plots.

There is, for instance, the Japanese cherry blossoms, so well known to us after 21 years residence that we forget she is a naturalized citizen. Myriads of her pink blossoms deck the Tidal Basin of the Potomac in the spring.

Thanks to the Chinese elm, another oriental immigrant, the Government's vast project at Boulder Dam will not be a barren waste without touch of green, but will some day be populated with thousands of these hardy, but graceful, trees with their glossy leaves and small clustered flowers. For the elm of China is one of the rare shrubs able to withstand a climate characterized by severe droughts.

Our own Southern magnolia tree has become a great favorite in southern France. It spreads its dark, glistening leaves and heavy-scented, waxy blossoms in several warm European countries. The dogwood, with its four-petaled white flowers, first emigrated to Japan three years after the cherry blossoms reached our shores. It is now growing in England, France and Germany.

The purple, white and red flowers of American phlox have long been a familiar sight in England. The leopard lily adds its gay spots to foreign gardens.

Some American plants refuse to flourish elsewhere. The shaggy-barked hickory nut tree ceases to bear its nuts abroad. The giant Sequoia shrivels into a puny dwarf.

Plants that immigrate to this country are given severe tests in quarantine to guard against plant disease and pests that abound in foreign countries. The length of quarantine varies from a few days to a few years, depending upon the nature of the plant.

Non-Crushable Cloth To Be Used for Coats

American Fabric Manufacturers Making "Woolly" New Fabric

The cotton coat will be with us again next spring and summer. American fabric manufacturers are making exciting 50-inch-width cotton coatings, to assure advantages in cutting. With the exception of extreme "sporty" versions, these new materials are wooly looking and are noncrushable.

Cotton tweeds are at the head of the parade, in monotones, color mixtures, and flax and linen combinations. Tapestry colors are used for those that resemble shantung in texture. Natural linen colors predominate when the material's weave is porous.

Pique, in a heavier version than last year, will return to its place in fashion's sun. Honeycomb and bird's eye weaves, as well as waffle cloths, will be used extensively.

Linen and Cashmere

Dress materials, in plain linen weaves with multicolor flecks, are so soft that it is difficult to guess whether they have cashmere yarns in them. As a matter of fact, some do and some don't.

Feathers On Hats

Bird of paradise feathers, aigrettes, and brushes are used on some of the latest and most sophisticated millinery imports from Paris.

No End of Books

William Faulkner Pecking Away on New Novel He Terms a Little on the Esoteric Side; Nella Braddy Tells Brave Life of Helen Keller's Teacher.

"Pecking away slowly, but coming along with it better than anything else I've ever done," William Faulkner proceeds on a new novel. "Requiem for a Nun" is the tentative title. Mr. Faulkner adds that it is "a little on the esoteric side." From him, that means considerable. The book will be published by Harrison Smith.

Well-born Helen Keller, deaf, dumb, and blind, was brought out of darkness by a woman who had been nearly blind herself, who had grown up in a poorhouse. Anne Sullivan Macy's parents were poor Irish immigrants driven out of Ireland by the famine of 1847. Her father was a shiftless drunkard, her mother an invalid. Under the most utterly discouraging circumstances Anne Sullivan faced life. At five her eyes gave way, at nine her mother died and Anne went into a poorhouse. Not until she was fourteen did she learn to read with her fingers.

Later, when an operation restored part of her eyesight, she had to learn to read all over again. It was through Charles Dickens indirectly and Alexander Graham Bell directly that she became the lifelong teacher of Miss Keller. After testing Miss Keller's sensory equipment, Dr. Frederick Hilney, famous neurologist, said this: "All the glory of this mind is the fruit and product of another great woman, Miss Helen's incomparable teacher."

Anne Sullivan Macy lived with Helen Keller as companion and teacher for 45 years, even during the time she was married to John Macy, literary critic and anthologist. Nella Braddy, compiler of "The Standard Book of American and British Poetry," has written an heroic life-story in "Anne Sullivan Macy," just published by Doubleday Doran.

"Believe It or Not" Ripley has just sailed for Russia to compile startling facts. If Carveth Wells has not told them all in "Kapoot," just published by McBride, Mr. Ripley should return with a satchel full.

Hitler the Hater.

An autobiography, "MY BATTLE," by Adolf Hitler; Houghton Mifflin, $3.

It is well within the rules of fair play and jurisprudence that man be permitted to speak in his own defense before judgment is passed. Herr Hitler has had his say in this disturbing autobiography, "My Battle," and it is with the subject matter between the covers of this volume that this review will concern itself.

"My Battle" is a most illuminating book, for all its enormities and abnormalities. Anyone with a modicum of curiosity these days must wonder, not only how Germany came to accept Herr Hitler as its leader, but how the little Austrian-born egoist came to pick himself for the job.

In this autobiography—which first was published in the original German in 1924, with subsequent more elaborate editions in recent years—Herr Hitler tells of his comparatively humble origin; of his early struggles to attach a satisfactory meaning to events around him; of the trials and self-searchings he endured in assuming the mantle of a Messiah, and of the triumphs which were crowning his efforts as this was written. He explains, to his own satisfaction, at least, why he hates the race to whom he lays all the world's woes, from the oldest profession to the latest depression.

Born in Braunau, Austria, of an Austrian father and a Bohemian mother, Herr Hitler accepts it as quite natural that, almost from the cradle, he became, as he tells it, "a fanatical" German Nationalist." He gives as his idea of patriotism, under such circumstances, "hatred of the Austrian state."

Because, he explains, he "did not want to become an official," he went to Vienna "full of determination" at the age of 14. In that gayest and saddest of prewar capitals, Herr Hitler's egocentrism flowered. It was there that he deliberately developed the hatreds which were to pattern his mature life.

By the time he had reached the age of 20, Herr Hitler was able to say to his mirror:

"Thus do I now believe that I must act in the sense of the Almighty Creator; by fighting against the Jews I am doing the Lord's work."

While Vienna's squalor provided fertile soil for Hitler's discontent, he tells us nothing of what he did there and much that is immaterial of what he thought. We learn that by the time he attained his majority "I had so far improved my condition as not to have to earn my daily bread as an assistant worker. I was working independently as a draughtsman and painter in water colors." And hating.

"I hated" this, he says, "I hated" that, "I hated" above all "them."

In the spring of 1912 we find Herr Hitler headed happilyy for Munich. "A German town!" writes this emigrating Austrian, amid a profusion of exclamation points. "How different from Vienna! In a thousand ways it was or became dear to me!"

It was here Herr Hitler developed his theory of Germanenzug, with England as a rear guard, while Germany, renouncing colonies and importance on the sea, crushed Austria and as much of the rest of central Europe as she feared and desired. A plan, says Herr Hitler, which undoubtedly would have averted the World War.

The war, however, came along about this time, and Hitler enlisted, was promoted to lance corporal, decorated with an Iron Cross, wounded and gassed and sent home just in time to see the first of the series of post-war revolutions take effect. "The Jews," of course, were responsible for it—and so, says Hitler, "I decided to become a politician."

From this point on "My Battle" becomes less enlightening, because its author confuses every issue with personal tirades of race prejudice, leading to his imprisonment at Landsberg am Lech, where this biography was written.

One thing stands out through the maze of political theories and racial ranting, however, and I think it is the keynote of Herr Hitler's successful rise to power. Briefly, perhaps not quite realizing himself the importance of what he is writing, Hitler tells us of spending two years of self-training as a propagandist. He learned the importance of propaganda, its myriad uses, its well-nigh irresistible power over a people bewildered and torn with indecision. He tells of learning how wiles are worth far more to the orator than weight of argument, and of how he himself became a master propagandist.

"I care not who makes my country's laws, if I can handle the propaganda," Herr Hitler might well have written. He insisted upon occupying the post of controller of propaganda in each party that he joined. It was the secret of his success in "My Battle." Frank Getty.

What Today Means

"SCORPIO."

If October 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 4 to 5 p. m. and from 7:45 to 8:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 to 3:15 p. m. and from 5:30 to 7 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will probably tend to stimulate curiosity. Unless you are careful to restrain yourself, it is more than likely that you will "nose" into something that is none of your concern, and the knowledge of which will prove most embarrassing. You will probably have to mete out disciplinary measures to a loved one.

The child born on this October 24 will more than likely not be the little angel it should be. It will rough-house a great deal, and some of its mother's most precious possessions will be found smashed to pieces. Full of contrition, it will restrain itself only "till the next time." Will not like school and will not study.

If October 24 is the date of your birth, you probably are not the type of person to take top command of large enterprises. But when plans have been formulated and the work is ready to go forward, you will certainly "fill the bill" as an assistant to the executive in charge. You have a way of getting things done, of following up detail, and of seeing that everybody is on the job, that is hard to equal. You act ably under orders, but when it comes to making big decisions on matters of policy, &c., you seem not able to do it. Should you go into business for yourself, you will probably find it advisable to have a partner along.

Born on October 24, you are not afraid of hard work and long hours. You are not a person who has many interests outside of your work, so that when off the job, your thoughts linger on matters of the day's business. The women born on this date seek to make themselves most attractive to those of the opposite sex. They are generally naturally attractive, and all in all, they invariably succeed in having a substantial male following. This is none the less true after they have married. It is, therefore, advisable for them to choose as mates, men who are not inclined to jealousy. The men marry as much for convenience as for love. They may neglect their wives and families to some extent, but only for their work. Needless to say, the men will not go down in history as great lovers, but they are good providers.

Successful people born on October 24:

Noah Brooks, author.
Belva A. B. Lockwood, lawyer.
George W. Hough, astronomer.
William F. Apthorp, dramatic and musical critic.
Frank L. O. Wadsworth, scientist.

Modern Hostess Turns to Social Breakfasting

Business Women Find It a Nice, Chatty, Get-Together Meal.

By Ruth Chambers.

Entertaining our friends at dinner, luncheon or supper is all very well, but why overlook breakfast? That is a meal which is coming into its own in the social calendar, especially among those housekeepers who haven't the time or the courage to undertake more formal or elaborate meals.

Many hostesses find this somewhat unconventional time most convenient for themselves and their friends. Business women who usually have to eat the morning meal "on the run" on week days may enjoy making breakfast a pleasant, leisurely affair on Sundays and holidays and invite their friends in to enjoy it with them.

Or it may be just the right time for you to entertain some popular guest whose social calendar is crowded with such affairs as dinners, luncheons and afternoon teas.

Call Them "Brunch."

Professional people, writers and the people of the theater who are apt to have more leisure at the beginning of the day than in the crowded afternoon and evening hours, favor these gay breakfast parties. They are, of course, somewhat more substantial than the usual light repasts of every day, and, in fact, they are like an early luncheon. Some one has coined the word "brunch" to cover these breakfast luncheon parties.

Gala Settings.

Of course, you'll set your table with your brightest and most unusual cloths, of gay linen or gingham perhaps. And this is the time to use your peasant ware china, your Mexican glass, or whatever other colorful or unusual tableware you possess.

Fruit or fruit juice to begin the meal, of course. For the beverage piping hot coffee with cream, perhaps a pot of rich chocolate for those who prefer it, or tea, if your guests have English food habits.

Hot muffins seem almost required at these "special" breakfasts. Here is a recipe which, if you follow it closely, will almost insure your social success as a giver of breakfasts:

Bacon Muffins.

3 tablespoons hot crisp bacon, diced
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
2 cups of flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
2 well beaten eggs
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar, then add well-beaten eggs, milk, hot bacon drippings and hot crisp bacon. Pour into buttered muffin tins and bake 25 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F.).

For your main dish, suggestions are lamb patties, creamed sweetbreads, ham and eggs in ramekins, various kinds of omelets, fried or baked sausages.

Ham and Oysters.

6 slices broiled ham
6 slices bread
Pepper
24 raw oysters
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon salt

Toast the bread slightly. Cover each piece with a slice of ham. Place oysters on ham. Season with salt and pepper and dot with butter. Bake them in the oven for a few minutes until the oysters are done.

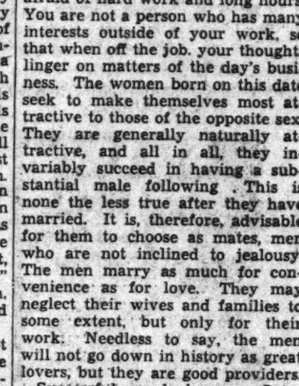
Washington Women in Welfare Work



MRS. WILLIAM H. BAYLY.

Mrs. Bayly Divides Time Between Y. W. C. A. and Foundling Home.

Two welfare interests divide the attention and time of Mrs. William H. Bayly. She is honorary president and ex-officio board member of the Young Women's Christian Association and a member of Pierce Guild Auxiliary of the Washington Home for Foundlings. While her interest in children, as expressed through the Home for Foundlings, is intense, Mrs. Bayly's first love and first interest is in the Y. W. C. A., in the affairs of which she has played an important part.

"I became president of the Y. W. C. A. one year after its organization," Mrs. Bayly said yesterday. "For 14 years I held that position, and helped to carry the organization through its most critical period, the World War, when thousands of young women were in Washington without friends or relatives. I think the 'Y' is the greatest institution in America today.

"There never has been a time when the work of the organization was as important as it is today. Thousands of young women find themselves with a great deal of leisure and are able to make good use of it through the facilities of the 'Y.' Second in importance to relief work today is character building. And I sincerely believe that the work being done by the 'Y' is making a more intelligent and healthier generation of young women."

Mrs. O'Neill Tells on Eugene

New York—Eugene O'Neill thinks about drama every minute of his working day, and then takes his problems to bed with him, George Jean Nathan discloses in Vanity Fair.

"Even when sound asleep," says Nathan, "his wife informs me, he will once in a while grunt and be heard to mumble something about Greek masks, Freudian psychology or Philip Moeller."

Honor Guest at Rally

BINA WEST MILLER, noted leader in women's activities, will be entertained at the tri-State rally of the Women's Benefit Association.

Corn Custard And Cold Meat Hearty Meal

Pudding of Corn All-Year Dish, Adds Flavor to Left-Overs.

Corn "pudding," often called "corn custard," is not a dessert at all, but a substantial dish containing eggs and milk, hearty enough for a main dish, or it is a good addition to one of those meals where a platter of cold meat needs something with flavor and zest served with it.

Corn pudding is an all-year dish. That is, you make it in summer time with fresh corn cut from the cooked cobs, and at other seasons with canned corn or, with dried corn reconstituted by soaking and cooking. Corn canned Maine style, with the grain scored and the pulp scraped out, is especially suitable for this dish. Notice in the recipe from the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture that corn pudding must be cooked like other custards, at a very moderate temperature, protected by a surrounding water bath.

Corn Pudding.

3 eggs
2 cups fresh or canned corn, or dried corn soaked and cooked
2 tablespoons melted butter or other fat
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
2 cups milk

Beat the eggs, add all the other ingredients, and more salt if necessary. Pour into a greased baking dish, place in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 1 hour, or until set in the center.

Norwegian Prune Whip Nourishing, Easy to Fix

For a special dessert, Norwegian prune whip can't be recommended too highly. It is filled with nourishment and can be prepared with little difficulty. Try it made this way:

1 cup stewed prunes, pitted
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
¼ cup powdered sugar
½ cup cream
2-3 cup crumbled arrowroot biscuits

Rub prunes through a strainer; mix with lemon juice and chill. Beat egg whites stiff and combine with powdered sugar. Fold chilled prune mixture into egg whites, then fold in whipped cream and crumbled crackers. Chill and serve. Six portions.

Suggests Teachers Ask Pay

Minneapolis—Mayor Bainbridge has a new solution for the problem of paying school teachers. In a letter to C. C. Minty, chairman of the central committee of the teachers' organization, he suggested they make a house-to-house canvass of delinquent taxpayers to replenish depleted city funds.

Sun Settles Scholars' Dispute

Boulder, Colo.—Old Sol, in a quiet way, has ended a heated discussion about snow. He turned on more calories than usual this summer and melted away "Hendersons Glacier," and thus brought peace to the geology class at the University of Colorado. Some of the students insisted the snow was a glacier and others that it was a perennial drift. All agreed there is "no glacier" now.

Anderson Play Instinct With Poetic Beauty

Vibrant Drama of Tragic Queen Unique Among Modern Works.

By Clayton Hamilton.

When the ancient world of fable was superseded by the modern world of actuality, it became necessary for the human heart to find a living substitute for her whose face had launched a thousand ships and burned the topless towers of Ilium. What Helen of Troy had been to the Athenians, Mary of Scotland has become to us.

Whatever grave historians may say of Mary Stuart, she is enthroned in the imagination of mankind as a symbol of that Beauty which becomes more sacred with every assault against it of insulting circumstance.

She was more sinned against than sinning. Even the grimmest historians have not convicted her of any crime. She was young, she was almost unimaginably lovely, she was naturally gay; and she wanted to be happy. By the dour minds of most of her fanatical compatriots, these simple traits were looked upon as sins.

Compared With Hamlet.

Also, like Prince Hamlet of another Northern kingdom, she was sadly out of place amid the intrigues and connivances, the bloody plots and counter-plots, of a court that was lifted but a little above the plane of barbarism.

At the early age of 17, Mary had been the Queen of France (O, ma patrie, La plus cherie), a comparatively civilized country of sunshine and laughter, of dancing and poetry and song. Upon her return to Scotland, she wanted also to be happy; but what had happiness to do in Edinburgh, where visible chilliness shrouds with mist the rock foundation of its crested castle and mad winds are forever howling down the dismal gullies of the Cannongate?

Mary was by no means unintelligent; she endeavored to be just; she was capable of lofty self-denial and of sturdy moral courage. But destiny could not forgive a face which no one looked upon without a heartache nor condone that utter loveliness which carries with it always a haunting sense of the forlorn.

Symbolic Figure.

Small wonder that a figure so symbolic has been sighed for and been sung of, by innumerable lyric and dramatic poets, all the way down from her contemporaries through A. C. Swinburne to John Drinkwater and Alfred Noyes. Hitherto the classic play about her has been the famous tragedy of Friedrich Schiller, a sort of secondary German Shakespeare whose main misfortune was that he wrote his pieces in a period divested of a living theater.

American playgoers more than 50 years of age will never be able to forget the great performance of Schiller's "Maria Stuart" by Helena Modjeska—especially that scene within the prison gardens of Fotheringay when the incomparable Polish actress fluttered about the stage like a caged bird beating clipped wings against golden bars in vain, or that other moment when, confronted by Elizabeth, Mary Stuart slowly seemed to add a cubit to her stature until she towered over her sovereign adversary, every inch a queen.

And yet it has remained for an American poet of the present time to write at last a drama that is truly worthy of the legend which for more than three centuries has haunted the memories of men. This play is "Mary of Scotland." It was written by Maxwell Anderson, and it was produced last night in Washington for the first time on any stage.

Theater Thronged.

The National Theater was crowded to capacity with an audience that expected a superior type of entertainment. A year ago the author had been awarded the Pulitzer Prize for an historical drama of a totally different kind, set in contemporary Washington itself instead of aged Edinburgh.

For this new production, the Theater Guild had assembled a galaxy of many stars. The backgrounds had been designed by the first arist of the American theater. From an association of collaborators to whom so much had been given, much was naturally to be asked. Yet it may be doubted that any member of last night's audience, in advance of the event, foresaw the privilege of being present at an occasion when this often self-maligned America of ours should be destined to bestow a great play upon the theater of the world.

It is eminently fitting that the honor of this high accomplishment should come to Maxwell Anderson. For 10 years he has been writing plays, and has tried his hand at several different types of drama. Some of his experiments have succeeded, others have failed. In either case, it did not really matter; for everything he attempted showed evidence of an incorruptible sincerity. He is the most earnest of our contemporary playwrights, and, with the possible exceptions of Eugene O'Neill and Sidney Howard, the most talented as well.

Other Drama Prophetic.

Once only in the past has Maxwell Anderson written anything that might have been regarded as prophetic of his present masterpiece. Three years ago, in defiance of contemporary fashion in our theater, he devised the historical drama of "Elizabeth the Queen," which, produced by the Theater Guild with the popular Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt in the leading roles, enjoyed a highly prosperous season.

Yet I have always believed that this successful play must have been a disappointment to its author. In general feeling, it was too theatrical, or else it was made to seem so by the excessively artificial performance of Miss Fontanne.

"Mary of Scotland" is altogether on a higher level. It stands unique, above all recent compositions of its kind. In the average historical play, the characters seem to have been dug up from the dead pages of a book and decked out with the trappings and the suits of the theater; but the characters of "Mary of Scotland" are vividly and tinglingly alive. They have never been dead; and that may almost be taken as a token that they are safe from death for evermore.

The language, also, in which these living characters express themselves is just as fresh and natural as the dialect of such a master of contemporary colloquy as the late Ring Lardner; yet it is always absolutely of the period of the play. Not a single word is used which was not commonly current in the Scotland of the 1590s; but, on the other hand, there is no suggestion anywhere of the archaic. The writing is not marred by any taint of tushery; and nobody is ever permitted to ejaculate, "Gadzooks!" or "By my halidon!"

Simple Prose.

The expository passages are written in simple prose, with the exception of the speeches of John Knox, which are fervid with an eloquent rhetoric that only slightly antedates the King James version of the Bible; but, whenever any heightening occurs in the emotions of the characters, their utterance is lifted into verse. The transition comes so naturally that a quick ear would be required to detect it.

Maxwell Anderson does not write verse for the mere sake of writing verse. Indeed, he must know that, in this eye-minded period, when the common ear is almost atrophied, there can scarcely be a dozen persons in any average theater audience who are equipped with ears to hear. He writes verse merely because, in dealing with any high degree of emotional intensity, verse becomes in very truth a more natural medium than prose.

In almost the only interview which he has ever given to the newspapers, he was quoted as having said, "All great plays I can remember were in verse. If we are going to have a great theater in this country, somebody has to write verse, even if it is written badly. It is at least a beginning."

Authentic Poet.

But Maxwell Anderson is an authentic poet. He does not write verse badly. He does not add it to the fabric of a play as an extraneous adornment, but takes its rhythms from the very pulse-beats of his characters. And "Mary of Scotland" is much more than a beginning. It is, in the words of Whitman, both "An acme of things accomplished and a forerunner of things to be." It is a great play in itself; and it gives promise that, in a not too distant future, we are going to have a great theater in this country.

The cast provided by the Theater Guild, under the shrewd direction of Theresa Helburn, is altogether adequate to the occasion. It is headed by Helen Hayes, herself a Washingtonian. Through many past performances, Miss Hayes has established herself firmly in the admiration and affection of the theater-going public; yet, in this instance, she has increased her own artistic stature. In the lighter passages she is, of course, delightful; and after suffering is heaped on suffering as she descends from step to step down the dismal staircase of her destiny, she seems to be in very truth, an incarnation of the heartbreak of the world.

Role Shows Restraint.

Commensurate in technical accomplishment is the complementary performance of Queen Elizabeth by Helen Menken, a characterization of keen intelligence and iron-willed restraint, which is beautifully devoid of those excessive eccentricities which are usually introduced in stage renditions of the character.

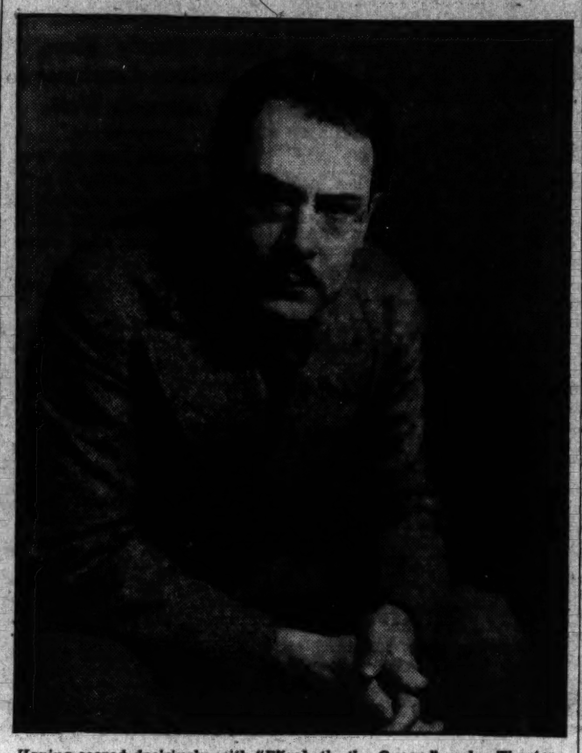
On the masculine side of the cast, the style of Philip Merivale is admirably suited to the bluff, bold-mannered, almost overmanly Earl of Bothwell, a character which the author, for poetic reasons, has chosen to exculpate from the dubious stains of history.

Fritz Leiber is impressively thunderous in the role of the fanatical John Knox. The contributory parts are so well taken as a whole that it would be invidious to single out particular performers for special praise.

The settings designed by Robert Edmond Jones are beautiful with that simplicity and perfect taste which have set him at the forefront of his profession. The dominant color of his backgrounds is, of course, the cold slate-grey of granite-hearted Edinburgh, merciless as the mists of the North. But, before these backgrounds, Mary herself, encircled by those she loves and those who love her, moves radiant with human warmth, burning with beauty and glowing to the eye.

It remains necessary only to report that the audience, which is a necessary collaborator in any great theatrical occasion, responded nobly to an opportunity that can occur but rarely in a life-time. In recent years we have not been burdened with an overplus of reasons to be proud of the United States. We may be proud this morning. Our country has given to the world a great and noble play.

Writes New Historical Drama



Having scored decisively with "Elizabeth, the Queen," under Theater Guild auspices in 1930, Maxwell Anderson has supplied the same producers with another drama of comparable character and quality in "Mary of Scotland," which was given its world premiere in the National Theater last night. "Mary of Scotland" is completely reviewed in this issue.

Clayton Hamilton, author of several plays and many books about the theater, and known throughout the country as a lecturer, is chairman of the Pulitzer prize jury for the drama. Because of the importance of the world premiere of "Mary of Scotland," by Maxwell Anderson, who won the Pulitzer prize last year with "Both Your Houses," Mr. Hamilton was invited from New York to review the occasion exclusively for The Washington Post.

Hotel Aid Sought Here On Highway to South

Cooperation of the Washington Hotel Association in routing traffic to New Orleans over U. S. 29 was asked by a representative of the Piedmont Highway Association yesterday as an aid to its campaign for a superhighway to the South.

Plans of the association call for a four-lane road from Washington to New Orleans through Charlottesville, Salisbury, Atlanta, Montgomery and Mobile. Eight hundred miles of highway improvement would be required, the cost to be defrayed by the States through which the road passes, according to F. M. McCubbins, association representative.

52 Years in Packing Industry Wins Award

John Erdmann, Cudahy Packing Co., Washington, received a gold button in recognition of his 52 years of service in the meat packing industry at the opening session of the annual convention of the Institute of American Meat Packers in Chicago yesterday. Eighteen gold buttons were awarded.

Mr. Erdmann has been with the Cudahy Co. 16 years. He lives at 2928 Georgia avenue northwest.

Embezzlement Denied.

Thomas Healy, 50, of 1749 Church street northwest, was bound over to the grand jury under $2,000 bond in Police Court yesterday, when he pleaded not guilty to embezzlement. Healy is charged with spending $50 collected for an oil burner company.

Screen Actors Lead Lives of Constant Risk

Jinx Exacts Heavy Tolls; Barrymore and 'Hamlet;' About Showshops.

The tragic death of Cameraman William Casel during the filming of a scene for "Rodney" at Fort Myer, Va., has served to direct attention to the fact that misfortune is no respecter of persons and that from the smallest bit player to the mightiest star, everyone concerned in the making of pictures takes his bumps soon or late.

While loss of life, fortunately, is infrequent, hardly a day passes that some accident of more or less seriousness does not befall some one connected with the filming of celluloid entertainment. A long list of casualties might be summoned out of the immediate past to prove the point, if corroboration were necessary.

For example, it could be pointed out that only last week the Great Garbo had an exciting and unnerving experience during the making of certain sequences for "Queen Christina." A coach in which she rode in one scene suddenly started to roll down an embankment while she was still occupying it. She emerged from the runaway vehicle, when it finally stopped, shaken, a little frightened but not otherwise injured.

Ann Dvorak, a week ago today, came out second best in an encounter with a rattlesnake while on location. The snake struck her just above the ankle and only prompt emergency treatment prevented serious consequences.

Frau Dietrich, Too.

Jeanette MacDonald looks askance at any horse now. The one she had been riding recently bolted with her in Sherwood Forest and pinned her leg against a fence. She escaped with minor injuries.

Joan Bennett's horseback ride is still fresh in her mind. She was forced to spend many weeks in a plaster cast as a result of it. Irene Bentley seemed in for a similar accident last week when her mount became fractious and started to run away with her. She was saved from possible injury only when George O'Brien did one of his favorite Western stunts and snatched her out of her saddle at full speed from his own mount.

"Westerns" Dangerous.

Speaking of "Westerns," the stars of the so-called "horse operas" are constantly being trundled away to the hospital to recover from hurts sustained in the regular line of business.

Clara Bow recently "took one on the chin" during a free-for-all fight in one of her scenes, but recovered in due course with only a swollen jaw to show for her experience.

Lilian Harvey had one of her toes broken and a deep gash cut in her back not so long ago during different scenes of a production. In one, a bunch of burly extras were supposed to toss her around in adagio fashion. They dropped her and she broke a toe in the fall. She fell in another scene and lacerated her back.

While he was acting in a jungle picture a lion bit a sizable piece out of his thigh when Buster Crabbe attempted to shove the king of beasts out of his way. Wallace Ford was clawed by a black panther and Barbara Weeks scratched up with some thoroughness by a leopard.

One of the freakiest of accidents befell Ruth Chatterton when a property man dropped a microphone on her foot. "Mikes," in case you have never encountered one personally, are heavy.

Premature Explosion.

Dorothy Burgess remembers distinctly when a large electric light bulb fell on her head and exploded, during rehearsal, and Richard Arlen and Richard Dix both have proved they can "take it" in many a football scene from which they have emerged second best.

Just the other night Joan Blondell had her eyelashes singed off, but that was while fighting the fire that demolished the new home she and her husband, George Barnes, have occupied since their comparatively recent marriage—the one exception that probably proves that it is possible to be injured elsewhere than on a movie set!

Their own version of Ravel's "Bolero," you will be interested to know, is the only number that is being repeated by the Cansinos, noted Spanish dancers, at Pete Macias' Heigh-Ho Club, where they are now in their second week. New routines have been carefully prepared by this versatile duo and the "Bolero" is held over only in deference to the rousing reception it was accorded upon its every presentation last week.

Those who have lamented the apparent indifference of John Barrymore to the classic form of drama that brought him widest acclaim and greatest distinction upon the stage, will be pleased to know that once more the ambition to do worthy things is stirring in his breast.

The youngest of the "royal family" is fired by the ambition to do "Hamlet"—which is a play of some standing by one Will Shakespeare—for the screen. No producer, it seems, will give the idea heed, all holding that "Hamlet" is a doleful drama relying solely upon the lugubrious for its doubtful appeal. Mr. Barrymore, on the other hand, contends that the work which all actors aspire to play before they die is great melodrama.

"Far superior," says he, "to most of the junk they are making these days."

There hardly seems room for argument.

John Barrymore's plan to stage "Hamlet" in the famous outdoor Hollywood Bowl, then, is both a "stunt to have some fun" and a part of a carefully thought out campaign.

Play Speeded Up.

The "Hamlet" of Barrymore, which he presented successfully for nine weeks in London eight years ago, is considerably speeded up, requiring only two and one-quarter hours for presentation. He uses one set and a few drop curtains, moving rapidly from one scene to another by the use of lights, which are diffused at the end of each scene and brought on strong again for the opening of the succeeding scene.

"I've been bitten by the bug year after year," says Barrymore, "but now I really believe I'm going through with 'Hamlet.' I have just had the costumes and scenery I used in the London production sent here and recently I uncovered the musical score. The music is an integral part of the production.

"They thought I was crazy in London when I sent to this country for an electrician. 'Why, he is Hamlet,' I told them. The lighting effects are most important and only this electrician, who works for Arthur Hopkins, can handle the lights the way they should be handled. I hope to have him again."

A Notable Cast.

Barrymore expects to assemble a notable cast to support him. Lionel Belmore, he says, is ideal for the first grave digger and he has played it many times. Alec Francis is another veteran of the theater Barrymore hopes to interest. Ronald Colman, he believes, would be great for the part of Laertes. His Ophelia may be Helen Chandler, who played it in modern dress with Basil Sydney, in 1926.

Barrymore's present plans call for two performances in the bowl, which is a natural amphitheater seating 22,000 persons. If the advance seat sales warrant it, the "run" probably will be extended to seven or eight performances. The cost of staging it will be in the neighborhood of $20,000, Barrymore believes. If he just breaks even, he says he'll be satisfied.

If John Barrymore will only get back to some of these major works that are worthy of his great talents it is safe to say that his public also will be satisfied. Much of what he has done for the cameras has been in the nature of a woeful anticlimax.

George Alexander, 14, appeared in the Los Angeles Superior Court last Thursday seeking damages of $100,000 from the Hal Roach Studios, Inc., for the loss of his hand on August 4, 1932. The youth was injured by the explosion of a bomb which attorneys said he found in a field where the film company had staged a battle scene several months previously. This is believed to be the first time in the history of the cinema that any such freak accident has occurred, great care always being exercised in the handling of explosives which are mapped with extreme accuracy and punctilious care to avoid just such tragic consequences.

Money Awards For Poems to Beloved Star

Marie Dressler Birthday Prompts Contest for Valuable Prizes.

With President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt leading the long list of signers who have appended their names to hearty birthday greetings to Marie Dressler, distinguished and much-loved star of the screen, and similar expressions are being made in tangible form by the citizenry throughout the length and breadth of the United States, it seems eminently fitting that The Post should offer its readers the opportunity to participate in the general well-wishing with some chance of material profit to themselves.

Looking to this end, arrangement has been made with the executives of Loew's, Inc., operating theaters throughout the country, to hold a contest whereby readers of The Post may compete for a National prize of $250 for the best poem, not to exceed eight lines, expressing birthday greetings to Miss Dressler.

In addition to the National prize of $250, there will be special local prizes for Washington contestants. The first local prize will be $15 in cash, the second $10 and for the next 10 closest competitors, one pair each of guest tickets to Loew's Palace Theater.

Miss Dressler's birthday is November 9 and her birthday picture will be "Christopher Bean," the screen version of the successful stage play, "The Late Christopher Bean," in which she is supported by Lionel Barrymore.

This poem contest is open now and will continue for a period of 10 days. Complete rules and instructions for entering the contest will appear in tomorrow's issue of The Post.

It is not too early now to begin to woo the Muse and get your rhymes in correct working order. Only eight lines—or less—to be written, and one of the valuable prizes may be yours! Get busy.

"Who's Afraid?"

It seems to be the consensus of opinion among both press and public that the best screen drama in town still is "Three Little Pigs," Walt Disney's porcine picturization of prodigacy and its evil consequences.

That is probably it you're whistling!

Betty Dugan Wins Club Treasure Hunt

Miss Betty Dugan was awarded a trophy in the Curley Club's first treasure hunt yesterday.

More than 40 members of the organization took part. Clews led the party to all sections of the city.

Motor Car Injures Man On Road Near Berwyn

Struck by an automobile as he attempted to cross the Baltimore boulevard at Berwyn, Md., yesterday, Howard Field, 49, Laurel, Md., received a fractured leg and internal injuries. He was removed to Providence Hospital by the Bladensburg rescue squad.

W. S. Updyke, 1400 Otis place northwest, alleged driver of the vehicle, was arrested by State police on a charge of reckless driving. He was released on bond.

Bishop Ryan To Get Church Honor Here

Elaborate Ceremony Will Mark Consecration at University.

The Catholic University of America will witness elaborate ceremonies tomorrow as the Most Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of the university, is consecrated as Bishop of the titular See of Modra.

Bishop Ryan, fifth rector of the university, was appointed in 1928. His inauguration was attended by former President and Mrs. Coolidge. His appointment as bishop of the titular See of Modra was confirmed August 18.

The See of Modra is located near Vezirkahn on the Constantinople-Bagdad Railway. Bishops of this see are on record from the year 555 to 1401. In addition to his writings in philosophy, Bishop Ryan has devoted much of his time to furthering numerous improvements in the university. Marquette University and Manhattan College have given him the honorary degree of LL. D. while he holds fellowships in the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The consecration ceremonies tomorrow will be attended by clergymen representing churches in New York, Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo and Indianapolis.

Music Teaching System Topic for Burney Club

Wilmer Batholomew, assistant in the research department of Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, will address the Burney Club tonight at its first meeting of the season. His subject is "The Experimental Basis of Music Teaching."

Weapon Brings Jail Term.

Tracy Irwin, 28, colored, was sentenced to 240 days in jail for carrying a concealed weapon and bound over to the grand jury on a charge of housebreaking in Police Court yesterday.

U. S. Farm Aid To Face Test In High Court

(Associated Press.)

Review was promised yesterday by the United States Supreme Court of the first challenge of recovery legislation it has received, and the decision may determine constitutionality of the administration's farm relief efforts.

The case was set for hearing on December 4.

As a result, the court will begin a month earlier than the administration had expected its review of State and Federal legislation enacted to aid industry and agriculture.

The case granted a review was the appeal of Leo Nebbia, convicted at Rochester, N. Y., of violating the New York milk control law. Under the statute, the minimum price fixed on milk by order of the milk control board was 9 cents a quart.

Nebbia sold for less and the New York State courts held the act valid.

The appeal involves directly only the validity of the New York statute, but the high court's decision may be broad enough to determine the constitutionality of the Agricultural Adjustment Act under which the Secretary of Agriculture fixed the selling price of milk in various milk sheds.

The court refused to pass on the validity of the Missouri convention through which the State recorded itself in favor of repeal of the prohibition amendment.

In one of five tax cases decided by a tie vote the court held the Federal Government was not entitled to $9,000,000 it sought to collect on $30,500,000 of the estate left by James B. Duke, of New Jersey, who died in 1920.

The court recessed until November 6.

Yaden Voices Appeal For Community Chest

James T. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, made a stirring appeal for support of the Community Chest at last night's meeting of the Midcity Citizens Association at Thomson Community Center, Twelfth and L streets northwest.

A. J. Driscoll was elected president. Ment Pimes, treasurer, and G. J. Bowman, secretary, were reelected. W. H. Richardson and G. H. Dumington were chosen delegates to the federation. James Ring spoke on the Washington rent situation.

Chicago Youth Sought Here.

Washington police were asked last night to look for John D. Sutherland, 16, missing from his home in Chicago since August 6. The youth is 6 feet tall, weighs 165 pounds, is tanned, has blue eyes and brown hair, and wore a tan suit and topcoat.

Supreme Court Acts to Review Cannon Ruling

Sets Dec. 4 to Decide if Bishop Shall Be Tried in D. C. Tribunal.

The U. S. Supreme Court agreed yesterday to decide whether Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and his secretary, Miss Ada L. Burroughs, must stand trial on an indictment under the corrupt practices act, charging failure to report receipt of $65,300 from E. C. Jameson, of New York, for the anti-Smith campaign in Virginia in 1928.

December 4 was set as the date for a review of the ruling of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals that the Southern Methodist Bishop and his aid should be tried in the District Supreme Court, where they were arraigned last July.

The case has been in and out of courts here constantly since the indictment against the two was brought by the Government, more than two years ago. In the first court test, the churchman, about whose head political and ecclesiastical storms have beaten as upon no other prominet churchman of his time, won a victory when the District Supreme Court dismissed the indictment.

Federal prosecutors asked the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to review this action, and Bishop Cannon's attorneys challenged the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court, contending the appeal should have been taken directly to the United States Supreme Court.

Jurisdiction Approved.

Last April, the Supreme Court held unanimously that the Federal prosecutors had been right, and that the District Court of Appeals, under the code of laws for the District, had jurisdiction whether the District Supreme Court had placed the proper construction on the corrupt practices act, and had correctly interpreted the indictment.

When the Appellate Court, thereupon, reversed the previous ruling of the District Supreme Court, Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs were arraigned July 17, pleaded "not guilty" and gave notice of a new appeal to the highest court, which yesterday granted them a review of the case.

Bishop Cannon's troubles over this particular $65,300 started during the 1928 Presidential campaign, when the Southern churchman became a National figure in politics through his efforts to defeat Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee. After the election, the bishop found himself assailed from within and without the church. His personal record came under scrutiny.

It became known he had bought stock through a New York brokerage house, which later became bankrupt, and his foes charged him with "gambling." An increasing interest became evident in the $65,300 he received from Jameson, the New York capitalist, to use against Smith in Virginia in 1928.

Weeps Before Brethren.

Called before a general conference of his church at Dallas in May, 1930, Bishop Cannon wept, confessed he had made a mistake in his stock-market venture and promised not to do it again. But the Senate Lobby Committee was more adamant than the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The committee insisted upon questioning him regarding the money he received and spent for the anti-Smith campaign in Virginia. He defied his questioners and left the hearing. But later the Senate Campaign Funds Committee took up the question of that Virginia campaign. It held a hearing in May, 1931, at which time it was brought out that Bishop Cannon, seemingly, had accounted for only $17,000 of the $65,300. The bishop challenged the authority of the committee and nodded approvingly while Miss Burroughs refused to answer questions.

Nothing came of talk of citing the two for contempt, but later in the year they were indicted under the corrupt practices act for their failure to report the $65,000 contribution, and the case passed into the less spectacular jurisdiction of the District's courts of law.

Dairies Eager For NRA Ruling In Hagerstown

Price Feud Aggravated by Year's Haggling Awaits Decision.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 23 (Spl.). With the fate of two groups of milk distributors at stake, the decision of the Federal Government in the case of Stanley R. McCoy, who sells milk here for 8 cents a quart and who has defied the Government to make him sell it at the code price of 11 cents, is awaited with intense interest.

McCoy was given a hearing in Washington, Friday, on a charge of violating the Philadelphia milk agreement. Hagerstown is within the Philadelphia agreement area.

The situation in Hagerstown with regard to the adoption of the code price is unique and according to the code administrator, is the only area in the Philadelphia milk agreement area, where milk distributors have openly defied the Government orders.

Mennonite Hires Lawyer.

The trouble dates back more than a year and is the result of a bitter feud between two groups of distributors—the pasteurized dairies and raw milk dealers.

Many of the raw milk dealers are of the Mennonite faith, a church sect, located in this part of Maryland and in southern Pennsylvania. The Mennonites frown upon going into court in their own defense. The into court in their own defense. McCay is said to be a member of the faith, has engaged the services of an attorney. D. Angle Wolfinger, who also is United States commissioner here, has been engaged to defend McCoy and has indicated that if the decision of the milk administration is against his client, he will carry the case into the courts.

The Mennonite settlement at Maugansville, several miles north of Hagerstown, is the headquarters of the raw milk group. This district supplies one-third of the milk sold in Hagerstown and raw milk dealers have been steadily cutting in upon the pasteurized dairies, it is said.

Close Competition.

In a typhoir fever epidemic in the Maugansville raw milk section a year ago the health department required the raw milk producers to have their milk pasteurized during the epidemic. Most of them were forced to come to dairies here to have their milk pasteurized. Some complained that cost of pasteurizing was exorbitant, but they cooperated with the health department until the epidemic was over.

A score or more of small dairies distribute raw milk in Hagerstown in competition with the three large pasteurized dairies. The small dairymen contend that their overhead is not as heavy as that of the large milk plants and therefore they can sell cheaper.

The raw milk dairies last spring slashed the price of milk from 10 to 8 cents a quart. The pasteurized dairies were forced to meet the price. It was admitted in testimony at the hearing Friday that pasteurized dairies have been taking losses since that time. The stabilizing of milk prices offered them salvation and they immediately signed under the code.

Chosen for Test Case.

Many raw milk dealers refused to sign and continued to sell milk for 8 cents. McCoy was one apparently selected as a test case. He declares 26 other milk distributors in Hagerstown also are selling for 8 cents. It was learned that these other dealers are ready to abide by the code and have promised to do so.

Charles F. Preston, in charge of enforcement of the milk agreement, who testified Friday that McCoy was "the key man" in breaking down the prices set by the agreement has addressed several meetings of producers, distributors and consumers, declaring others have returned to the 8-cent price to meet McCoy's competition, and that only by speedy action on the part of the Government can this be stopped. Such price cutting, said Preston, would spread and break down the price structure of the entire area and farmers would receive less for their milk and the "chaotic" milk conditions which preceded adoption of the code would return.

Divorce Asked in Suit.

A. C. Morgan Dies In New York Home

Retired Stock Broker Ill for Short Time.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Alexander C. Morgan, retired New York Stock Exchange member and former head of the brokerage firm which bore his name, died today at his home following a brief illness.

Morgan, the son of Francis and Antoinette Converse Morgan, was a second cousin of the late J. P. Morgan and a direct descendant of Miles Morgan, founder of the Morgan family on this side of the Atlantic early in the seventeenth century.

Morgan was born at Sandusky, Ohio, July 1, 1849. The widow survives.

Court to Hear Lee Writ Plea, Bars Lawyers

Habeas Corpus Hearing Assured, But Counsel Is Changed.

Baltimore, Oct. 23 (AP).—Two attorneys representing Euel Lee, a Negro sentenced to be hanged Friday, were barred from practice—at least temporarily—before the Federal court here today when they appeared in the court to ask it to assume jurisdiction and stay the Negro's execution.

The attorneys are Bernard Ades, of Baltimore, and David Levinson, of Philadelphia. They have represented Lee for the Communistic International Labor Defense League. Ades was barred for alleged conduct unbecoming an attorney in court.

In order that Lee might not be denied any of his rights, however, the court decided to hear the petitions for writs of habeas corpus and certiorari that had been filed on his behalf and appointed Charles McHenry Howard, of Baltimore, to represent him.

It was announced an immediate hearing would be given on the petition, as early as tomorrow morning, if desired.

Judge William C. Coleman made the statement barring Ades and Levinson when they appeared in court to argue on Lee's behalf this afternoon. Lee is sentenced to die for murder of Davis K. Green, Eastern Shore farmer.

"Mr. Levinson, who has not been admitted to practice in this court, will not be permitted to practice until such time as he shows why he should be permitted to practice here," Judge Coleman said.

Chaplin Asks U. S. To Support NRA

Declares Success Depends on Every Citizen.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (AP).—Charles Chaplin, film comedian broke a rule of silence in public tonight and appealed to the country to show its patriotism by supporting NRA.

He broadcast over a Nation-wide hook-up.

"Whether NRA goals can be accomplished or not depends upon the patriotism and good will of every citizen," he said.

Old Structure Pioneers Used To House Cafe

Historic Landmark Built by John Sevier Being Remodeled.

New Market, Va., Oct. 23 (Spl.). New Market's oldest building and one of Shenandoah Valley's most famous landmarks is passing into memory.

The picturesque old building, erected in a time beyond the memory of the oldest inhabitant by John Sevier, patron of New Market, from hand-hewn logs taken from the first building in the town, is being remodeled and will shortly house a new restaurant.

Sevier, who later became governor of the short-lived State of Franklin and then the first governor of Tennessee, erected the building at the junction of the old Indian Bear Trail, now U. S. highway 211, and the east-to-west Indian Trail, now U. S. highway 11. Within its plastered walls he kept a general store, serving the traders and Indians who traveled through the Shenandoah Valley, and conducted a tavern for the convenience of these travelers.

During the days of the stage coach Sevier's Tavern was a regular stopping place on the trail from Alexandria to Staunton and today the old building still is used as a ticket office and waiting room for the large motor buses which daily traverse the valley.

In the 60's the structure served as headquarters for both Northern and Southern commanders who repeatedly struggled for mastery of the valley section. At the battle of New Market the old building was a haven of refuge for women and children who sought the shelter of its strong gray walls for protection from the shellfire which raked the village.

From the time of its erection to the memorable days when New Market citizens voted the town dry shortly before the advent of prohibition, the old structure repeatedly housed a bar, and stirring tales are told by the elderly inhabitants of exciting times in the building "when likker flowed."

Felon Shot to Death In Prison Camp Riot

Tallahassee, Fla., Oct. 23 (U.P.). State prison officials were informed today of the fatal shooting last night of Calvert Nunnery, a State prisoner, during a riot of convicts at a prison camp near Brooksville.

A mob of convicts attacked Capt. John F. Baker in the stockade. Guards shot Nunnery in the melee. He died today.

Two Men Convicted In $141,000 Swindle

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—John J. Egleston, of Worcester, Mass., and Patrick E. Sullivan, of Seattle, were convicted in Federal court today of defrauding Mr. and Mrs. John H. Callahan, of Rochester, N. Y., out of $141,000 in a rack track swindle.

They were sentenced to five years in the Federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa.

Silk Strike Settled.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The strike of 15,000 silk workers which has paralyzed the industry here for the past month, was settled tonight.

Honeymoon Ends in Arrest As Extortionist

Architect Is Seized When Ship Docks Over Balm Suit Letter.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (AP).—Edmund R. Harris, Baltimore architect, found his honeymoon interrupted by his detention here today for Federal authorities at Chicago, where he is under indictment on a charge of sending through the mails an extortion letter demanding $5,000 from Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, defendant in a million-dollar love-theft suit.

Harris and his bride, the former Miss Louise Lowndes, of Baltimore, came West by ship. He was arrested when the steamer Charles Nelson docked at San Pedro late Saturday night and brought to the city jail here.

Denies Sending Note.

He denied he wrote the letter, which threatened that unless Mrs. Hall paid $5,000 the writer would forward to Mrs. Grace Williamson Willett, plaintiff in the alienation suit, certain information "which will be both scandalous and very costly to you."

Harris was shown a photographic copy of the letter and copied it in his own handwriting at the request of police. They said department experts reported the handwriting was different.

Harris said he was accused by Mrs. Hall, wealthy Chicago widow, at the trial of being "overfriendly" with Mrs. Willett, wife of Howard Willett, wealthy Chicago truckman.

"I certainly am not guilty of any conduct ndicating undue affections for Mrs. Willett," said Harris. "In 1931 I was employed in the capacity of a photographer to collect pictures of Mexican architecture, in order to help design a roof garden for Mrs. Willett.

Eight Women on Trip.

"The trip was sponsored by Dudley Craft Watson, an art lecturer, and he and I were the only men on the trip. There were eight women.

"During the entire tour, which lasted four months, I tended strictly to my business. Most emphatically I did not do anything that might be construed as 'overfriendly' conduct with Mrs. Willett."

Wielder of Ax Poison Victim

Autopsy Is Made on Body of J. C. Perkins, Chevy Chase.

An autopsy on the body of J. Clarence Perkins, 30, who dropped dead early yesterday after threatening members of his household with an ax, revealed he was the victim of a strong poison, it was announced last night by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Perkins, at one time a Navy pharmacist's mate, drove occupants of his home, 10 Pinehurst Circle, Chevy Chase, into a room and threatened them with an ax. After smashing a door he was subdued, only to fall dead.

Police found a note signed "Ann" among his belongings. It indicated a quarrel and it is believed Perkins swallowed the poison after receiving the note.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Perkins, his parents, were located last night at their home in Schoolfield, Va., near Danville. They said their son left there last Saturday after a visit.

Neither parent could identify "Ann." Four brothers are en route to Washington to return the body.

City Ruled Dry After Repeal

Cummings Holds Volstead Law Is Effective Here Until Congress Acts.

Official announcement that Washington would remain legally dry after repeal came last night 48 hours after such a pronouncement was forecast by The Post. Attorney General Cummings made the ruling last night.

Congress does not meet until January, when it is expected to enact a "model" liquor-control law. Meanwhile, according to Cummings' opinion, liquor will be banned in the District and other places under Federal control.

Cummings' statement said:

"The Attorney General is of the opinion that after the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the act of October 28, 1919 (known as the Volstead act), will be in full force in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Canal Zone."

This ruling does not affect States which will be governed by their own control laws.

Dormitory Voted For Maryland U.

Regents Name Shriver Temporary Chairman.

Baltimore, Oct. 23 (Spl.).—Plans for the new arts and science building, a woman's dormitory to be erected for the University of Maryland at College Park, were approved here yesterday by the board of regents.

It was announced that the building would be named in honor of Samuel M. Shoemaker, former chairman of the board, who died at his home at Eccleston this month. His position as chairman was filled temporarily today by the election of George M. Shriver, senior vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The permanent chairman will be selected when Gov. Ritchie appoints a member to fill the Shoemaker vacancy.

Virginia Lists $12,383,883 Debts for Highway Projects

Richmond, Oct. 23 (AP).—The Virginia State Highway Commission in its annual statement today reported a road indebtedness of $12,383,883.60—$6,955,883.60 to be repaid in full to the Federal Government before 1948 and $5,428,000 in Robertson act obligations.

State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley said practically all of the Federal debt was incurred to give employment to men who otherwise would have been on a dole.

The report said 130,000 men were employed on the roads between April and October last year, the department having been the principal work relief agency during the height of the unemployment emergency.

The Robertson act payments, which were postponed last year, are slated to begin at the rate of $100,000,000 a year in 1934. Repayment of Federal advances also begin in 1934.

The commission reported that the past year brought inauguration of the county road plan, with 40,000 miles of secondary roads added to the State highway system, Mr. Shirley said 8,800 miles of the primary system were on maintenance during the year.

Rites for Mrs. Bolin Will Be Tomorrow

Mrs. Pocahontas C. Bolin, 72, wife of W. J. Bolin, of Edmonston road, Bladensburg, who died of heart trouble Sunday, will be buried tomorrow afternoon in Cedar Hill Cemetery, following services at Gasch's Sons funeral home, Hyattsville.

Oldest Baronet, 95, Shuns Felicitations

Declares Birthdays Make Him Feel Too Old.

London, Oct. 23 (AP).—Sir Benjamin Parnell, believed to be Great Britain's oldest baronet, refused to be congratulated on his ninety-fifth birthday yesterday.

"I don't like to be reminded of birthdays," he said. "They make me feel too old."

Sir Benjamin, who lost both arms in the Sikkim expedition in 1889, is in good health, although he spends most of his days indoors at his ancestral home, Thuriby Hall, near Lincoln.

Industrialists Gird to Meet Labor's March

(Associated Press.)

Plans for a new and more powerful organization of industrial and manufacturing leaders to meet what they consider labor's growing power are in the blueprint stage, and formal announcement is expected within two weeks.

Leaders in the new organization, to be centered in the present National Association of Manufacturers, are working to form a group that would be equal in strength to the American Federation of Labor and could deal with Government's increasing interest in private business.

The initial effort will be directed at dealing with industrial and labor problems that spring up before the industrial administration, and after that to establish a business planning group to cooperate with Government planning agencies. Development of this second point is awaiting more direct evidence of what policies those agencies will pursue.

The persons concerned have had several meetings here and in New York and have about decided to build from within the National Association of Manufacturers.

The new organization would not attempt to encompass the United States Chamber of Commerce, the other principal organization of business men, but would attempt to concentrate manufacturing and heavy industry in one body that could speak more effectively to NRA.

Virginia Kidnaping Attempt Thwarted

Screams Rout Gunman at Clifton Forge.

Clifton Forge, Va., Oct. 23 (AP).—Screams of his mother frustrated what authorities said apparently was an attempt to kidnap Elisha W. Winfrey, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Winfrey, here today.

An unidentified man, flourishing a revolver, entered the Winfrey home and demanded of a colored maid that she hand over the baby, which she held in her arms, officers were told. The servant ran from the room, and Mrs. Winfrey, who was upstairs, hearing the commotion, screamed from a window for help.

When neighbors arrived the man had fled.

Farm Strike Slowed; Relief Argued Here

Reno Stands Firm, But Produce Continues to Move in West.

While reports from the West indicated the farm strike is progressing slowly, further steps to alleviate the farmer's difficulties still were in the discussion stage yesterday. The discussion still centers around loans to wheat farmers and possibly to corn farmers.

Administration officials look upon President Roosevelt's financial policy, explained in his radio speech Sunday, as tending to help the farm situation.

George N. Peek, administrator of the farm adjustment act, said he thought "the President has clearly indicated he is a friend of the farmer," and added that the farmers should be fighting enemies and not friends. The efforts of the administration to bring about higher prices should be reassuring, he said, and he insisted the objectives of the farm strikers and of the administration are the same.

Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday Association, said in Des Moines the strike would continue in spite of assurances by the President that prices would be increased.

Reports from the strike area said there has not been any marked drop in receipts at the Nation's chief markets. Strikes have been proclaimed in Iowa, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Minnesota and Oklahoma.

Officials working on the farm program estimated the Government is preparing to spend $900,000,000 to reduce crop surpluses.

D. C. to Draft Deficiency Bill

Officials Give no Forecast on Amount of Extra Cash Desired.

Preparation of a deficiency appropriation bill is to be started soon by District officials to provide funds to meet contingencies which have arisen in the fiscal year.

None could forecast that amount to be asked, but the Commissioners feel the total must be held to an absolute minimum, as Congress in its coming session is not expected to look kindly on extra requests for funds.

One of the items to be included in the bill will provide for salaries of 51 crossing policemen which heretofore have been paid by the street car companies. Under the street-car merger law the new Capital Transit Co. will be relieved of that expense when it begins to operate on December 1. This will add about $46,000 to the city's pay roll. The District also will have to pay part of the cost of paving along street car tracks and this is expected to cost about $112,000 annually.

District officials are depending on Federal funds to carry the public relief work through the year and do not contemplate asking for additional funds in the deficiency bill. Federal relief officials have estimated $3,000,000 would be needed to fill relief needs. Of this $1,300,000 was provided in the District appropriation bill. The balance of $1,700,000 is expected to be provided out of Federal funds.

Irish Fisher Folk Cheer Lindberghs

Couple Land at Galway From Southampton.

Galway, Irish Free State, Oct. 23 (AP).—The air-minded fisher folk of this district gave enthusiastic welcome to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindberg today.

The flying American couple landed in the great harbor of Galway shortly after 5 p. m., after a 5½-hour flight from Southampton, England. They will carry on again tomorrow, hopping off at 7 a. m., to view the winding Connemara coast to its northwest end. The flight from Southampton gave the Lindberghs ample opportunity to continue their survey of prospective North Atlantic airports.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 23 (AP).—Pan-American Airways, Inc., is contemplating the establishment of special wireless stations in Greenland to further its investigation into the possibilities for a North Atlantic air route via Greenland.

Motor Train Speeds 78 Miles an Hour

Philadelphia, Oct. 23 (AP).—A stainless steel, stream-lined, motor-driven train, believed to be the first built in the United States, was tried in a run today from Philadelphia to Bridgeport, about 20 miles away.

Stocks Renew Rise on Capital Money Stand

Buoyant Upturn Is Result of News; Sales Total 2,132,140 Shares.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—With stocks and commodities advancing and the dollar weak, reactions of today's financial markets to President Roosevelt's new monetary plan indicated that at least moderately inflationary implications had been gleaned therefrom by many speculative quarters.

Wall street opinion was rather confused as to certain aspects of the plan, with respect to the proposed currency management. Comment in banking quarters was varied, but there was a general tendency to await developments.

It seemed evident to some observers that control of the dollar's relation to gold would mean a lower value for our currency, since the administration has again reiterated the necessity of raising commodity prices by one means or another.

Effect on Stocks.

The stock market's first response to the news was a buoyant upturn, and for a time it looked as though traders had revived their old inflationary spirits.

Opening gains were large in brisk trading, experiencing some contraction as quick profits were accepted, but then meeting a little expansion toward noon, when prices got 1 to around 7 points higher. Afternoon trading was relatively quiet and the general market tapered off a bit toward the close.

Gold mining issues provided the favorite vehicle for speculation, and these rallied smartly, finishing with a flourish. Homestake soared 40 points net, Dome, McIntyre and Alaska Juneau 3 to 6 and U. S. Smelting 10; the last named at its best was up 13. Utilities and rails, with a few exceptions, closed little better than firm, Santa Fe, New York Central, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, North American Telephone and Southern Pacific being fractions to around 2 points higher.

Farm Belt Stocks.

Farm Belt stocks and some of the "commodity" issues had a good day. Goodyear, Great Western Sugar, Case, Deere, American Sugar, Sears-Roebuck and International Harvester closed up 2 to 3 points or more. Volume of 2,132,140 shares was considerably below some of last week's markets.

Foreign exchange made big strides, though their advance was apparently prompted by speculative motives and transactions were rather light.

Sterling jumped 12½ cents to $4.64, closing 9 cents higher to $4.61½, and French francs, which face some difficulties of their own, rose around 12 cents before losing part of their gain.

Reception in London.

London, Oct. 23 (AP).—The London financial district today received President Roosevelt's outline of the monetary program calmly, and exchange quotations, after opening in a flurry, fluctuated no more violently than some during ordinary recent business days.

The American dollar, opening at $4.53 in relation to the pound, closed at $4.60⅜, with a further depreciation to $4.64 after the official close.

The outstanding development as the result of the President's declaration, the district believes, is that a relatively free gold market will be created with the gold price for American paper money.

That an American equalization fund is foreshadowed is the consensus of the financial authorities.

The President's statement did not create the immediate violent reaction which, according to reports here from New York, atterded the announcement there.

British financiers and economists hold divided opinions of Mr. Roosevelt's program, but the tendency is to wait and see what steps the President takes to put the program into effect.

The New Monetary Policy

May Cause Speculative Activity Of Doubtful Aid to Recovery

By Ralph West Robey.

As outlined by President Roosevelt in his radio address Sunday night the future monetary and currency policy of the United States is simple and clear-cut both as to methods and objectives. When it comes to its practical operation, nevertheless, it will be found that it is neither simple nor clear-cut.

The adoption of such a program is without parallel in the financial annals of the world. In briefest terms the program may be given as four propositions: First, there will be no stabilization of our currency until commodity prices are restored to a reasonable level; second, such a reasonable level is one that will be equitable as measured by the burden of debts, the relative purchasing power of the various classes in the country, and the volume of employment; third, as an effective means for getting such a price level, the Government from time to time will establish the value of gold in terms of dollars and will buy and sell the metal at this price either here or abroad, and fourth, once this equitable price level is reached, it will be maintained by the placing of our monetary system upon a commodity dollar basis.

Provides Us With a Positive Monetary and Currency Policy

The first significance of such a declaration by the President is that it gives us a positive monetary and currency policy. It is a pledge of action along a given line. Further, it is a pledge that we shall follow this line until a specified goal—an equitable price level—is reached. One might conclude, therefore, that the apparent groping and vacillation on money and currency problems, to which the country has been subjected for the last six months, now is at an end. It would seem, in other words, that the President finally has made up his mind on the course he wants to pursue and has committed himself and the Nation to it. This course is the one of managed currency, the manipulation of the price of gold.

Obviously, however, we shall not be able long to follow the course if it fails to accomplish the expected results. If it does not cause a rise of prices, if disparities in relative purchasing power persist or even increase, if it causes a piling-up of debt rather than an easing of the debt burden, if it puts a strain upon foreign countries with the result that they place an embargo on all capital movements and further restrict our markets through special treaties and the imposition of quotas, if, in short, we find that manipulating the price of gold is not the magic keystone in controlling the price level, and attaining prosperity, it can be only a matter of time until there will have to be a new monetary policy.

Price Level Does Not Rest On Gold Content of Dollars.

In short time we are certain to find that it is not the keystone. This is because the price level of this country need not be effected one iota, except through speculation or in the case of international commodities, by a change in the gold content of the dollar, or, what amounts to the same thing, a change in the value of gold as expressed in terms of irredeemable paper money.

This should be clear even to a novice in the field of money and prices. None of us has any gold. None of us at present can get any gold. Necessarily, therefore, changes in the price at which the Government is willing to purchase newly mined metal can not effect the number of dollars we have to spend. So long as we have none of the metal we would not have a single dollar more with which to purchase commodities if the Government decreed that gold is today worth $1,000 an ounce.

This present monetary and currency policy, accordingly, can not last. Temporarily, of course, it may give rise to speculative activity and, because of this, result in higher prices. Such prices, however, can not last. In consequence, any improvement resting upon such a speculative rise of values can not last.

This should be evident from the record of the last six months—a period ending in a farm revolt and widespread dissatisfaction. Through the fear of inflation last spring and summer there was an extraordinary advance in the value of certain commodities and securities. At the time it appeared to many people that the great price rise was real, that it was the start of a lasting recovery. In due time, however, it was found that much of the apparent improvement was based merely upon the quicksand of speculation. The present policy, it seems to me, will be the equivalent of trying to reestablish that artificial prosperity by pouring more quicksand into the foundation.

Bond Market Sags Slightly On Gold Views

Traders Become Cautious; Sales Volume Totals $9,039,000.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—A high degree of irregularity appeared in the bond market today as traders and investors variously interpreted the gold control and managed currency plans announced by President Roosevelt.

In some quarters dollar depreciation and consequent currency inflation were seen, while in others the opinion was expressed that monetary expansion was not a part of the program and that dollar stabilization probably would result from the buying and selling of gold by the Government.

Considerable caution was displayed by most operators and the trading volume was even less than that of last Friday. Sales totaled $9,039,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate issues eased one-tenth of a point.

Gains of a point or more were recorded by a number of the secondary rails and utilities. Among these were loans of Allegheny Corporation, American & Foreign Power, Chicago & North Western, St. Paul, Rock Island, Erie, Illinois Central, International Telephone, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Postal Telegraph and Warner Bros.

Bonds of Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Studebaker, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas, Northern Pacific, Pere Marquette and Central Pacific dropped 1 to around 2 points. Portland General Electric 4½s were down 4, United States Rubber 5s lost 5 and Chile Copper 5s were off 4¾ points.

United States Government securities were moderately mixed. Obligations of Dutch East Indies advanced 1 to 4, French government issues were up 2 or more, Swiss government 5½s gained 5 and United Kingdom 4s recovered 3. Most of the recoveries in the foreign section were attributed to the share rally of European currencies in terms of the dollar.

DuPont Earns $21,724,642 In 9 Months

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 23.—E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.'s report for nine months ended September 30, 1933, issued today, shows earnings applicable to the common stock of $21,724,642, or $1.98 a share on 10,961,479 average shares outstanding. This figure, which includes dividends from the company's General Motors investment, equivalent to 68½ cents on each share of Du Pont common stock, compares with $14,914,884, or $1.37 a share for the first nine months of 1932 on 10,865,592 average shares outstanding. The 1932 figures included dividends from the General Motors investment amounting to 92 cents a share on Du Pont common stock. Figures for both periods include Du Pont Co.'s equity in undivided profits or losses of controlled companies not consolidated.

For the third quarter of 1933, earnings applicable to the common stock were $10,447,092, or 95 cents a share, which included dividend from General Motors investment equivalent to 22½ cents a share on Du Pont common stock. In the second quarter of 1933, total earnings were 68 cents a share on Du Pont common stock, which included dividend from General Motors investment equivalent to 23 cents a share on Du Pont common stock. In the third quarter of 1932, total earnings were 36 cents a share on Du Pont common stock, which included dividend from General Motors investment equivalent to 23 cents a share on Du Pont common stock.

Cleveland, Oct. 23.—In September, 1933, net income of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., after all charges, was $3,496,886.61, an increase of $354,904.41 over the corresponding month of last year. For the nine-month period net income was $20,393,856.83, an increase of $4,916,604.76 over the corresponding period of 1932.

Railway operating revenues for September, 1933, were $10,284,732.30, an increase of $961,244.21, and for the nine-month period $79,528,727.30, an increase of $8,451,675.40.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Lambert & Co. reports net income for the quarter ended September 30 of $541,120, equal to 75 cents a share, against $470,937, or 63 cents a share in the preceding quarter and $639,442, or 85 cents a share in the September quarter, 1932. For nine months net income was $1,830,087 equal to $2.44 a share, against $3,207,827 or $4.28 in 1932.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Curtis Publishing Co. for the nine months ended September 30 had net profit of $1,306,372, equal to $1.45 a share on the preferred stock, compared with $5,129,285, or 22 cents a common share in the same 1932 period. United States Chief Buyer of Java's Kapok

Increasing price levels have proved a boon for Jaya's kapok industry, according to a report from Vice Consul J. J. MacDonald, Batavia, made public by the Commerce Department. The outlook for the industry, he points out, is brighter now than it has been in the past three years.

The American market is the most important outlet for kapok, taking nearly 8,000,000,000 kilos of the 17,328,000 kilos exported in 1932. The total value of kapok exports was 7,748,404 florins, of which exports to the United States accounted for 3,448,817 florins.

Production of kapok in Java, the report shows, is largely in the hands of natives, although its cultivation as an estate crop is steadily increasing. In 1932, native production was estimated at 15,000 metric tons with about 1,800 tons coming from estates.

Commercially kapok is employed principally in the manufacture of mattresses, cushions and upholstered furniture, in the preparation of surgical bandages and as a filler for life-saving appliances.

Curb's Prices Mount Under Lead of Mines

Profit-Taking Cuts Rise Near Closing; Sales, 281,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Mining shares were in heavy demand on the curb exchange today and strength in that division inspired modest advances in other categories, including alcohols and utilities.

Prices were higher on initial quotations. After a lull the advance again got underway around noon, but profit-taking was encountered in the afternoon, accompanied by shrinkage in trading volume.

Bunker Hill & Sullivan closed 7 points higher, while gains of around 5 points were recorded by Aluminum Co. of America and Newmont Mining. Lake Shore Mines added 3¾ points. Issues finishing 1 to 2 or more higher included Pioneer Gold, Hiram Walker, Swift & Co., Wright Hargreaves, Axton Fisher and General Tire & Rubber.

Transfers approximated 281,000 shares, compared with 375,000 for last Friday.

Germany Plans To Develop New Oil Wells

Expansion in Germany's output of petroleum may eventuate as a result of a project under consideration in that country involving the boring of from 200 to 300 new oil wells, according to a report from Consul P. J. Reveley, Leipzig, made public by the Commerce Department.

Production of petroleum in Germany, the report points out, is largely in the hands of the several large potash mining corporations. These, it is understood, have applied to the German government for assistance in financing the proposed undertaking which it is estimated will cost about 50,000,000 marks. If and when these additional wells are constructed and producing it is pointed out, Germany's requirements for gasoline and oil from foreign sources will be curtailed.

Oil has been exploited for several years from wells in Thuringia and the adjacent parts of the area, as well as from fields in northern Germany. It is expected that many of the new wells will be located in central Germany in the event the contemplated plan materializes.

Wool Futures Advance at End of Week

New York, Oct. 23.—Prices of wool top futures, after declining moderately in the earlier half of the past week, strengthened considerably and at the close on Friday showed a net advance of 13 to 15 points. Trading was in fair volume and well distributed over the nearby and winter months. Boston spots again registered a slight decline, closing at 109.5 cents as against 110.0 cents a week ago. Business in the spot market continued to be exceedingly quiet with only small amounts of tops being sold for piecing out purposes.

While futures at Antwerp were unchanged to an eighth of a penny higher, prices at Roubaix showed a much sharper gain, advancing 120 to 130 centimes during the week. At the sales in Albury and Adelaide, a good quantity of wool was offered and completely sold out the first day. Japan, Germany, France and England were the principal buyers.

Cotton Climbs $1.25 Per Bale Under Buying

December Closes at 9.28 as General Market Gains 8 to 13 Points.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—An advance of $1.25 to $1.35 per bale in cotton on general buying in response to the President's address, was followed by partial reactions today under Southern selling and realizing.

After selling up to 9.48 for December, that month eased to 9.28 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net advances of 8 to 13 points.

The opening was firm with active months selling about 25 to 26 points net higher after the call on trade and commission house buying while there also appeared to be considerable buying by houses with Liverpool, continental and Far Eastern connections.

Selling Supplies Demand.

This demand was supplied by Southern selling but reactions of 14 to 15 points brought additional buying with May selling up to 9.82 at the best and active months generally showing net gains of 26 to 27 points.

The demand tapered off during the afternoon, however, and prices weakened under increased hedging and realizing or reselling. Closing quotations were at the lowest of the day, showing reactions of about 15 to 20 points from the best on the more active positions.

Exports today 49,914 making 2,052,647 so far this season. Port receipts 57,111. U. S. port stocks 3,865,954.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm and fairly active today, closing 13 to 18 points net higher. Sales 30 contracts. Strength of cash lard and the advance in hogs, cotton and grains and President Roosevelt's declaration for sound money and higher commodity values was responsible for the upturn, causing increased covering and commission house buying. Bleachable spot nominal; October closed 4.15, December 4.40, January 4.51, March 4.73, May 4.85.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet report 282 business failures in the United States for the week ended October 19 compared with 257 the preceding week and 535 in the corresponding week last year.

J. P. Morgan & Co., paying agents, will pay 2 per cent interest on the first mortgage bonds of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway, river and gulf division, on November 1. The bonds which are an obligation of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, now being reorganized, matured May 1.

Samuel Ungerleider, partner in the firm of Fenner, Beane & Ungerleider, announced withdrawal from the firm today to assume the presidency and chairmanship of the board of Distillers & Brewers Corporation of America.

Union Carbide & Carbon Corporation reports third-quarter net income of $4,603,663, equal to 51 cents a share, compared with $1,984,918, or 22 cents a share, in the same period of 1932.

Dividend action is scheduled for this week on the following stocks, among others: American Tobacco, Burroughs Adding Machine, Coca Cola, Congoleum-Nairn, Consolidated Gas of New York, Norfolk & Western Railway, Diamond Match, Freeport Texas, Kroger Grocery and United Gas & Improvement.

National Power & Light Co. reports for the 12 months ended August 31 balance applicable to the common stock of $5,809,532, equal to $1.06 a share. For the year ended August 31, 1932, common share earnings were $1.41.

The backlog of such companies as United States Steel Corporation, Bethlehem Steel and Inland Steel will be considerably increased, according to Wall street calculations, if the railroads accept the new price for steel rails which has just been submitted by the makers. These companies, with Colorado Fuel & Iron, have a virtual monopoly in the production of steel rails. The carriers are believed ready to release orders for close to a million tons. The new price of $37.75 a ton compared with $50 previously.

The sugar melt of 13 United States refineries from January 1 to October 14 totaled 3,145,000 long tons, compared with 3,155,000 during the same period last year, the Sugar Institute, Inc., reports. Deliveries for the corresponding time were 2,950,000 tons against 3,035,00 last year.

E. G. Buckland, chairman of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, has been reelected president of the Railroad Credit Corporation. The corporation formed by the railroads to administer the "pool" obtained from certain freight revenues, is now being liquidated. Its outstanding loans to railroads total $69,218,840.

The Annalist index of business activity shows a decline, the preliminary figure for September being 76.9 against 83.4 for August and 89.4 for July. The current business recession has canceled about 40 per cent of the March-July recovery, the Annalist says.

School Children Deposit $10,332,569 in Year

New York, Oct. 23.—During the school year closing June 30, 1933, pupils enrolled in the schools of the United States deposited $10,332,569 in school savings, it was announced here today by W. Espey Albig, deputy manager of the American Bankers Association, in charge of its savings division, in his annual report on school savings activities. For the second successive year withdrawals exceeded deposits, although the excess of withdrawals over deposits was less by $600,000 this year than last, Mr. Albig says, describing the many ways in which withdrawls proved the value of funds accumulated by this form of thrift in meeting emergency requirements resulting from business conditions.

"Three years ago school savings deposits reached the high mark of $29,113,063," his report says. "In three years annual deposits in school savings have shrunk by $18,800,000, thus harking back 10 years in deposits. During the year 1922-1923 deposits amounted to $10,631,838, a sum greater by $300,000 than that deposited this year."

Man Waits 13 Years To Receive Dividends

Philadelphia, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—After waiting 13 years, Joseph P. Kerrigan believes he finally will realize dividends on the $500,000 business he purchased in 1918.

Two years before prohibition, Kerrigan bought the Gallagher & Burton wholesale liquor business. As head of the company, he is in sole possession of the secret formulae for the blending of distilled whiskies which made the firm famous.

Tanning Fluid Trade Gains 40,000 Tons

That the trend in international trade in tanning products is toward increased purchases of tanning extracts and reduction in purchases of raw products is revealed in a survey recently completed by J. G. Schnitzer of the Commerce Department's Leather, Rubber and Shoe Divison.

A study of world trade statistics showed that international trade in tanning extracts during 1932 totaled nearly 310,000 tons as compared with 270,000 tons in the preceding year. Importers are finding, Schnitzer states, that it is cheaper to import the finished extract than to obtain the logs, barks, fruit and leaves which comprise the new materials entering into tanning extracts.

Quebracho continued to be the most important tanning extract in international trade, accounting for approximately 75 per cent of total exports of tanning extracts. Argentina supplied almost the entire amount of this item, making shipments to all parts of the world, with the United States the chief purchaser.

Wattle and chestnut extracts, the report shows, followed quebracho as the most important tanning extracts in world trade. Valonia, sumac, mangrove and gambier are other tanning extracts of lesser importance.

Fruit Sprayer Invented.

Winchester, Va., Oct 23 (Spl.).—Oliver Irwin Snapp, native of Winchester and son of Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Snapp, this city, is reported to have invented a device for spraying apple and peach orchards.

U. S. Cotton Exports to Japan Rise After Indian Crop Boycott

New York, Oct. 23.—Cotton trade expectations that the boycott of Indian cotton by Japanese spinners may greatly increase Japanese takings of American cotton are being confirmed by exports of American cotton to Japan, according to the New York Cotton Exchange Service. Cotton exports from this country to Japan in the twelve weeks of this season to date are the largest for this period in the history of the cotton trade. Meanwhile, the movement of Indian cotton to Japan has been of small proportions.

The cotton exports from the United States to Japan so far this season total 461,795 bales, compared with 273,827 bales in the same period last season and a previous maximum of 345,251 bales two seasons ago.

The large exports two years ago resulted from the exceptionally large American crop in 1931 and the forward buying by Japanese interests on the prospect that Japan would depart from the gold standard. Latest advices on movement of Indian cotton to Japan cover imports by Japan in August and September of this year.

They totaled 80,000 equivalent 500-pound bales, compared with 84,000 in the same months last year and 214,000 two years ago.

The Japanese spinners have boycotted Indian cotton in retaliation for the imposition by India of a 75 per cent duty on imports of non-British cotton cloth, while the duty on British cloth is only 25 per cent. Since Japan normally uses about 1,100,000 or 1,200,000 equivalent 500-pound bales of Indian cotton per year, it has been anticipated that the boycott would greatly increase Japanese purchases of the American staple.

Latest reports from Bombay are to the effect that Japanese spinners are adhering strictly to the boycott, and it is assumed that the Indian cotton which moved to Japan during August and September comprised cotton bought by Japanese spinners before the boycott was declared last June.

Kraft-Phenix Cheese Buys Pabst Business

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Purchase of the cheese division of the Premier-Pabst Corporation, Milwaukee, by the Kraft-Phenix Corporation was announced here today by J. L. Kraft, president of Kraft-Phenix, and Harry Pearlstein, president of Pabst.

The business will be operated without interruption, continuing in the hands of Premier-Pabst until November 1, when it will be transferred to Kraft-Phenix. Kraft will take over all inventories, trademarks, patents and supplies, including one country plant at Mosling, Wis.

New Mexico Budget is Balanced.

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—During the fiscal year 1932-33, for the first time in three years, New Mexico operated on a balanced budget, figures prepared by State Treasurer C. P. Anderson revealed. Deficits were shown the two previous years. State receipts were $12,400,792.61 for 1932-33 and expenditures fell short of that figure by $291,339.08.

British Output Of Kid Leather Is Improving

Fostered by tariff protection and favored by exchange conditions, production of kid leather in Great Britain has made notable progress in the last two years, according to a report prepared in the Commerce Department's Leather, Shoe and Rubber Division.

Total British output of this item in 1930 amounted to 22,500,000 square feet; in 1932 it had increased to 27,800,000 square feet, and it is estimated that production in the first half of the current year exceeded 15,000,000 square feet.

Formerly a large purchaser of foreign kid leather, Great Britain has notably decreased its imports of this product. In 1930, British receipts amounted to 20,500,000 square feet, and in 1931 to 22,175,000 square feet. Drastic curtailment began in 1932, when imports amounted to less than 9,000,000 square feet. During the first six months of the current year kid leather imports had fallen to only 3,625,000 square feet.

That American exporters of kid leather are feeling the brunt of the new development is indicated by the fact that the United States product accounted for less than 27 per cent of the total volume of imports in the first half of 1933, compared with 47 per cent in 1932 and 67 per cent in 1930.

British exports of kid leather, the report shows, increased from 4,770,000 square feet in 1931 to 5,665,000 feet in 1932 and 3,800,000 square feet in the first half of 1933. South Africa and Canada were the chief overseas outlets for the British product.

Virginia Makes Plans To Settle Farm Debts

Richmond, Va., Oct. 23 (AP).—Machinery for the settlement of the farmers' perplexing debt problems was agreed upon today at a meeting of Virginia agricultural leaders with Gov. Pollard and a representative of the Federal Farm Credit Administration.

Acting on the recommendation of the meeting, Gov. Pollard announced that he would appoint a State farm debt committee to head debt conciliation activities. His appointments to this committee will be made in conference with John R. Kutcheson, director of the extension division of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Virginia Apple Leaders Wage Cedar Rust War

Winchester, Va., Oct. 23 (AP).—Plans are under way for the resumption of the "Cedar Rust War" in Frederick County for the protection of apple orchards.

W. S. Hough, entomologist in charge of the Winchester research laboratory here, said a general war on red cedars throughout the Shenandoah Valley is necessary to properly protect the orchards.

Danville Bank Clearings Improve Under NRA

Danville, Va., Oct. 23 (Spl.).—Evidence that the national recovery act is improving conditions is reflected in the bank clearing statement for Danville showing a gain of $3,000,000 during the third quarter of 1933 compared with the same period a year ago.

The clearings for the quarter amounted to $15,603,788.79 against $12,535,832.62 during the same period last year.

Wheat Climb On Roosevel Farm Pledg

Profit-Taking Holds Ri Under Limit; Other Grains Advance.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—Soaring grain prices today accompani buying enthusiasm over Preside Roosevelt's address, especially h pledges of higher agricultur values and of a gold control plan.

Wheat Closes Strong.

Wheat closed strong, within cent of the day's apex, 3⅞ to 4 cents up from Saturday's finis corn and oats both 2½ to 3 cen advanced, and provisions unchang to a rise of 25 cents.

Notable scarcity of wheat offe ings was apparent much of the da sellers being wary and giving pa ticular attention to the President words referring to the administr tion's purpose to raise farm pric further: "If we can not do this o way, we will do it another. Do we will."

Aside from the President's a nouncement of a policy of high prices for farm products, interest grain traders centered on his go control program, which leading e perts here construed as likely accomplish in a gradual manner th same effects as a revaluation of th dollar.

East Leads Buying.

Eastern houses were the most a gressive buyers of wheat. Price jumped the moment trading bega and despite numerous fluctuatio pursued a vigorous general upwar course throughout the day. Amon contributing sources of strengt was announcement that hearin had been arranged with a view lifting United States import duti on rye.

Another stimulating factor w action of the Winnipeg whea market, which for weeks past unt today had consistently been a dra on values here.

Corn and oats followed the lead ership of wheat. Husking return were reported disappointing in Ill nois and other important corn terr tory.

Panama Builds New Rice Plant For Farmers

The Government of Panama is planning to assist rice growers in the republic by purchasing and installing a plant for the complete processing of rice, according to Acting Commercial Attache Cyril Grilley, Panama City, in a report to the Commerce Department.

The mill will include all machinery for producing a polished rice ready for market, together with one portable thresher. It is planned to house the mill in a building 2[illegible] feet in width by 75 feet in length. It will be operated by electric current with the exception of the cane faction unit which will use crude oil, wood, or refuse from the waste product of the plant.

Production of 1,500 pounds of clean, high-polish rice per hour is called for in plans for the proposed mill. The grain to be milled is of average consistency and the milling can be limited to four sizes. The portable thresher will have a capacity of 800 pounds per hour and is to be equipped with a gasoline motor of approximately 6 horsepower.

Steel Mills Cut Capacity Run To 34 Per Cent

Industry Said to Look for U. S. Support as Rally Aid.

Cleveland, Oct. 23.—With steelworks operations down 6 points to 34 per cent, apparently headed lower this week, and resumption of automotive buying on a large scale not in prospect for another month, the industry is looking more to Government support for a rally, states the magazine, Steel.

Rail mills are understood to be submitting a price of $38, a concession of $2 a ton, for the 844,000 tons which Coordinator Eastman has assembled for distribution. Public works projects also are maturing more rapidly and are regarded as another source of demand which may apply the brakes to diminishing steel production.

The combination of labor troubles in the automotive industry, retarding new models, and the heavy stocking of material prior to October 15, temporarily has closed that outlet for steel. Sheet mills recently working to capacity to complete low-price third quarter contracts for the industry, now are down to an average of one-thrid their former rate. October production of motorcars is falling below 150,000 units.

Railroad Buying Low.

Railroad buying is at the lowest point of the year, both as regards new material and equipment, a fact which leads some equipment builders to anticipate substantial purchases before the close of the year. Norfolk & Western, on whose inquiry for 10,000 tons of rails producers bid $40 a ton, is understood to be awaiting the Government's action.

Government loans for public projects are being expedited, and though delays are being encountered between the time States and municipalities award contracts and when approval is given at Washington, heavy steel tonnages are accumulating for placing with the mills shortly.

Structural shape awards for the week, 6,332 tons, reflect the slowness in the final purchasing of steel. Bookings for September, as reported by the American Institute of Steel Construction, Inc., were 30 per cent under the August total. A substantial tonnage is required for a Government airport development at Middletown, Pa., while Kansas City, Mo., is taking bids on 5,000 tons for an auditorium.

Steel for Ships.

In other current Government work, about 6,000 tons of steel is being provided for Coast Guard vessels, and 8,200 tons is due for award next month for two cruisers.

An $8,000,000 Federal loan for sanitation work at Chicago releases a large tonnage of pipe, producers agreeing to furnish the material at prices they bid several months ago, with additional compensation to be determined later. Cast pipe makers are competing for 25,000 tons for Mexico City and 12,000 tons for Puerto Rico. Providence, R. I., has placed 6,000 tons.

Higher prices so far have meant little to the steel industry, as consumers generally are covered for the fourth quarter at the lower figures prevailing late last month, and new orders are negligible. Nevertheless, the trend of the market continues upward. Discounts on bolts, nuts and rivets have been reduced. Sheet piling is up $2 a ton. Warehouse prices, under the new basing system, are $3 to $10 a ton higher. Another increase of $3 a ton on steel bars is being considered, and tin plate makers are contemplating new schedules.

In sharp contrast to this movement, scrap prices are easier, a fact which is contributing to the slack demand for pig iron, heavy breakable cast scrap being available in the Pittsburgh market at $11.50, compared with $18 for pig iron. Domestic furnace interests are being permitted to offer concessions to pipe producers bidding against foreign interests in the world markets.

Further revisions of the steel code are being considered as the close of the 90-day trial period, November 19, approaches. Many more supplementary regulations are being prepared.

In practically all districts steelworks operations declined during the past week. In Cleveland the rate was down 13 points to 33 per cent; New England, 13, to 82; Youngstown, 6, to 51; Pittsburgh, 5, to 35; Buffalo, 5, to 24; Chicago, 4, to 45; eastern Pennsylvania, 3, to 23½. In the Wheeling district operations advanced 2 points to 47 per cent; Detroit remained at 55 per cent, and Birmingham at 30.

Tin plate mill operations in the Pittsburgh district were up 10 points to 95 per cent, on heavier specifications from can makers.

Steel's iron and steel composite is unchanged at $31.59, and the finished steel composite remains at $59.20, while the scrap index is down 17 cents to $10.29.

R. Y. Stuart, Forestry Chief, Dies in Plunge

Falls Seven Stories From Office; Believed to Have Lost Balance.

Maj. Robert Young Stuart, 50, chief of the United States Forestry Service, plunged seven floors to his death from an office in the Forestry Building, 930 F street northwest, yesterday morning.

Office associates and members of his family said they believed he lost his balace while opening a window.

Maj. Stuart was one of the Nation's leading experts on timber and lumber. He played an important part in the formation and location of various Civilian Conservation Corps camps. During the World War he was the officer in charge of obtaining lumber for the American Expeditionary Forces.

William Terry, Forest Service messenger, reported to police that at 8:10, a. m. he saw Maj. Stuart crash on the roof of a parked automobile. Terry was parking his machine in the rear of the building at the time. Maj. Stuart died while being taken to Emergency Hospital. Doctors said his skull and neck had been fractured.

Alone in Office.

The only other person in the building at the time was Roy Headley, assistant forestry chief. He was on another floor, however.

Expressing regret over the tragedy, Ovid Butler, executive secretary of the American Forestry Association, expressed hope that the President and the Secretary of Agriculture would act immediately to appoint a technical forester, probably from the ranks of the Forest Service, to fill Maj. Stuart's post.

In addition to administering to 160,000,000 acres of National forests and directing the cooperative forestry program between the Federal Government and the States under the Clark-McNary act, the chief forester of the United States, Mr. Butler pointed out, is charged with the major administration of the Civilian Conservation Corps and the emergency control work now being done in forests. Mr. Butler said that the new chief would be responsible for the forest road and trail building program under the Public Works Administration.

Officials Deeply Shocked.

Officials in all branches of the Department of Agriculture were deeply shocked to hear of Maj. Stuart's death.

Secretary Wallace was in New York when word reached him by telephone.

"I am profoundly moved," he said. "Maj. Stuart was carrying tremendous responsibilities in connection with the emergency program. His death is a great loss to all, both personally and officially. He was an efficient, highly respected public servant, not only in the national tasks of rehabilitating our forests, but also in the new and strenuous work of guiding the forestry work of Civilian Conservation Corps and of helping with many phases of the public works program."

Entering the forest service in 1906 as a forest assistant immediately after his graduation from Yale School of Forestry, Maj. Stuart became chief forester in 1928. For the past 27 years—with the exception of the war period when he was an officer in the Forestry Engineers branch of the A. E. F., and for a time when he was deputy commissioner and later commissioner of forestry in Pennsylvania—Maj. Stuart was engaged in conservation work for the Federal Government.

Grew Up in Service.

He literally grew up in the service, entering just one year after it was established under President Theodore Roosevelt.

"Maj. Stuart made lasting and noteworthy contributions to American forestry," Assistant Secretary Tugwell said. "Under his direction we have seen the development of a cooperative policy in forestry, a policy which coordinates the activities of Federal, State and private interests in timber and water conservation."

Maj. Stuart was a native of Cumberland County, Pa., and an alumnus of Dickinson College. He was a member of the Tri-State Delaware River Commission from 1923 to 1927 and was chairman of the Pennsylvania Susquicentennial Commission in 1926.

He also served as a member of the National Park and Planning Commission. He was prominent in the affairs of the Society of American Foresters, a member of the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, a Mason and an Episcopalian. He was also a member of the Cosmos Club.

Selected Camp Sites.

For the past few months the task of approving camp sites throughout the country was one of Maj. Stuart's duties in connection with the corps.

Members of his family said Maj. Stuart had been in ill health for about a year. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Janet Wilson Stuart, and two daughters, Janet C. and Helen Stuart.

Funeral services will be held at 8 a. m. tomorrow at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase, with burial in Carlisle, Pa.

W.N.Doak Dies; Masons Plan Funeral Today

Former Labor Secretary Won Fame by Fight for Shorter Hours.

Less than eight months after leaving the post of Secretary of Labor in the Hoover Cabinet, William Nuckles Doak died at his home in MacLean, Va., yesterday. He was 51 years old.

Masonic funeral services will be held at the home at 11 a. m., today. The body will remain in a local mausoleum until arrangements are completed for burial at his old home at Rural Retreat, Va.

Doak died of heart disease, following an attack several weeks ago.

Born at Rural Retreat, December 12, 1882, he was the first American-born Secretary of Labor. He assumer that position November 28, 1930, succeeding James J. Davis, who resigned upon his election as Senator from Pennsylvania.

Opposed by A. F. of L.

Doak had been mentioned for the Cabinet post at the beginning of the Hoover administration, but the American Federation of Labor opposed his appointment and Hoover named Davis. When Davis resigned he appointed Doak in spite of opposition from the federation.

Before becoming Secretary of Labor, Doak had been legislative representative in Washington of the railway brotherhoods and after his retirement from the Cabinet resumed this work.

He started as a trainman in Virginia and in 1908, at the age of 26, he became general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen on the Norfolk & Western system, serving until 1916. From then on he moved upward in labor councils. Opposition from the Federation of Labor arose from the fact the railroad brotherhoods are not affiliated with that organization.

As a Cabinet member, Doak fought for further immigration restrictions and made a campaign for a shorter work day and a shorter work week for labor. He took the lead by putting a five-day week in effect in his department.

Won High Masonic Honor.

As leader of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, he went through every form of conference, mediation and arbitration proceedings, before the United States Labor Board. In some instances he acted as sole arbitrator. He was a member of the bipartisan Railroad Board of Adjustment, which settled more than 3,000 disputes without a deadlock or dissenting opinion.

A member of the Masonic Order, he was chosen by the Supreme Council, Scottish Rite, Southern Jurisdiction, at the convention here last Friday, to receive the honorary thirty-third degree. He was a member of Pleasant Lodge, No. 63, F. & A. M., at Roanoke, and of Kazin Temple of the Mystic Shrine there. He was also a member of Kallipolis Grotto, No. 15, Veiled Prophets, in Washington. He received the degree of doctor of humanity from Lincoln Memorial University on November 11, 1931.

Surviving are his widow, the former Miss Emma Marie Cricher, of Ironton, Ohio; a nephew, Eugene Siegel, and another nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lane Cricher, of Cherrydale.

Doak Lauded by Hoover.

Palo Alto, Calif., Oct. 23 (AP).—Commenting upon the death of William N. Doak, his Secretary of Labor, former President Herbert Hoover said here today:

"Mr. Doak rose from brakeman to Secretary of Labor by his own effort and lifelong devotion to labor, but it is not so much for his accomplishment and devotion to public service that his friends remember him at this moment as for his sterling character and his loyal friendships."

U. F. Espaillat, Dominican Aid Dies Here at 53

Legation Counselor Burial in Rock Creek Cemetery, Probably Thursday.

Senor Don Ulises F. Espaillat, counselor for the legation of the Dominican Republic, died early yesterday at Washington Sanitarium after an illness of several weeks from heart trouble.

Senor Espaillat was one of the best-known diplomats in Washington, having been on duty here for about 10 years. He was born 53 years ago in Santiago, Dominican Republic, where his grandfather was first president.

He is survived by the widow, who was Miss Grace Rutherford, daughter of the late Gen. Allen Rutherford, and by several brothers and sisters in the Dominican Republic.

Funeral services have not been arranged, but burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery, probably Thursday.

Stratosphere Flight Delayed by High Wind

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—A probability of high winds tomorrow caused another delay today in plans for the stratosphere flight of Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle and Maj. Chester L. Fordney.

The balloonists had expected to cut loose from the earth at 5 a. m. Tuesday. Settle said the flight will be impossible for several days.

Dr. J. Lewis Browne, 67, Noted Composer, Dies

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—Dr. J. Lewis Browne, internationally known organist, composer and director of music in the Chicago public schools, died of a heart attack today.

He was born at London in 1866 and came to this country at the age of 6. Educated in this country and abroad, he took his doctorate of music at the University of the State of New York in 1902.

Men and Girl, Accused In Abduction, Returned

Beaumont, Tex., Oct. 23 (AP).—Officers from Newcastle, Ind., arrived here today to return Ed Manger, Russell Ledbetter and Genevieve Sanders, held on robbery charges after their arrest here Friday.

The charges grew out of the abduction of three taxi drivers at three cities en route to Texas.

C. F. Trotter Funeral Rites Set Tomorrow

Baptist Church Service for Former Aid to Postal Chiefs.

Funeral services for Charles F. Trotter, former Deputy First Assistant Postmaster General and superintendent of the postoffice service, who died Sunday will be held at the National Baptist Memorial Church at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The body will be interred at Arlington.

Mr. Trotter, born in Marietta, Ohio, was a resident of Washington more than 40 years. He retired from the Government service in July, 1932, after 48 years of service.

He became an observer in the United States Weather Bureau in 1884, but most of his public service was in the Postoffice Department, in which he served successively as superintendent of divisions of postoffice quarters, assistant superintendent of divisions and allowances, assistant postmaster at Denver, Deputy First Assistant Postmaster General and superintendent of the postoffice service. He served on many special committees and commissions dealing with important problems of the postal service. Notable among these was the commission which in 1898 took over the postal service in Puerto Rico from the Spanish government and brought it under United States control.

Mr. Trotter is survived by his wife, Mary Iona Trotter; a daughter, Mrs. Samuel H. Baker, of Philadelphia; a stepdaughter, Miss Lester Lee Powell; two sisters, Mrs. D. C. Slums Drive Here Is Given New Impetus Reichelderfer Is Named Head of Housing Committee.

District, Congress and Public Works Unit to Join Forces.

Coordination of efforts by the District, Congress, the Public Works Administration, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and local social agencies in the war on slums here was speeded yesterday during the most active day since the campaign opened.

Commissioner Reichelderfer was named head of a committee to advise on the slum celarance and low-cost housing program and harmonize the work of local groups working on the problem.

Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee expressed belief the drive would be carried out successfully and added it would not interfere with the alley dwelling bill awaiting passage by the House.

U. S. Only to Show Way.

Robert D. Kohn, head of the public works housing division, said the Government can not entirely abolish slums, but only set up a demonstration to be followed by municipalities and private agencies, as he called for the cooperation of the Council of Social Agencies.

John Nolen, jr., city planner of the planning commission, was named executive vice chairman of Commissioner Reichelderfer's committee and will head the subgroup gathering data to be submitted soon to the Public Works Administration.

It will be the purpose of the committee to determine what lands to recommend for purchase with public works funds which may be advanced to the District for slum eradication. In making applications, the committee will have to make a statement as to whether the projects are part of a larger plan or long-range program of development and, if so, furnish descriptions of other parts of the program.

Committee to Grow.

Intended originally only as a conference between Senator King and Mr. Kohn, the meeting resolved itself into a broad session and resulted in the committee's formation. The committee will be enlarged to represent citizens as well as officials, Nolen said. Whether it will take the place of the group of 10 appointed last week and headed by Frederic A. Delano was not disclosed.

The part which the Council of Social Agencies will play in the ever broadening housing campaign was explained at its first fall meeting yesterday by Mr. Kohn, Nolen, John Ihlder, chairman of the council's housing committee, and Louis Justement, of Allied Architects.

Acquisition of land is the most serious problem confronting the Govenrment, Kohn said. Exorbitant prices are still being asked for property unfit for decent living, he said.

Although the Federal Government is attempting only to pave the way, every contract made so far with limited dividend corporations sponsoring slum clearance and housing projects contains a recapture clause, Mr. Kohn said. Thus, he pointed out, the United States eventually may reclaim the projects if it so desires.

Slayers' Marriage Pleas to Be Heard

Commissioners Will Act on Requests Today.

Pleas for marriages by two colored slayers awaiting electrocution will be heard by the District Commissioners this morning at a private hearing.

The Rev. James L. Pinn, colored Baptist minister, who ministers to condemned members of his race in the District Jail, will present the pleas. The names of the men were withheld by public welfare officials pending decision.

One is to die in the electric chair Friday. He is the father of two children by his common law wife and wants the benefit of clergy. District laws recognize common law marriages. The other will be put to death on November 29.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride told George S. Wilson, director of public welfare, that there was no legal bar to the marriages. He refrained, however, from advising on the question of policy involved. Mr. Wilson would not say what he would recommend.

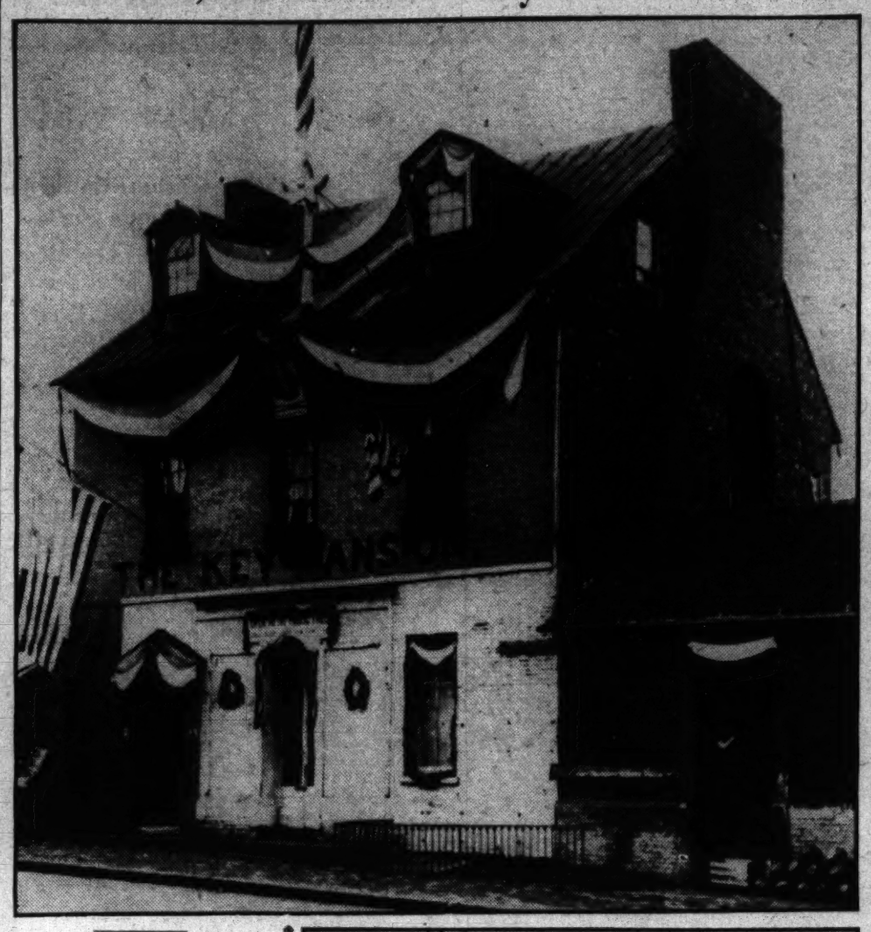
Slugged Motorist Awarded $2,000

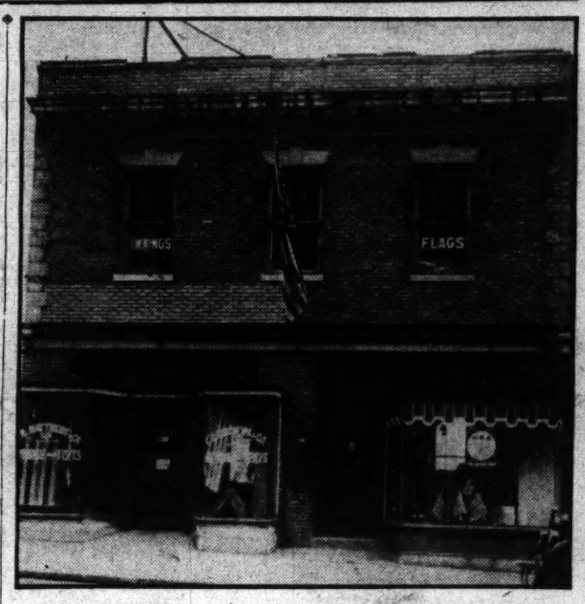
Jury Gives Verdict in Row Over Auto Crash.

John Edward Bromwell, 1229 Irving street northwest, yesterday was awarded $2,000 by a jury in District Supreme Court for injuries received during an alleged attack by Lawrence J. Auth; 450 Sixth street southwest, and Michael J. Durso, 1225 H street northeast.

Bromwell said they beat him at Connecticut avenue and S street northwest November 22, 1931, after his automobile grazed their machine. He sued for $25,000, citing the loss of four teeth and an injured eye.

Planners Want to Restore Francis Scott Key House, But Kinsman Says It Can't Be Done





Post Staff Photos

Upper, Francis Scott Key Mansion as it appeared 25 years ago when plans first were made to restore its original splendor. Lower, as the site appears today, with a new front and with only the foundation and two of the original walls remaining.

Can Be "Reproduced," Not "Replaced," Says Col. Key-Smith.

Now that the National Capital Park and Planning Commission has approved plans to restore Francis Scott Key House at 3518 M street northwest, and actual work only awaits an allotment by the Public Works Administration, it appears that the historic structure can not be restored.

Such was the opinion voiced yesterday by Lieut. Col. Francis Scott Key, great-grandson of the national anthem's author. Originator of a movement more than a quarter of a century ago to make a shrine of the Georgetown home—a movement which failed—he is at once hopeful and downcast.

"If they will not call it restoration, all right," he announced emphatically. "The house was practically demolished years ago. The only things left standing are the east and south walls and foundation."

Col. Key-Smith, whose mother was the daughter of the patriot's eldest son, wants the work called a "reproduction of the original" or something besides "restoration."

His statement that not enough of the Key House remains to restore it, conflicts with a report made by the contractor who remodeled it 20 years ago.

Mansion Office Razed.

The one-story office building which adjoined Key's house was razed during the "remodeling," and with it the chimney, once called "the largest outside brick chimney in the world."

This superlative was applied by Charles Weisgerber, who rehabilitated the home of Betsy Ross and attempted a similar role in 1908 and 1909 to restore the Key Mansion.

A mansion it was in 1803. Within it were born all of Francis Scott Key's 11 children. It was this home which he left on September 3, 1814, for Baltimore to intercede for Dr. William Beans, a prisoner of the British.

When he returned, a niche in American history had been carved by him through his emotional inscription—"The Star-Spangled Banner."

Key and his family moved out of the house in 1818 because an altered canal encroached upon his gardan. They moved to a house on C street, which was torn down years ago.

First Attempt Failed.

The first attempt to save Key House came in 1907, when the Francis Scott Key Memorial Association was formed. Among its leaders were Admiral Dewey, Admiral Winfield Scott Schley and Henry B. MacFarland.

Public indifference doomed their three-year plan, called for the raising of a $15,000 purchase price.

New plans blossomed a few years ago when the National Capital Park and Planning Commission purchased the house. Arno B. Cammerer, whose national park office will supervise the home's restoration (or rehabilitation), is expected soon to apply for a public works sum not to exceed $25,000.

Disgusted with its present condition, Col. Key-Smith has not been inside the place since he turned back the keys when the memorial association's mission failed.

225 Will Be Hired By Accounting Office

About 225 clerks and auditors will be hired soon by the General Accounting Office, officials predicted yesterday.

They will be paid from a $506,000 public works fund allotted for auditing NRA expenditures. The jobs would last as long as the Recovery Administration exists, at least two years. The employes probably will include some of 100 dismissed in July. Most of the others, officials predicted, will be chosen from civil service ranks.

Note Holders Of Shoreham Lose in Court

Fail in Plea for Review of Ruling Involving $800,000 Claim.

Possibility that persons who hold more than $800,000 in first trust notes, secured by a "released" first trust of $2,250,000 on the Shoreham Office Building, would receive their money, vanished yesterday when the United States Supreme Court refused to entertain a petition for a review of lower court findings.

Litigation to have the "released" first trust declared a valid lien on the building was sponsored by a large group of persons who owned the mortgage notes. They contended the second loan, consisting of a $1,600,000 first trust and a $400,000 second trust, from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., should be held secondary to their earlier loan.

The District Supreme Court ruled that all the conditions of the mortgage had been complied with, and that the life insurance company held valid liens to the extent of $2,000,000.

The firm of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey, which handled the financing of the building, received money for refunding the original loan, but failed to pay $800,000 of the $2,250,000. As trustees under the loan, Luther A. Swartzell and Edmund D. Rheem were empowered to "release" the loan, the courts held.

The refinancing was in connection with purchase of the building by Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, and an associate, Joseph I. Cromwell, who now hold the building in the name of the Shoreham Investment Co.

Justice F. D. Letts, District Supreme Court, dismissed the petition to reinstate the original trust. The District Court of Appeals, in affirming the decision, said the original trust was actually paid in cash to the "agents provided by that instrument to receive it and, so paid, was duly earmarked in a special account in a reliable bank for the use and benefit" of noteholders.

Clerk, 18, Shot After Getting Threat Note

Felled by Bullet in H Street Store; Witnesses Tell of Man Fleeing.

An 18-year-old clerk for an electrical store at 1329 H street northeast was shot and critically wounded last night, less than three weeks after receiving a threatening note.

While Charles Howlin, of 1233 Maryland avenue northeast, lay near death in Casualty Hospital, police were searching for a well-dressed man who entered the store and, without warning, shot him.

A few minutes before he was shot, Howlin telephoned his employer, James E. Collins, and asked if he might go home. On the hospital operating table, Howlin told police he had switched off an office light when the shot was fired.

Police said they were inclined to believe, however, the shooting was accidental, although Howlin denied he knew who fired the shot.

"I just turned off the light," he said, "and turned toward the door. I saw the flash of a gun. I thought it came from outside."

The threat note, police were told, warned its recipient to leave town "or else." It was thrown away.

"Howlin asked me at the time what I was going to do about it," Collins declared. "I thought some one was playing a joke and laughingly discarded it. It may have no connection, but I told police about receiving it."

Howlin was felled by a .32 caliber bullet. It pierced his right arm and lodged in his abdomen. Physicians immediately prepared for an emergency operation.

Investigators pointed out that whoever shot Howlin was inside the store. An empty shell was on the floor. An unused bullet lay on a small settee. This led police to the accident theory.

"He might have been talking to a friend who was showing him the gun," said Dective Sergeant Joe Waldron. "After the shot was fired accidentally, his friend might have become frightened and fled."

Passersby, attracted by the shot, reported seeing a well-dressed man, about 35 years old, run from the store.

Bank Merger Frees Assets Of $750,000

Mt. Vernon, Washington Mechanics Savings to Consolidate.

35 Per Cent of Frozen Deposits Will Be Paid at Once.

Depositors of the Mount Vernon Savings Bank will receive $750,000 upon the merger of that institution and the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, approved yesterday by the Mount Vernon board of directors.

Coincident with this action was announcement that a local committee for the Fifth Federal Reserve District deposit liquidation committee had begun examination of the Commercial National Bank, one of two local banks falling within the present scope of the new Federal Deposit Liquidation Board's powers.

Belief that the board's powers will be broadened to assist banks in receivership prior to January 1, 1933, was expressed following receipt of letters from C. B. Merriam, board chairman, by 12 Federal Reserve District committee chairmen.

Loans to Be Considered.

"Later on," they said, "it is expected that loans will be considered to enable receivers of banks closed prior to January 1, 1933, to make dividend distribution to depositors."

Four local banks in this classification and the dividends they have paid to date are: Departmental, 65 per cent; Bank of Brightwood, 45 per cent; International Exchange Bank, 16 2-3 per cent, and North Capitol Savings Bank, 12½ per cent. Opinion also has been expressed that the board's power may be extended later to banks under conservators.

Commercial National Bank has paid a 20 per cent dividend.

The local subcommittee of the District liquidating committee is composed of Hilleary G. Hoskinson, a vice president of Riggs National Bank, chairman; Howard Moran, vice president, American Security & Trust Co.; Frank J. Stryker, president, Columbia National Bank; James P. Schick, president, National Mortgage & Investment Corporation, and Alfred H. Lawson, a vice president and real estate officer, Washington Loan & Trust Co.

McMullan to Assist.

Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank and chairman of the Fifth Federal Reserve District deposit liquidating committee under the board, has named J. R. McMullan, an assistant vice president of Riggs National Bank, as his committee assistant. Mr. McMullan, prior to association with Riggs National Bank, was a national bank examiner. The reserve district committee will meet here today.

Under the plan approved by directors of Mount Vernon Savings Bank yesterday, depositors of that institution will receive not less than 35 per cent of their deposits on the opening of the merged institutions.

Under the plan, depositors of Mount Vernon Bank also will be called on for waivers, in which they agree that not more than 65 per cent will be trusteed and for which they will receive certificates indicating trusteed balances. Waivers representing 75 per cent of the total deposits of the bank must be obtained.

Both banks also will sell an additional $200,000 worth of stock for the consolidated institution at $20 per share. It will have a par value of $10 and a surplus of $10.

Halloween Queen Selection Near

4 More Enter; Committee Meets Today.

Time and place for the selection of the queen of the civic Halloween celebration will be announced at a meeting of the general Halloween committee at 4 p. m. today in the Greater National Capital committee offices, Edgar Morris, chairman, announced.

Morris also has a meeting of the parade judges before the meeting, to complete plans awarding prizes to winners in the various events of the parade.

The addition of four new candidates for the queen contest brings the number of entries to a dozen. The new candidates are Lucille Faris, 3206 Park place; Lucile E. Taylor, 1328 Fairmont street; Marguerite M. Hendley, 1324 Fairmont street, and Byrle Shaner, 4318 Thirteenth street, all entered by the Mid City Citizens' Association.

Press Club Begins Bridge Era Tonight

Dinner Honoring Expert Inaugurates Series.

E. Hall Downs, author of many works on bridge, will be the honor guest at a dinner tonight in the National Press Club.

All club bridge players have been invited by Champion John Williams to assemble at 6:30 p. m. for the dinner. Beginning at 8 p. m. the winter series of open bridge nights will be inaugurated. Trophies will be presented winners each night, with a cup to be contended for at the end of the tournament.

Bridge play will be in charge of Miss Louise Guest.

Major Finds a Dog's Life Is Just That at White House

He Cuts a Few Capers and Goes to Hospital, Leg Broken.

Major, the White House police dog, is in the hospital again.

This time he has a broken leg. How the leg was broken is one of the White House mysteries which may never be solved.

Mrs. Roosevelt thought he had a sprained leg and nursed him for more than a week, changing the compresses often. Major did not recover under the gentle ministrations of the First Lady, so he was taken to a hospital. His leg was X-rayed and the fracture found. Mrs. Roosevelt says Major went into his nook under the spiral south portico staircase and came out limping.

Meantime, a playful Great Dane puppy is taking Major's place as watchdog of the White House. This dog, which came from New York State as a gift to the President, has in turn been given by him to Jackie Greenway, the 10-year-old son of the new Representative from Arizona, Isabelle Greenway.

Jackie and his mother are the guests of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman in Georgetown and, of course, they can not take an extra guest there even though it is only a puppy. So the President and Mrs. Roosevelt are "looking out" for the young Great Dane. Jackie has called him President and has written President Roosevelt a letter of thanks.

John H. Dwight Will Is Filed

Bulk of $525,000 Estate Is Left in Trust for Wife and Daughter.

Income from an estate valued at $525,000 will go to Mrs. Olive M. Dwight and her daughter, Mary Isabel Dwight, of 2101 Connecticut avenue northwest, it was revealed yesterday when a petition for the probate of the will of John H. Dwight, husband of Mrs. Dwight, was filed in District Supreme Court.

The estate consists of $5,000 in real estate, insurance of $180,000, and stocks and bonds, together with minor personal effects, of $240,000. Mr. Dwight, who died in Omer, Mich., last July, named the Bankers Trust Co., New York, as executor.

The will provided for a $10,000 bequest for Mabel Mitchell White, Mrs. Dwight's sister; $10,000 each to two nephews, Richard Mitchell White and Frank M. White; $10,000 to Martha K. Hagen, a servant; an annuity of $2,400 to Mrs. Mary Dwight, his mother; and annuities of $1,800 to Elizabeth B. Dwight and Carolyn D. MacBurney, his sisters, and an aunt, Belle B. Chapman.

The rest of the estate is to be held in trust for the wife and daughter, the latter to be paid one-fourth of the income when she marries or becomes of age. Attorney Paul Sleman represented the estate.

Policeman Faces Desertion Charge

M'Carron Absent Without Leave, Says Superior.

Charges of desertion from the police force were recommended yesterday against Policeman George C. McCarron, Ninth Precinct, who has been absent without leave since Wednesday. The recommendation was made by Inspector Albert J. Headley.

McCarron, according to the inspector, called his precinct Saturday, saying his car was broken down "somewhere in Virginia," and he would be "late for work." No word has been heard from him since.

Assigned to the force in February, 1928, McCarron, who is 39, first saw service on the police vice squad. In October, 1930, he was fined two days' pay for being absent two days.

Justice Attorney In Chase Fined $75

Hudson Pleads Guilty in Northeast Crash.

John MacConico Hudson, 37, an attorney for the Department of Justice, was fined $75 by Judge Isaac Hitt in Traffic Court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to reckless driving.

Hudson was arrested Saturday night and charged at Fifth Precinct Station with driving while drunk. His car figured in a three-cornered smash-up at Thirtieth street and Bladensburg road northeast after a wild automobile chase from the Maryland State line, with police in pursuit, police said. Hudson is alleged to have driven from a barbecue stand without paying his bill.

Three companions with Hudson were Dorothy Burleigh, 18, of Clarendon, Va.; Frances B. Sinnott, 23, of Hailston, Va., and J. J. Jackson, 1614 K street, who were treated at Casualty Hospital for minor injuries, police said.

Donovan Expects Tax Rate to Stand

Auditor Replies to Fears Expressed by Lusk.

The $39,485,000 budget proposed for the District of Columbia for 1935 may upset the present $1.50 tax rate, but the best information available indicates the rate will not change, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, said yesterday in commenting on a statement made public by Rufus Lusk, director of the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association.

Mr. Lusk said the prospective restoration of the 15 per cent cut in District employes' salaries and possibility of expenditure of additional District funds for public relief would change the $488,000 surplus at the end of the year to a deficit.

Maj. Donovan said several contingencies might upset present calculations. District officials are expecting additional relief money from the Federal relief fund.

"Fakes" Fought In Insurance

District Official to Push Campaign Following Two Convictions.

A drive to eliminate "fake" insurance activities here was announced yesterday by Herbert L. Davis, District superintendent of life insurance, who pointed to the conviction of two men in Police Court Friday as only the beginning of a determined battle against illegal insurance activities.

Adoption of a measure by the next session of Congress requiring all insurance companies here to have local agents who could be sued in local courts in insurance matters also will be urged by Mr. Davis. This proposal was defeated during the special session because of pressing national affairs, he said.

The drive against illegal practices in the insurance business was started several days ago at the direction of the District commissioners. Through the cooperation of Corporation Counsel Bride and Mr. Davis, the convictions in Police Court were made possible. The men were charged with failing to have a license to do business in the District. This phase of the drive will be continued, Mr. Davis said.

Youth Admits Stealing Watch From Senator

John Kincaid, 20, an accountant from Minneapolis, was held for the grand jury without bond by Judge Thomas P. McMahon in Police Court yesterday, when he pleaded guilty to stealing a watch and $34 from the hotel room of Senator John Erikson, of Montana.

Erikson, appearing in court as a witness, identified the watch police found on Kincaid when he was arrested a few days ago.

Two on Trial In Fraternity House Blaze

U. S. Seeks to Prove G. W. U. Students Set Fire.

Defense Contends Pair Were Far Away From Scene.

Unfolding of a chain of circumstantial evidence by which the Government expects to prove two George Washington students guilty of attempting to burn down the Sigma Chi fraternity house at 1312 N street northwest, July 9, began in District Supreme Court yesterday before Justice Peyton Gordon.

The students, Alfred H. Smith, president of the fraternity, and Edward J. Parlton, a pledge, are charged with having set the building on fire in two places while 17 other members were asleep. Firemen rescued several students who were clinging to window sills.

Through Assistant United States Attorney John J. Sirica, the Government yesterday produced testimony to show that fire was started on the first floor and in the attic. Contents of a 10-gallon can, with some gasoline in it, found in a garage in the rear of the house, allegedly was used in setting the fires.

Sirica declared he expected to show that this can was filled with gasoline at a Southwest filling station just prior to the outbreak of the fire. Attendants of the station are to be called in an attempt to identify the defendants as the gasoline purchasers.

Defense Attorneys Percy H. Marshall and Fred J. Rice, former basketball coach at Catholic University, in summing up their line of defense, told the jury they expected to show that shortly after the fire alarm was turned in both Parlton and Smith were 62 miles from Washington in a disabled car.

The attorneys intimated they would call garage men from Gunpowder Falls, Md., to testify the two were in the Maryland town shortly after 5 a. m. The fire was discovered about 4:10 a. m.

Thirty-two witnesses have been named by the prosecution, while defense attorneys said they would require a score.

Alumnae to Elect.

Officers will be elected tomorrow night by the Washington Alumnae Society of Sophie Newcomb College at the home of Miss Josephine White, 2955 Newark street northwest.

Clash of Unbeaten Army and Yale Elevens Holds East's Interest

Elis to Meet Conquerors Of Illini

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Collisions between the undefeated Yale and Army football teams in the East and the unbeaten Iowa and Minnesota elevens in the Midwest will feature this week's slate of bang-up sectional and intersectional gridiron encounters.

More than 75,000 fans are expected to swarm into the Yale Bowl at New Haven on Saturday to see Reggie Root's promising Eli outfit try to fight off the invasion of Gar Davidson's crack Cadet combination, fresh from its triumph over Illinois. Spectacular triple-threat performances by Capt. Bob Lassiter, of Yale, and Jack Buckler, of the Cadets, are expected to feature the contest.

At Minneapolis, a capacity crowd will witness the fascinating spectacle of Iowa, ugly duckling of the Big Ten for the last five years, trying to maintain its 1933 conference supremacy against mighty Minnesota, which was strong enough to topple the apparently invincible Pittsburgh Panthers.

Alabama vs. Fordham.

While these and other big-time sectional melees are underway, several heated intersectional contests will be fought out. Alabama's unbeaten eleven invades the undefeated Fordham Rams at New York, giving Jim Crowley's Fordham charges their first major test. Washington and Lee, conqueror of Kentucky, marches on Princeton's Tigers, who put in their bid for Eastern supremacy by making a meal out of the Columbia Lion.

Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, both smarting after Saturday's defeats by Carnegie Tech and Minnesota, will collide at South Bend, each fighting desperately for a comeback. New York University invades Georgia. The unbeaten Syracuse eleven journeys to Michigan State; Xavier tackles Centre, and Centenary meets Texas Christian.

The big game in the South brings together Kentucky and Duke, while Southern California and California tangle in the most interesting Pacific Coast encounter.

Penn Faces Navy.

In addition to the all-Eastern Yale-Army game, Holy Cross, conqueror of Harvard, meets the rugged Brown eleven which bowed to Yale. Undefeated Colgate opposes Lafayette. Pennsylvania faces Navy. Harvard tries a come-back against Dartmouth and Bucknell tackles Temple.

While unbeaten Iowa and Minnesota are fighting it out, other Big Ten teams meet as follows: Chicago and Michigan, Ohio State and Northwestern, Wisconsin and Purdue.

The Big Six revolves in three conference games, with Nebraska and Oklahoma, leaders, clashing in the most important contest. Kansas plays Kansas State, and Nebraska meets Oklahoma.

Florida Plays Tennessee.

South of the Mason and Dixon line, Florida, still unscored upon, will try to tag Tennessee with its third straight defeat. North Carolina and Georgia Tech collide and Tulane plays Auburn.

Arkansas and Southern Methodist, leaders of the Southwest Conference try to bump each other off, while Rice tangles with Texas, and Texas A. and M. meets Baylor.

In addition to the Southern California feature on the coast, considerable attention will be commanded by games between Stanford and Washington, Oregon State's powerful eleven and Washington State, and U. C. La. A. and Oregon.

Vince Dundee Trains For Brouillard Fight

Boston, Oct. 23 (AP).—Vince Dundee, veteran Baltimore middleweight who will attempt to separate Lou Brouillard from his new title in a 15-round championship bout at the Boston garden next Monday, set up training quarters here today.

Reports from Bouillard's training camp in Worcester indicated that the rugged French-Canadian titlist was determined to make the first defense of his middleweight crown an overwhelming success. In his initial start as welterweight champion several years ago, Brouillard dropped that title to Jackie Fields.

Notables of Baseball At Ball Rites Today

St. Louis, Oct. 23 (AP).—Notables of the baseball world, including Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, will attend funeral services here tomorrow for Philip de Catsby Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, who died yesterday of blood poisoning.

Commissioner Landis and William Harridge, president of the American League, arrived tonight. Club owners due in the morning are Thomas S. Shibe, Philadelphia Athletics; Clark Griffith, Washington Senators; Frank Navin, Detroit Tigers, and Alva Bradley, Cleveland Indians.

The services will be conducted at the Ball home at 2 p. m., with interment in Bellefontaine Cemetery in St. Louis County.

Anderson to Finish 1933 at Notre Dame

Chicago, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Win, lose or draw, Notre Dame will carry along under its present coaching administration the remainder of the 1933 football season.

The hue and cry raised over Notre Dame's record of one victory, one defeat and one tie in the three games is greater in New York and Los Angeles than it is in South Bend.

The Notre Dame players and coaches are a bit bewildered over the strange pranks that fate has been playing on the fighting Irish, but there is no criticism of the players by Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson nor any harpoons hurled at Anderson in official circles.

The Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, is not greatly perturbed over Notre Dame's failure to sweep all before it on the gridiron this season.

"We scheduled teams with a sporting chance of beating us," said Father O'Donnell, "and we expect to lose sometimes."

Stanley, Star, Lost to G. U. For Year

Injured Knee Puts Ace of Back Field Out and Cripples Team.

ALREADY steeped in the gloom of its defeat by Western Maryland, Georgetown was even gloomier yesterday when it became known that Mack Stanley will be out for the rest of the season because of a badly injured knee. Stanley, a half back, was the best kicker in the Hoya camp and one of its most proficient ball carriers. With Capt. Fred Callahan still nursing an injured shoulder, his loss leaves the team without a dependable booter.

The injury bugaboo, which Coach Jack Hagerty has been expecting all along, finally visited the Hilltop and left in its wake a hospital filled with injured players. The guard positions were hardest hit, Al Cohen, the last remaining regular guard, joining his mates Saturday. Plugging the gaps in the line and unearthing a kicker are the difficult problems facing Hagerty this week.

Ever mounting injuries may force the team to fall back on a strict diet of defensive football, with the hope that it will be able to hold opponents to low scores, replacing its confidence of winning.

Blocking and tackling will be stressed in all drills this week. Georgetown was particularly ragged in both departments against the Terrors after performing brilliantly against Manhattan the week before.

Baltimore Boxers Bow to D. C. Team

Mirman Scores Only K. O. on Card at J. C. C.

Washington amateur boxers triumphed over Baltimore Oriole Club Simon-pures in all five of the intercity bouts that helped make up the program presented by the Jewish war veterans and the Jewish Community Center in the latter's auditorium last night. Two matches between Northeast Boys' Club representatives and boxers from Alexandria resulted in a win for each.

115-pound class—Vince Bonavsri (N. E. B. C.) decisioned Boomer Langley.
125-pound class—Jay Clagett (J. C. C.) decisioned Jimmy Pifer (Oriole Club).
135-pound class—Leon Shubs (J. C. C.) decisioned Toots Sinsnizzi (Oriole Club).
140-pound class—Pete Bonaveri (N. E. B. C.) decisioned Donald Drices. (Oriole).

Whitehill Is Feted By 500 Iowa Fans

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Oct. 23 (Spl.). Five hundred Cedar Rapids baseball fans honored Earl Whitehill tonight at a testimonial banquet and presented him with a solid-silver cocktail set. It was an enthusiastic gathering of his friends who have watched him rise from youngster of Cedar Rapids sandlots to the hero of a 4-0 world series game.

Bing Miller, outfielder of Philadelphia Athletics, native Iowan extended congratulations to Whitehill in behalf of Connie Mack and himself.

Capital's Sport Calendar Today

Football—Interhigh series. Central vs. Roosevelt. Central Stadium at 3:30.

Boxing—All-star card. Portner's Arena, Alexandria, starting at 8:30.

Mercury's Practice.

The Mercury A. C. will practice tonight at One-half and Main streets southwest at 7:30. All members of the team are requested to report.

Seasoned Team to Face Colonials; McCarver in Hospital.

LEN BARNUM, the sensational half back who lifted West Virginia Wesleyan from oblivion to fame with a drop kick that gave the Bobcats a 3-0 victory over New York U. early in the season, will not be in the line-up when his team plays George Washington Friday night at Griffith Stadium. Barnum, a freshman, is ineligible, according to G. W.'s athletic code.

The Colonials permit the use of freshmen by opponents only in the first game of the season when they would be too green and tender to do much damage. Later in October and the early part of November, however, it is a different story.

Have Veteran Backs.

Wesleyan, nevertheless, figures to be anything but a pushover for the Colonials. Coach Cebe Ross has a veteran line as well as seasoned backs. Fourteen of the squad are lettermen, including Howard Bachtel, star of Wesleyan's 14-0 triumph over Georgetown last season.

Bachtel has been joined in upholding the school's colors on the gridiron by brother Roy, a promising youngster who is beginning to get his bearings in the Bobcat back field. Willard Flickenger and Nelson Peterson, also ball toters, are men of whom George Washington will hear much and probably see little.

McCarver in Hospital.

The Colonials staged a light workout yesterday and were excused early. "Nig" McCarver is still in the hospital from a blow that broke his nose and fractured the cheek bones on either side of his face. A minor operation was necessary and it is doubtful if McCarver will be able to play Friday.

A mask has been ordered for him. The Colonial back field can be appropriately dubbed "masked marvels." Don Bomba and Chris Doose already use masks to protect noses which were also broken.

Wayne Davenport is also on the injured list, suffering from an injured shoulder, but these casualties are offset by the return of Capt. Lee Carlin and Joe Walsh. Carlin will be able to play Friday night, but Walsh will be kept on the bench until Tennessee comes stalking into town the following weekend.

C. U. Game Moved Up.

Wake Forest's tie with North Carolina State last week has filled "Dutch" Bergman with apprehension lest the Deacons reveal unexpected power against Catholic University when they tangle at Raleigh, N. C. The game has been moved up from Saturday to Friday afternoon. Originally it was scheduled as a night game to be played in Atlantic City.

Catholic survived the Chattanooga game with no injuries and will put its full strength on the field. Charley McVean's excellent kicking against 'Nooga and Johnny Sniscak's improvement as a line plunger induced Bergman to give the pair more work in games. McVean will relieve Augusterfer at quarter back and Sniscak will share full back with Tom Oliver.

Drill Maryland Backs.

Maryland's board of strategy occupied itself with smoothing out the attack and correcting defensive errors committed by the secondary. Blame for the V. M. I. defeat was placed on the shoulders of the backs who were drawn in by the Cadets' on line plays, leaving their territory wide open for the long passes that resulted in the winning touchdown.

Maryland's line play was pleasing and the coaches are satisfied that it will bear up under Western Maryland's vaunted plunging when the teams meet Saturday at Baltimore. Ed Minion, Tom Callahan and Tom Webb, tackles and center, respectively, did especially well against V. M. I.

Primo to Rest Month Before Trip to U. S.

Rome, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Primo Carnera, Italian giant, who retained his world heavyweight championship against Paolino Uzcudun, of Spain, last night, decided today to rest for a month in Sequals, his home town, before returning to the United States.

His plans for doing movie work in Italy have been virtually abandoned.

Carnera declined to comment on the sporadic booing that greeted his failure to knock out Paolino in the later sessions of their 15-round bout.

Ex-Cornell Grid Star Hurt; Must Quit Game

Mexico City, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Jose Martinez-Zorilla, former Cornell University football star, has ended his gridiron career, physicians announced today after examining a severe knee injury suffered yesterday in an amateur game. They said he would never be able to play again.

45,000 Crowd Expected at Minnesota

Gophers Earn Day Off by Pitt Victory; Play Iowa Eleven Saturday.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 23 (AP). The biggest Memorial Stadium crowd since 1931 may see Minnesota and Iowa play Saturday.

If demand continues at its present pace, the stadium may have between 40,000 and 45,000 occupants, Business Manager L. L. Schroeder said today.

Coach Bernie Bierman kept the promise he made Friday: "Beat Pittsburgh and you can have Monday off." The Gophers had their first holiday since the season began.

Defiated Air at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP).—A defiated air hung over the University of Chicago today as the Maroons began practice for the Michigan encounter Saturday.

The workout was limited to running signals. John Rice probably will not see action against the Wolverines because of a shoulder injury.

New Faces at Marquette.

Milwaukee, Oct. 23 (AP).—Striking out to strengthen his team for Saturday's game with the University of Detroit in Detroit, Coach Frank Murray, of Marquette University today installed several new faces in his varsity line-up.

Day Off At Northwestern.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 23 (AP).—In accordance with the regular custom, Northwestern's first stringers had a day off today, but Coach Dick Hanley sent the reserves through a signal drill and had them studying Ohio State plays. The players came out of the Indiana game in good shape.

Plow Horse Is Entered In Ritzy Garden Show

His owner—Stephen E. Budd, of Newton, Conn.—calls him Sir Equinas, age uncertain.

He used to be a coal wagon horse in Hartford, Conn., but Budd saw him jump a fence one day with harness on and bought him on the spot. He was a ribbon winner in Connecticut.

Mack Off Card At Portner's Tonight

THE withdrawal of Jimmy Mack from the all-star boxing card at Portner's tonight will result in Le Roy Dougan facing Joe Foglietto, another Philadelphian. Little is known of the battler who will pinch-hit for Mack excepting that he is just 19 and has fought a draw with the fighter for whom he is substituting.

Vague rumors have filtered through from the City of Brotherly Love to the effect that Foglietto is a "comer" and a "natural." Which may or may not mean that he is good. Many will recall that similar rumors once filtered through from Philadelphia concerning Sam Weiss, who turned in one of the poorest bouts ever witnessed here against Joe Banovic.

Koshover Faces Test.

Maxie Koshover, clever Cincinnati lightweight, who has encountered little difficulty in hurdling all local obstacles placed in his path, will attempt to surmount a more formidable hurdle in the person of Stumpy Jacobs, from Norfolk, on another eight. Jacobs' boring-in-for-the-body tactics are calculated to upset the Cincinnati hit-and-run expert—maybe. At any rate, win, lose or draw, from a standpoint of

Harvard Hopes High Against Dartmouth

Eight Hanover Regulars or First-Stringers on Injured List.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 23 (AP).—Dartmouth faces the Harvard game with something approaching dismay for eight regulars and first-string replacements are on the injured list. Seven of these were reported definitely out of Saturday's contest including the back field stars, Jack Hill, Wilbur Powers, Sammy Fishman, Dave Hedges and Jack Kenny.

Harvard Get Day Off.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard listened to a lecture on the mistakes of the Holy Cross game and then Eddie Casey scrimmaged his replacements against the scrubs. The regulars were given an additional day to recuperate from the bruises they suffered in the encounter with the burly crusaders.

Penn Hears Lecture.

Philadelphia—Penn's varsity, attempting to forget the Dartmouth reverse, listened to a lengthy blackboard talk by Harvey Harman today when the head coach pointed out Saturday's mistakes and outlined a defense for Navy plays. That was the day's program for the players did not even get into their uniforms.

Princeton Reserves Drill.

Princeton, N. J.—Fritz Crisler gave all Princeton players who saw at least a quarter's service against Columbia the day off. Two elevens composed of reserves went through a lengthy scrimmage. The varsity will begin practice for the Washington and Lee game tomorrow.

Exercise for Army Gridmen.

West Point, N. Y.—Army began work for the Yale game with the second and third teams holding a dummy scrimmage against the "B" squad. The first stringers who played against Illinois were excused after a few limbering up exercises. Hard practice sessions have been scheduled for the next three days.

Columbia Regulars Rest.

New York—Columbia's squad reported to Lou Little without a single injury despite the grueling game with Princeton. The regulars, except Owen McDowell, were excused for the day, while the second and third teams went through a long workout, including scrimmage, for the Penn State game.

Cornell Idles Saturday.

Ithaca, N. Y.—With no game scheduled until November 4, Cornell's varsity went through only a limbering-up drill, but Gil Doble had the rest of the squad drilling for several hours. Columbia is next on the Ithacans' list.

Yale Points for Army.

Central High Choice Over Roosevelt

Dunlap to Play Quarter as Coggins Shifts Mt. Pleasanters.

THE inter-high football series will resume this afternoon at Central Stadium, where Central and Roosevelt will clash in the fourth game of the round-robin. The kickoff is slated for 3:30.

That the Coggin-coached Central crew is the favorite to cop, there is no doubt. The preseason dope, for once right, gives the Mount Pleasant eleven a high notch in the final standing of the clubs.

Central played in the grand opener last week and after a hectic struggle with the Eastern team, came out of the bitter battle with a scoreless tie.

Roosevelt Team Weak.

Roosevelt, the weak-sister of the District public highs, was run down rough-shod by McKinley last Wednesday, 45-0, and with the exception of Huck Cavanaugh and Jim Gardner, who flashed at rare intervals during its Tech trouncing, has practically nothing at all.

Central, well-heeled with reserves, especially in the back field, will start a rearranged set of ball carriers with Don Dunlap at quarter in place of King, who will take care of the left half back assignment. Richardson and Kocsis will round out the quartet at their regular posts at right half and full, respectively.

Kocsis Triple Threat.

The probable line-ups:

Central.	Position.	Roosevelt.
Wheedon	L. E.	Bastilho
Holmes	L. T.	O'Connell
Pistolas	L. G.	Baroni
Dunn	Center	Taylor
Nicolopolous	R. G.	Veitenthal
May	R. T.	Lyman
De Lizio	R. E.	Beamer
Dunlap	Q. B.	Cavanaugh
King	L. H.	Garner
Richardson	R. H.	Hill
Kocsis	F. B.	Saur

Dr. Sarpolis Added To Wrestling Card

Meets Castanos Thursday at Auditorium.

Dr. Karl Sarpolis, the eminent dentist, violinist and orchestra leader, will appear at the Washington Auditorium Thursday night, but not in one of these roles. He has been signed by Prof. Joe Turner to demonstrate his famed flying scissors hold on the mat and will have Andres Castanos on which to practice. This bout completes the card on what appears to have the makings of a fair to middling rassle show.

Just what the feature bout has to offer remains to be seen. It calls for the former title holder and wiley veteran, Dick Shikat, to take on the ambitious youngster, Cliff (Swede) Olsen. This pair met in a limited affair last Thursday and battled to a draw. It looked as though Shikat passed up several opportunities to throw the Swede early in the match and then, later, tried to shoot the works, but found that Cliff was stronger than he thought. Olsen is a comer and, even though he may not down Shikat, he probably will give the old-timer quite a battle.

In the other bouts, Karl Davis roughs things out with Casey Berger, Paul Boesch mixes with the speedy Australian, Tom Alley and Frank Judson, the former Harvard wrestling coach, tried to teach Orville Brown a few of the fine points of the game. The latter bout is given the semifinal spot.

Two Shoreham Teams In Penn Tank Meet

Two full teams will represent the Shoreham Hotel, of this city, at the opening A. A. U. swimming meet to be held at Penn Athletic Club in Philadelphia November 3. The boys' team is training under the direction of Dudley Gordon, boys' coach, and Miss Florence Skadding is coaching the girls' team.

Petrolle Offered Bout With Champion Ross

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Billy Petrolle, the old fellow from Fargo, can have a shot at the lightweight champion, Barney Ross, if he can pare his poundage down to 140 pounds.

It won't be a title affair, because old Will, veteran of a decade of fighting the best in several divisions, can no longer approach the 135-pound lightweight limit. He says he can't "make" 140 and prefers 142 pounds, but Ross, a natural lightweight, insists on the lighter poundage.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THE fact remains, as the saying goes, that the Nation's Capital is beholden to George Washington University for the only big league football that Washington fans are privileged to see in their own back yard. If Washington's football fare were dependent on the other local colleges, it would be meager fare indeed.

In the light of the George Washington schedule and the calibre of the G. W. team, I am constrained to lift a poem of praise to Coach Jim Pixlee and President Cloyd Heck Marvin of the downtown institution who are gambling on the 1933 season with hard cash and succeeding.

George Washington laid $30,000 on the line to bring to Washington its three outstanding football battles of the season—the games with Auburn, Tennessee and Kansas—which is the total in guarantees to the three invading teams which, in competition with G. W., figure to give local fans their choice morsels of history.

Schedule Is Impressive.

These three games the Colonial athletic office have supplemented with an attractive list of other battles—the Clemson game, already played; Washington and Jefferson on November 10, and Tulsa on November 17. At this time it might be mentioned that Tulsa is the team that beat Kansas, which tied Notre Dame; and W. and J. is the team that held Pitt to a scoreless tie for 57½ minutes earlier in the season.

Its 1933 schedule is costing G. W. $60,000, in round figures, a total which, if quoted to any other local institution would cause its athletic officials to run for the storm cellars.

That is getting into the big business of football, and George Washington is aiming to do just that. Win, lose or draw, the Colonials must be given credit for attempting to provide, nay, providing, Capital fans with football attractions worthy of their attendance.

Win National Notice.

Time was when George Washington's football games commanded no more interest locally than the Pennsylvania Avenue Midgets, but the past four years have seen Coach Pixlee elevate the Colonials to the top of the local heap. They are even barging into the national limelight with conquests of such teams as Auburn.

All of Pixlee's carefully laid plans for entering the big leagues of college football would have collapsed with a roar had not the G. W. coach been able to develop a team capable of carrying the burden of the toughest schedule ever attempted here. But with victory over such as Auburn, the success of Pixlee's efforts are already assured.

Until the arrival of Pixlee in Washington the Capital long had carried the stigma of being a "poor football town." He disagreed with that theory in his first pronouncement. "Give the fans the attractions, and it will be a good football town," said Pixlee. And he is in a fair way toward proving it.

Somewhere, somebody in the George Washington athletic office pulled the prize boner of the season. Nameless, but adorning the cover of the G. W.-Auburn game was a beautiful sketch of a football player in action. The player sketched was "Ox" Bordeau, star Georgetown back of a few years ago.

27th Game for Navy At Philly Saturday

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23 (Spl.). Anent the Navy-Penn football game to be played in Philadelphia Saturday, records show that in the long history of Navy football, dating back to 1882, more major Navy games have been played in the Quaker City than any other place. Of the Army-Navy series of 33 battles, 15 have been fought on Franklin Field, 11 in New York and the rest elsewhere. Penn and Navy have participated in a series of 18, of which the last nine were played in Philadelphia, the others being staged in Annapolis. In the Navy-Princeton series, the 1928 game was staged on Franklin Field, and so was the Navy-Dartmouth contest of 1929.

Navy folk have not only been particularly fond of Philadelphia for their big games, but the Middies also have been especially successful on Franklin Field, both against Penn and Army. And Philadelphia has witnessed some of Navy's most thrilling engagements.

Redskins Sign Campiglio.

Boston, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Bob Campiglio, formerly with the Staplétons, will join the Boston Redskins' back field Sunday against the Pittsburgh Pirates, it was announced tonight.

Campiglio rose to fame in 1931 when he scored 70 points in a single game for West Liberty Teachers' College.

District Golfwomen, Delayed by Rain, to Start Play for Post Trophy Today

Field of 93 Will Seek Honors

Postponement to Delay Final Round of Play Until Monday.

RAIN yesterday forced postponement until this morning of the qualifying round of the match play with handicap golf tournament for The Washington Post Trophy at the Columbia Country Club course.

A slanting rain fell throughout the morning, and the tournament committee, composed of Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, Mrs. W. F. Holtzman, and Mrs. H. R. Quinter decided to delay the 18-hole medal play with handicap round.

Field of 93 to Compete.

With 93 already entered, and post entries expected to enlarge the field to 100, play will begin today at 8:40 a. m., with Mrs. J. A. Rogers and Miss Betty Myer, both of Army and Navy, and Mrs. T. N. Beavers, of Manor first off. At 5-minute intervals 30 other threesomes, including the District's best women golfers, will follow.

All pairings and starting times previously listed will prevail, the committee announced.

The postponement will cause an interruption in the tournament schedule, with the finals, originally slated for Saturday, now to be carried over until next Monday.

32 in Title Flight.

Thirty-two will qualify for the match play with stroke allowance rounds. These 32 low net scorers will be placed in a championship flight, with the first round matches to be played Wednesday. The 16 defeated players will form a consolation flight.

Post entries will be accepted at the first tee. Eighteen is the handicap limit, but those with higher club ratings may enter and accept the limit. The tournament will officially climax the season's activities for the District of Columbia Women's Golf Association, which is conducting the battle for The Post Trophy.

The Middle Atlantic P. G. A. pro-senior golf tournament scheduled yesterday at Chevy Chase's course was called off because of unfavorable weather conditions. Baltimore and District pros were to have teamed with senior golfers from the host club in an 18-hole sweepstakes. They may get together next Monday.

Harris Hull, 1932 finalist, reached the finals of The Post golf tournament yesterday at Indian Spring Country Club, defeating C. J. McCauley, 1 up, in a stirring 19-hole match. Hull was 2 up at the turn.

Sports writers of Washington will be entertained at a golf tournament and banquet next Monday, October 30, at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club. The festivities will start at 10 a. m. and will continue throughout the day.

Play in the annual women's tournament for the Teal Trophy will get under way next Monday morning at Kenwood. It will be a two-day 36-hole match play against par with handicap. The handicap limit is 36.

The golfing Dettweilers, Helen and Billy, are playing only week-end golf these days. Both limbered up in an 18-hole round Sunday at Congressional, now their home club. Helen, a runner-up for the District women's championship, is taking up law. Billy, District junior champion, is in his third year at Georgetown Prep.

Having been held in Baltimore in 1932, and in Richmond, Va., this year, the Middle Atlantic women's golf championship is due to return to Washington next season. Mrs. Jean Jones, of Richmond, last week won the championship, succeeding Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of Columbia.

Fitzgerald on Job.

San Francisco, Oct. 23 (AP).—Christopher Fitzgerald, noted horse racing official of New York, arrived here today to take charge of the fall meeting at Tanforan track, starting November 1. He will be director of racing and presiding steward. Fitzgerald said 200 good horses from Eastern tracks were en route here for the 40-day meeting.

The Postilion Football Contest

Due to the popularity that has greeted the publication of The Postilion's weekly football chart of major games, The Post today announces a fascinating contest for fans in conjunction with the schedule.

Herewith are listed 39 of Saturday's games, selected by Shirley L. Povich, Sports Editor of The Post, as the most outstanding contests of the week. Space for your selections as well as space for the actual result has been allotted for each game.

On Saturday night, The Postilion, The Post's radio hour over WMAL will broadcast the results of the games. Compare your selections with the results. To the fan predicting the greatest number of victories, The Post will present free four choice tickets to the George Washington-Tennessee game at Griffith Stadium one week from Saturday.

To the fan who places second in the contest, three choice seats will be given by The Post. To the fan who places third, two choice seats will be allotted.

Priority of receipt will govern the award in case of ties.

Big Ten Coaches Recite

Kipke, Bierman and Willaman Go to Head of Class as Result of Victories; Alibis Absent as Hopes Run High.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (AP).—Alibis were strangely absent and hope ran high as a happy, enthusiastic group of ten big football coaches recited for the old professor today in the regular Monday class.

The professor immediately sent coaches Ossie Solem, of Iowa; Harry Kipke, of Michigan, and Bernie Bierman, of Minnesota, to the head of the class as a compliment for Saturday's victories.

Professor—"All you fellows can't win when you play each other, but you all did well last Saturday. That Michigan-Ohio State game was a knockout before a record crowd. What about it?"

Kipke—"Every Michigan player did his part and we're proud of the whole squad. Bill Renner made us happy with his forward passing and all around play. Willis Ward turned in the best game at end. Our guards, Kowalik, Savage and Borgman were strictly high class. But we have a job left and that is to keep 'em up there."

Sam Willaman, Ohio State—"Naturally, I'm disappointed. We took it on the chin from a better ball club than we were Saturday. It's our job to forget Michigan and start thinking of Northwestern."

Professor—"So can Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan. It looks like the Wildcats are wild at last and may decide this championship race after all. How about it, Dick?"

Dick Hanley, Northwestern—"Yes, sir, professor, we're going to be tough to get along with from now on. Our offense finally clicked against Indiana because the boys started to block. Two weeks ago, we were forlorn and sad. Now, we're ready to play anybody. We'll give Ohio State a battle Saturday."

Bierman—"And Minnesota has a lot of work to do, too, for Iowa. They're big, fast and play heads-up football. They're a first-grade conference team. What impressed me most Saturday as we beat Pittsburgh was that our players used the right play at the right time to score."

Solem—"We expect Minnesota to be our toughest opponent so far, probably too tough for us. Punting advantage put us in position to score against Wisconsin. Dick Crayne was in good kicking form while the Badger punters were not. Our blocking and tackling was more ragged than it should have been."

Professor—"Guess it's no use for you to spin any more bear stories, Ossie. The whole Big Ten is convinced you have a real ball club that's going to be tough to beat."

"Doc" Spears, Wisconsin—"The Iowa back field was too strong for us. Our team as a unit was too slow for them."

There was a flurry toward the back of the classroom. Bob Zuppke, of Illinois, couldn't be restrained any longer.

Zuppke—"That was the smartest, quickest Army team that I've ever seen, but we almost won with our remarkable passing. But don't forget we're still in this Big Ten race with two big weeks to get ready for Michigan."

Professor—"You're right, Mr. Zuppke. Chicago did well, too, in holding Purdue down to two touchdowns."

Clark Shaughnessy, Chicago—"Wish we had had about two more weeks to get ready for Purdue. We would have done much better. The boys are too inexperienced yet and we have a lot of wood to saw. No, we haven't much chance against Michigan Saturday. It looks like they have a strong, smart team."

Noble Kizer, Purdue—"Our forward wall opened big holes on offense and kept Chicago from making a scoring threat, but we're worried about Wisconsin. They'll be playing at home for their first conference game and before a homecoming crowd. All I can see is another dog fight."

Professor—"Cheer up, E. C. Why so glum?"

E. C. Hayes, Indiana—"You'd be glum, too. Take four regular backs out of any football team and see what's left of an offense. We have two weeks and hope to have three of our regular backs—Veller, Walker and Huffman—ready."

Coach at A. U. Boasts Only 14 Men

Sheer Spirit Chief Asset of Line Averaging 147 Lbs.; Backs, 135.

THE "Strange As It Seems" boys have missed one. Up on the flats of American University there practices daily a college football squad so unorthodox that it would make most of their cartoons look as common-place as a clay pipe. There may have been a scraglier, scrawnier outfit some time in collegiate football history than that American U. bunch, but the sports archives don't show where or when.

Not only enjoying the distinction of being probably the country's smallest college football team, the Eagles could easily win all-American honors so far as lack of experience and physical make-up are concerned. The famous armies of history, which were forced to call on the women of the nation to supplement their ranks had nothing on the grid squad at American, where there even has been talk of issuing a call to the fair co-eds to don the moleskins in order to have somebody to scrimmage against.

Coach Considers Self Lucky.

Most college coaches are in the depths of despair if they have less than 25 men ready to shoot in a game, but Coach Walter H. Young, A. U.'s Houdini of the gridiron, the man who makes college football teams out of thin air, so to speak, considers himself lucky to have 14 on whom he can rely to take the field. With more than half the season's schedule remaining to be played and St. John's of Annapolis favored to overwhelm his proteges Saturday, the undespairing Mr. Young is working with a squad at which the average high school coach would scoff.

His line, from end to end, averages a bare 147 pounds, his back field in the neighborhood of 135. The biggest man on the team, Left Tackle Scotty Crampton, tips the scales at 170 and, at 5 feet 11, towers over the rest of his team mates. The other tackle, McLendon, sometimes weighs as much as 160, while the center weighs 146 and the ends 135 to 140.

But, as appalling as the Eagles' meager number and dwarfish, unimpressive appearance, is their genuine lack of experience.

"Of these 14 men I can depend on to play, three never had had on a football suit before they came out for the team this fall," Coach Young says, "and six are new to the game here, though I guess they played some in high school."

Play for Love of Sport.

Up at American they play football for the sheer love of the sport The lure of scholarships, free books, training table and even of promised glory on the gridiron are missing. About everything that goes with collegiate football, from husky, ideal material for the coach to work with to free board and rooms for the players are lacking—everything except fight. Of the latter element there is a superabundance.

Coach Young has built this year's team, as he did last season, around George Borsori, the triple-threat back, who, in addition to doing all the passing and kicking and most of the running with the ball, acts as field general as well. Borsori, together with Crampton and Lee Esper, guard, were the only regulars of the 1932 team returning this season.

Speaking of Borsori and what he means to the team, Coach Young says:

"When George was sent out of the game against Bridgewater for slugging, I had to put a guard in the back field. Our reserves exist in the mind only. In the Hampden-Sydney game, Borsori was the only man we had to carry the ball throughout the last three quarters. Most of the team was about ready to fold up from exhaustion when the game ended. I couldn't take them out because there was nobody to put in in the place of them.

Great Bunch of Fighters.

"They're not much to look at and they don't know a lot about football, but I never saw a greater bunch of fighters than these boys. And they're willing to learn. This lad, Renard, the only back field reserve man we have, never had a suit on till two weeks ago, and Duckworth, the center, never saw a football before he came to American. Gutteride and Porter, the ends, are new at the game this year, too."

There may be other college coaches in the country in the same boat, but if there are, it's a safe bet none of them needs rose-colored glasses more than Coach Young. Last Saturday he saw St. John's hold Hampden-Sydney, the team which beat American, 32 to 0, earlier this season, to a scoreless tie at Ashton, Va. Though obviously finding nothing to cheer about in the result, the not-to-be discouraged mentor refused to adapt a pessimistic attitude toward the approaching game with St. John's.

Passers' Line Outweighs Giants

District Pros Depending Much on Forwards Tomorrow Night.

ONE of the chief requisites for a professional football team, according to George Halas, coach of the Chicago Bears, is a lot of beef along the line. "With a load of heft along the forward wall," the Windy City coach remarked a fortnight ago, "a team will go places if at has any kind of a fast backfield. That's why my club is leading the professional football league."

Should this be the case, then the Washington Passers, local pro team which meets the New York Giants tomorrow night in Griff Stadium under the lights, should be something more than an exhibition game, and as an advance warning to the Giants, the local team outweighs them 12 pounds to the man.

The Passers had the last hard scrimmage in preparation for tomorrow's battle and will taper off with a light drill this evening. The Giants will probably use the Griff Stadium for practice tomorrow morning.

A third eight-rounder which brings together Carey Wright and Tommy Bashara, completes the top-spot trio. Tommy Bashara, like all the Basharas, is a stiff puncher who boasts of very little ring generalship. His opponent, a Washington boy, lacks experience, but possesses plenty of punch and courage.

A six-rounder between Phil Furr and Glenn Morgan, who also depend almost entirely on punch, will round out the program.

Light Work for N. Y. U.

New York—Much pleased with New York University's showing against Colgate, Howard Cann sent the Violets through a light workout. A squad of 34 will leave Thursday for Athens, Ga., and the game with Georgia's Bulldogs. Capt. Harry Temple, who suffered a brain concussion in the Lafayette game ten days ago, will make the trip, but will not play.

the Wisconsin game and started preparations for Minnesota with a long skull practice and limbering-up exercises.

Wisconsin Regulars Rest.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 23 (AP).—Wisconsin players who saw action against Iowa were given a rest today while the reserves went through more than an hour of scrimmage with the frosh.

Karl Schuelke, half back, and John Fish, full back, a pair of sophomores who have been slow in reaching good form, showed up well in the scrimmage.

Seven Hurt at Notre Dame.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 23 (AP).—Seven Notre Dame regulars were unable to report for practice today because of injuries received in the Carnegie Tech game Saturday.

Dominic Vairo and Steve Banas were the most seriously hurt and may not be able to play against Pittsburgh Saturday. The others suffered bruises and will not be able to work out until Thursday.

Light Work at Michigan.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 23 (AP).—Fresh from their conquest of Ohio State, Michigan's football warriors today drilled just long enough to take the kinks out of muscles.

Coach Harry Kipke, apparently well pleased with his squad's showing, had few criticisms to offer. Although Ted Petoskey, end, and Jack Heston, a half back, have bruised ribs, they will be ready to enter the Chicago game this Saturday.

Illinois Regulars Idle.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 23 (AP).—The entire Illinois squad was given a day off today. Coach Zuppke will work the reserves tomorrow and call the varsity back to practice Wednesday. Illinois' next game is with Michigan, one week from Saturday.

Grantland Rice Ill.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP).—Grantland Rice, nationally known sports writer, is ill with a throat infection and confined to his home here. On the doctor's orders he will be confined for the rest of the week.

Leeman Looms Successor To Fenlon as G. W. Threat

"TUFFY" LEEMANS.

BACK in Alouise, Wis., which is a small ink spot adjoining Superior on most maps, the football fans think Alphonse Emil Leemans, the 175-pound youngster who played half back on Superior High School's team, is a pretty good football player. After seeing him perform in three games District fans are beginning to agree with them.

Dubbed "Tuffy" early in his scholastic career, the lad was won over to George Washington University by the eloquent orating of Assistant Coach Len Walsh, who hails from the lake region. Leemans virtually had made up his mind to enter the University of Wisconsin when Walsh happened along and changed it for him.

Successor to Fenlon.

The advent of Leemans is a godsend to Coach Jim Pixlee, who is seeking a capable successor for Johnny Fenlon's shoes. Pixlee's search appears to be over. Fenlon could run, kick or pass the ball to almost any part of the lot he desired, and Leemans is developing to the point where he can do as well.

Leemans possesses all the requisites of a good ball player. Close to 6 feet tall and weighing 175 pounds, he can hit a line with punishing effect or drive off-tackle. But he's best in a broken field where he can utilize the mercury in his legs and loose hips to the fullest extent. Only last Saturday against Auburn he took a punt and breezed down the sidelines for a 50-yard gain before forced out of bounds.

Brought Along Slowly.

The coaches are loath to talk about Leemans, except to say that he looks good and has a promising future. After all he's only a sophomore and they are not anxious to build up confidence in the boy and have a big tough opponent come along and tear it down. Leemans will be brought along slowly. They aren't expecting too much of him. Experience is all he'll get this year. Next season they'll let him go.

When he does break loose the District may have another Jack Hagerty on its hands. A lad who may outdo Hagerty in a broken field where the Georgetown coach was without peer in his palmy playing days.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

AL MILLER, rolling with the National Capital Parks team in the Federal League at the Arcadia alleys, continued his sensational bowling last night by annexing both high individual game and set, with 147 and 375. Miller is pressing Gene Hargett (Commerce) for high average, who leads him by but two points. National Capital Parks' high team game of 603 withstood all other contenders, while Commerce, league leaders, walked away with high team set, grabbing a total of 1,699 pins.

Beck, rolling with Congress in the Methodist Protestant League, captured individual honors with a high game of 124 and set of 368. Rhode Island Avenue team No. 1 took high game and set, with 528 and 1,538, respectively.

George L. Iseman and Bob Temple, of Hyattsville, started coasting too early in their doubles match with Andy Zeiler and Ray Barnes, of Baltimore, on the Overlea drives. Leading their rivals by 46 pins in the last game, they were overtaken and passed, losing by a total of 29 pins. Zeiler, with a set of 609, led the assault.

In the Eastern Star Ladies League at the Lucky Strike alleys, Chapman's 119 game and a 307 set, held jointly between Williams and Harrison, led the list of individual feats. Joppa Lodge, making a bid for recognition, annexed high game honors, with 495, and high team set, with 1,428.

Columbia alleys was the scene of activities of the Petroleum League. Shell crawled out from under the heap, mustering a total pinfall of 1,546 pins, aided by a high team set for the night of 538, and sweeping the match with Lucky Strike Service Station, Kammar, with high game of 137, and Freeberg (American Oil), with a 375 set, carried away the individual honors. In other matches American Oil won three from Chapman and Standard No. 2 took the odd game from Standard No. 1.

Preston Ellis (Harmony) in the Masonic League had games of 125, 136 and 124 to snare high set honors last night at the Convention Hall alleys. Quite a battle was waged between Hope and Pentalpha for team honors. Both tied with 565 for high game, while Pentalpha won the set laurels by one stick, with a total pinfall of 1,627.

Jumbo Bread, leaders of the Sanico League, continued their pin mauling by capturing high set laurels of the night, with 1,593. Green Bag Coffee, who is making a huge effort to get into the running, took high team game, with 582. Of the individual feats, Stock's 142 game and Ordlelski's set of 354, was unsurpassed.

Kendall's 134 game and Kelly's 343 set led the list of individual honors, while Columbia, now leading the second division, took team honors with a 563 game and 1,541 set.

Henry Hiser's Bethesda team, fresh from its victory over the Recreation Center Juniors of Baltimore, is confident that it will repeat when it meets the Baltimoreans in a return match on its home alleys Saturday night. Tony Santini is proving to be the big gun of the Bethesda team's attack.

Pegler Says

Ladies and Gents No More Are 2-Fisted Guzzlers at Football Games.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (Spl.).—The gents and ladies who go to the football games on Saturday afternoons will have to do some pretty heavy guzzling during the remaining games of the season if they expect to catch up on their fall drinking and maintain the high standard established by other classes of spectators during the era of prohibition.

I have noticed a distinct tendency on the part of the majority of the customers to slack off this year, probably in a belief that prohibition is done for anyway and that from now on until repeal it will be all right to stall and indulge in no more than some light defensive drinking.

It is true, of course, that the contest is now pretty well won and that the shrewd and cautious drinker will avoid the risk of unnecessary injury in protecting the lead until the contest closes a few weeks hence. But I never have cared much for shrewd and cautious drinkers myself, being partial to those who drink with selfless abandon until the last white line has been crossed.

1933 Drinkers Disappoint.

So it is a bit of a disappointment to find the drinkers of the great victory season, the varsity souses of 1933, as you might call them, contenting themselves with mere sips, nips and sniffs out of their flasks. That was not the way the grand, gallant all-for-victory lushes of seasons past ran up the lead which their unworthy successors of the present day seem content to rest up on. This great advantage was rolled up by crusading rumpots who, when they hoisted a bottle, scorned the mere technical touches of this year's kind, and hit it a belt, jolt or sock.

Moreover they were putting down some very brutal nutriment in those old barbarian days and nights, including all the standard brands of gasoline, brass-polish and sheep-lip, to say nothing of Georgia corn which is a blend of all three.

The drinkers of the present football season are dealing in material which is almost entirely drug-store and, so far as risk and sporting thrill is concerned, almost too wholesome for official football drinking purposes.

Sissy Drinkers Threatened.

In fact, I have been told that some of the Georgia corn drinkers of the varsity of 1924, who used to carry theirs in Mason jars so that they could spill it in their ears while pouring it down the hatch, thus doubling the the size of the standard jolt, have started an agitation to withhold 'varsity letters from the sissy drinkers of 1933.

It seems a fair proposal at that, for I have distinctly observed quite a number of silver flasks in the stands this year and all the veterans who drank with the varsities of the brave prohibition years will recall that the silver flask was conclusive evidence of flinching and cheating in those days. Georgia corn, Chicago bathtub, Kansas jake, Iowa sileage, and New York hootch dissolved a silver flask as water dissolves a paper bag and the fact that a man could fetch his drams as far as the football yard in a silver flask conclusively proved him to be a mucker and a cad unfit to drink with respectable people.

Experiment Melts Flask.

I once saw an experiment tried by some boys from Atlanta, who had confiscated a silver flask and filled it with corn. The young man in charge demonstrated that within two minutes the flask became limber like a gutta percha capsule from the corrosive effects of the corn, and when it had softened up a little more he saved it in his mouth before it should melt in his hands, and swallowed it. He said the metal left a bad aftertaste which spoiled the flavor of the corn, a statement which I do not doubt at all.

At the Yale game with Washington and Lee, the drinking was not only way off in volume, but spiritless in character, and there were only two lonely conscientious souses rolling about the field when the crowd had left. It seemed disloyal of the others to have let them down so, and, after a long time finding nobody to fight, they had to choose up sides and fight one another.

At Princeton last Saturday the showing was a little better, but not much. I saw no lady souses laid out upon the cold, concrete slopes of the arena when the game was over, whereas last year, after the Yale game, there were a dozen thus gloriously plastered on the gloaming, too oblivious to be moved. Numerous cops were observed performing the traditional prohibition lurch-dance toward the exits between staggering escorts.

Practically Dry Game.

Last Saturday two unconscious gents lay on benches until darkness fell and two high-spirited defenders of the old standard engaged in a two-handed football game until both of them were knocked out, or passed out, face down in the cinders of the running track. That was all. It was practically a dry game.

It is just my idea that with repeal so close, anyway, and with so much drug store in circulation, the least the gents and ladies of 1933 should do in honor of the memory of those who drank the good fight for 14 years is to drink their part up to the very end, closing out with one grand binge. After that it will be the time to go up the pole.

Speaking of Tennis

By Bill Shreve.

William T. Tilden is up to his old tricks again.

Just when tennis was about to be wrapped up and put away on the shelf for the winter, the Great One announces the conversion of Ellsworth Vines to professionalism.

William T. has never been one to let his sport suffer from lack of public attention, even when the weather was more adaptable to football or winter sports than to the hitting of tennis balls.

Back in the days when Weary Willie was playing in amateur circles, his frequent arguments with officials of the U. S. L. T. A. kept tennis on the sport pages of the journals throughout the Nation during the dreay months.

His recent signing of our No. 1 player of the land for 1931 and '32 to perform under his dollar-marked banner is the high light of the recent closed season for tennis.

Whether it was the proximity of that fanged animal, given much publicity lately in popular song and verse, to the Vines threshold, or whether it was because Ellsworth was fed up with conditions in general in connection with his amateur play, that caused him to turn professional, is a question over which to ponder. There is sufficient reason to believe that it was as much the latter reason as any that was the governing influence in his decision to forsake the laurel-browed ranks of amateurism.

Vines has voiced his disapproval of the schoolboy training regulations that the Davis Cup squad was subjected to prior to the matches in Paris. On one particular occasion, the team was forced to leave the theatre after seeing only the first act of a musical show, in order to be in bed by 10 p. m.

This incident and many similar ones led Ellsworth into making the statement that the team should have been treated like men and not like children, and that the squad should have for a non-playing captain someone like Dick Williams or Vincent Richards—a man who better understands the players, having been one of them himself in the past.

Vines upon being interviewed states that it is time he began earning a living; and as tennis is the only thing he knows, he is taking that up on a pay envelope basis as his life's work. He says that while other young men have been studying bookkeeping or law, he has been working upon a backhand and a service.

The tall Pasadena boy admits he owes a tremendous debt to amateur tennis, and that if he had not realized he owed this debt he would have turned professional at the end of last season, when he was generally considered the number one amateur player of the world.

However, his desire to see the Davis Cup brought back to the United States caused him to turn down all offers made at that time. He says the way it turned out he probably did the wrong thing, not only from a personal standpoint, but because he contributed so little to the success of the Davis Cup team. But at least he did what he thought was the square thing to do, and in part paid back his debt to amateur tennis.

All of that sounds well and good and Ellsworth is quite likely sincere in all that he says, but we can not help but feel that if he had aided in bringing the Davis Cup back to the United States and if he had retained his crown as national champion and met with more success in numerous other tournaments—and especially if his personal liberty had not been interfered with by too much managing—he would still be playing amateur tennis next year.

The Vines of 1931 and 1932 would have been too valuable a man to turn professional on the U. S. L. T. A. and the powers that be in lawn tennis. A little more pressure would have been brought to bear on the Vines of those years to remain within the fold. The Vines of 1933 is not viewed with such esteem, and at this time it is not thought his loss will be irreplaceable.

Bernon S. Prentice, chairman of the 1933 American Davis Cup committee, and nonplaying captain of the team, states he is "sorry that Vines did not come to his decision sooner as long as he was contemplating it. In the case of Davis Cup competition this year I think it would have been fairer to us all."

One can imagine the loud cry that would have gone up if Vines had turned professional prior to the Davis Cup matches of this year. His name would have gone down in history beside that of Benedict Arnold.

Unbeaten Chase Me Captures Third Purse in Feature on Program at Laurel

Choice Comes From Rear To Score

Ladino Wins Fourth by Neck in Three-Horse Blanket Finish.

THEY are still chasing Chase Me at Laurel. Three times Mrs. John Bosley's big gelding has been to the post. And three times, Chase Me has been chased home. Each time they have changed the chasers. Yesterday, the gelded son of Purchase and Mayanel drew a handicap field out of the best stables hereabouts and a new rider in Lou Humphries.

The result was the same as before only this time the much-battered public was right in on the pay off. Chase Me was played and played and there were no complaints registered when he paid a return of $5.40 for the usual $2 bet.

The chief chaser yesterday was White Clover II, the Foxcatcher Farms' veteran stake winner. He was beaten a length. Another two lengths and a half away came Don Pedro, something of a figure in handicap circles. Strung out at various distances along the line came Flagstone, Dark Hope, Jimmy Sutro and Rapscallion.

Rapscallion Runs Away.

The last named provided some pre-race entertainment when he broke away as the field approached the barrier and ran a solo race despite the effort of T. Marshall to pull him up.

Dark Hope, White Clover II and Chase Me was the order of the field until the far turn where Chase Me quit chasing. Humphries rushed the gelding up and went to the front when straightened in the stretch. That was that, for Coucci whipped frantically on White Clover II, but Chase Me was home.

The track was between good and slow and Chase Me was the first favorite to win for a Monday crowd that bordered on 8,000.

Collateral, a C. V. Whitney juvenile, which couldn't get out of his own way in a race last week, came galloping to the finish line yesterday in front of a keen field. It is just possible that the shift in riders that put Humphries in the royal Whitney saddle made the difference. The Trumvir, of the Greentree Stable, was second and Growler third.

Brown Jack, which turned in a sensational workout the other day, drew much of the money in the opening race and then went out to make good. The Widener gelding did most of his own pace setting to lead Knight of Old and Black Falcon to the wire. A 10-1 shot when the entries were first published, Brown Jack paid only a $6.60 mutuel.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Cervantes, who gained world-wide fame with his strange story of Don Quixote, once looked upon the army as his career. In 1574, when he was 27 years old, he was in the garrison at Palermo hopeful of attaining a captaincy. The following year he set sail for Spain to press his claims for advancement, but his vessel was captured by Algerine pirates and all on board were kidnaped and carried into Algiers as prisoners, later to become slaves.

Certain papers in Cervantes' pockets led his captors to believe him to be an important man, capable of supplying ransom. Thus he was kept in slavery, but spared the frightful punishments common to them, until his family was able to buy him back from the kidnapers.

Cervantes, upon his return to Spain, wrote his "Galatea," a work that gained for him his first fame as a writer. Strange as it seems, Galatea was never finished. "Don Quixote" is Cervantes' best known work to the world in general, but his material reward for its writing was practically nothing.

Kingston ran in the money, first, second or third place, in 74 consecutive starts. He also won more races than any other horse, running first 89 times. His complete record shows that out of 138 starts he was in the money 134 times. He was first 89 times, second 34 times, and third 11 times, failing to show or better only four times. His total winnings were $138,917.

Dear Al: Laurel Race Track, Oct. 23.

We have lost an old friend. Con Amore will race no more. The big mare, long a favorite with Maryland horse players, was cut down in her last race. Trainer Augie Hitchins made every effort to save her but to no avail. She will be rested until spring and then will go to the breeding farm. H. C. Jones, of Baltimore, is cussing his luck. He put in a claim for Rock Coventry the other day and won the draw. He took a lame horse to his stable and then was informed that the horse was on the schooling list and can't start until he shows better manners. BILL.

First race—I'm going to give Huppy another chance. This is not a stake candidate but has shown a liking for the route. Might have been sent too close to the pace the last time. Miss Glace just missed last out while sprinting. Gets the edge over Bright Tess.

Second race—Prometheus gets a shift of ten pounds from Backgammon. The first named has won twice hereabouts and is a mighty fit racer. Olamay deserves a money selection.

Third race—Renewed won a sprint here in handy fashion and then drew tough opposition over a distance of ground. Is better suited by cheaper opposition today. Modern Times is in good shape and runs honest races. The one to beat. The Doctor for the show.

Fourth race—Easy Come has had a busy year. Only outing here was a fair effort. Needs her best effort to take care of this field. Holystone for the place and Happy Go to show.

Fifth race—Cutie Face has become something of a star performer here. Has all her speed and will be right there fighting at the finish. No standout by a good wager. De Valera for the place. Acautaw, come mud, would move on top. West Main drew a bungling rider the last time. A shift in riders might bring a major upset.

Sixth race—Bright Beauty can run on all kinds of tracks. Showed her speed last out in taking a purse at the first asking. My choice again. Fort Dearborn for the place. Vote faded after a flying start the last time. May get a different ride and be close.

Seventh race—En Passant is a game little thing that has been a trifle over her head of late. Likes mud but can step along on a fast course. Zembla and Syriac for the rest.

Jamestown and Mate Seen In Field Opposing Winooka

THE big job at Laurel yesterday afternoon was to find a horseman who did not want to race his horse against Winooka, the Australian champion, in the Eastern debut of the big horse scheduled at the nearby course tomorrow. Racing fans know as much about the field as the experts, who were scratching their heads as yesterday's program closed with word drifting to the press box that this horse and that would go to the post.

Most prominent of the possible starters are G. D. Widener's Jamestown and Albert Bostwick's Mate. Handlers of the first named, earlier in the month, declined an invitation to meet the Anzac, while Mate had never been mentioned before as a contender.

Starting Fee $250.

Not even the starting fee of $250 has dampened the enthusiasm of the owners. There was some concern, however, when Mrs. John D. Hertz suggested that the ante be raised to $1,000, a sum she is willing to lay on the line in order to get Fairbypair into action against the invader. Even at that figure it is likely that Race Secretary Jack Campbell will have to draw for the field.

Under the conditions of the race, made by Winooka's handlers, the group must be limited to five.

If Winooka was nervous as the hour approaches for the race, such was not in evidence yesterday when the Anazac took time off from the Australian training methods to turn in an orthodox American workout, which sent the clockers digging for their stop watches.

Stages Fast Workout.

Over a track that was slightly off, Winooka breezed with Trevellion, his traveling companion. The champion broke several lengths behind the stablemate, but moved up easily to show usual, smooth running power at the mile pole, under a stout pull. The time for the half-mile was reliably reported at 47 1-5, extremely good inasmuch as Winooka was clocked from a standing start.

The Australian wonder horse has started only twice in this country, winning both times. In a special race at Tanforan, San Francisco, Winooka defeated Huene by one and one-half lengths over the 5-furlong distance. In another special race at Longacres, Seattle, Wash., over the 6-furlong distance, the Anzac 5-year-old bested On Rush by four and one-half lengths.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN JACK, $6.60, $5.00, $3.80; KNIGHT OF OLD, $15.20, $7.40; BLACK FALCON, $4.60.

BROWN JACK, away in the first flight, raced HINIGHT and TROYER into submission, saved much ground at the stretch turn and, under strong urging, had enough left to stall off KNIGHT OF OLD. Latter, kept in near attendance of the leaders, responded stoutly to punishment and was slowly wearing the winner down. BLACK FALCON improved his position while in tight quarters and finished gamely when clear. SMOKE went in for a workout, but was not good enough. BE SHY was squeezed back leaving the back stretch. TROYER weakened steadily and had to be taken up midway of the home stretch when blocked. DESERT SANDS passed tiring horses. HINIGHT stopped badly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For all ages, foaled in Maryland. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:05. Off at 2:12. Winner, S. W. Lathrot's br. f. (3), by Happy Time—Annie Kendal. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY ANNE, $7.00, $4.30, $2.50; CANDESCENT, $3.40, $2.80; STEEL, $5.00.

HAPPY ANNE, taken under slight restraint in the opening furlong, moved up gradually when nearing the home stretch, swung to the outside for the final drive and came out slowly after shaking off the pacemakers. CANDESCENT raced BALLY BAY into defeat in the first five furlongs, but could not resist the winners rush. STEEL, on the outside from the beginning, came courageously in the final test. BALLY BAY was used up early and tired fast. HAPPY LOPE and the others were never factors.

THIRD RACE—About two miles. Steeplechase. Purse, $1,600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:35. Off at 2:36. Winner, F. J. Navin's b. g. (6), by Fair Play—Catalpa. Trained by R. M. Crawford. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:58 4-5 (14 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAGATELLE, $7.00, $3.00, $3.60; SILVERSKIN, $2.60, $2.20; BERET, $2.60.

BAGATELLE, reserved strongly in the first mile, went to the leaders without effort going to the tenth fence, gained a slight lead after the twelfth fence and, steadied thereafter, drew out when outfencing his field at the last two jumps. SILVERSKIN, strongly reserved and forced to take command under sufferance, saved ground all the way, but was unable to threaten the winner. BERET made repeated challenges in the last half mile and continued stoutly at the end. PEGG'S PRIDE dwelt at several of his fences after losing command at the third fence. LAVISBY was held safe. CAUTIOUS LENA lost her rider at the next to last jump.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:09½. Winner, A. Gaignardis' ch. g. (4), by Ladkin—Cuba Belle. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADINO, $9.20, $4.80, $3.00; MOUNTAIN ELK, $3.60, $2.40; GENERAL LEJEUNE, $2.60.

LADINO, favored by the early pace while racing under slight pressure, swung to the outside of the leaders when entering the home stretch and, closing fast, was up in the last fifty yards. MOUNTAIN ELK raced with the pacemakers, saved ground at the stretch turn and finished in determined fashion. GENERAL LEJEUNE, hard ridden from the start, and on the outside, raced WAR SAINT into submission, then held on in resolute fashion. SOME KNIGHT was strongly ridden all the way. WAR SAINT was rushed hard from the start. He tired after reaching the front stretch. PORTER'S DREAM had a rough trip after the start.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; allowances. The Glenwood. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:35½. Off at 3:39. Winner, Mrs. W. Bosley, Jr.'s br. f. (4), by Purchase—Mayanel. Trained by E. Young. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:39, 1:45 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHASE ME, $9.40, $3.60, $2.80; WHITE CLOVER II, $4.00, $3.00; DON PEDRO, $4.20.

CHASE ME, strongly restrained for the first six furlongs, moved to the leaders with a rush, secured racing room on the inside at the stretch turn and finished with speed in reserve. WHITE CLOVER II, rated close to DARK HOPE, raced the latter mile to defeat, but was held perfectly safe by the winner. DON PEDRO came gamely when put to a drive. FLAGSTONE was unable to threaten the leaders at any stage. DARK HOPE flattened out when forced to a drive. RAPSCALLION ran off six furlongs before the start. He was pulled up during the running when becoming distressed.

Group in Virginia Calls Wage Parley

Agreement to Be Sought on Public Works Pay.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 23 (AP).—A public works wage conference of persons representing all interested agencies was called today by the State advisory board to be held here near the end of the week.

Uncertainty of labor costs was said to have been the cause of some cities and towns not applying for Federal loans, while the start has been delayed on projects in other cases where loans have been made, and some projects have been withdrawn.

The State planning board joined the advisory board in calling the meeting with the hope of obtaining cooperation between interested parties so that a definite wage scale may be worked out and public works projects may get under way with all possible speed.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE IMPROVED BY TWO-STORY BRICK DWELLING KNOWN AS 711 THIRD STREET N.W.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded in Liber No. 6618, folio 431, et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustee will sell at public auction, in front of the premises, on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-FIFTH DAY OF OCTOBER, A. D. 1933, AT TWO-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being lot numbered sixty-one (61) in Joseph Carmody's subdivision of lots in square 771, as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 22, at folio 9.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at six per centum per annum, payable semiannually, from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustee reserves the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., and the right to reject any and all bids

Clews.

The criminals in books, the murderers and crooks, all keep it in their mind to leave some clew behind; it seems to be their aim to play an honest game and give the cops a show to trail and lay them low. And so, as pregnant hints, they leave their fingerprints, a button on the floor, a hairpin by the door, a collar button falls between the papered walls, a phoney beard is lost, to prove at last a frost. Then comes the famous sleuth, the searcher after truth, the Sherlock stern and wise, the man with gimlet eyes. He sees the scattered clews, the prints of hands and shoes, the cuff-links made of brass, the busted pane of glass, and says: "Oh, Watson, dear, the evidence is here; the sinners have no chance; I spot them at a glance; you see that fiber there? It is a single hair; there's just one crook in town whose whiskers are so brown, so tell the cops to pinch Augustus Beeswax Lynch." And so the sleuths in books round up the wicked crooks and send them off to see the jail or gallowstree. But crooks who live and move along life's sordid groove don't scatter clews around where they are promptly found. They study all the time how best to pull a crime and leave no sort of clew for peelers to pursue. It seems a beastly shame that they don't play the game like the criminals and crooks who figure in the books.

25 Per Cent Of D. C. Homes Need Repairs

Renovizing Urged Here to Boost Building Campaign.

This is the sixth of a series on the revival of home construction, with particular reference to Washington.

By Arthur Heaton, General Chairman of the Washington Renovize Committee.

The repair of millions of homes occupied by owners who have no intention of buying new houses will afford the home construction industry a considerable volume of work that would otherwise be lost.

There are three main aspects to renovizing

1. The appearance of the house;

2. Modernization—improving the comfort and convenience of the home.

3. Upkeep—the careful checking up on the deterioration of a home so that repairs made will be an economy for the future.

Washington like all cities has a renovizing field. I have estimated that 25 per cent of the houses in the District could be improved at a small cost. Of the city's houses built more than 20 years ago 90 per cent, at a conservative estimate, were constructed without the services of a competent architect.

Modernization Needed.

Since that date I would say that 50 per cent of the houses built have been designed without satisfactory architectural supervision. The Nation has grown increasingly conscious of the importance of home design.

Modernization of homes is a large field. The remodeling of kitchens with respect to sinks, drain boards and cabinets, the insulation of walls, modern heating, plumbing and electric equipment, new floors or the resurfacing of old, new or rebuilt porches are among the improvements which could be made to advantage in many of the city's homes.

The upkeep of a home is often a neglected item in the family budget. More attention is desirable, for it pays to check up on the deterioration of a home every three or four years and repair it. Keeping a roof properly painted increases its durability with great saving in reroofing. Since houses have to be repainted it is often a saving to have the job done before an extra charge for scraping off the old paint becomes necessary.

Adds to Salability.

Renovizing of homes adds to the salability of the property and the security of mortgages on it. In this city it helps the Federal program of making Washington the most beautiful residential center in the world. At present it can be accomplished at costs lower than those prevailing for many years.

The social and economic consequences of renovizing have been stated by Dr. Frank Parker, director of the Philadelphia Renovize Campaign:

"The economic appeal to the home owner to a program to renovize his home is so direct that it at least requires an extended explanation. For five years at least home owners throughout the United States, imbued with a false sense of economy and harassed by the bugaboo of a balanced family budget, have deferred making expenditures on their homes necessary to keep them in decent repair, and as a consequence, millions of homes have fallen into a state of shameful dilapidation and obsolescence. Hence a receptive audience awaits the renovize idea. As long as the home owner has the purchasing power or can raise it, a forceful presentation of the facts showing unequivocally that a dollar spent today for repairs and modernization of the home will do the work of two 1929 dollars, reaches immediately his acquisitive instincts."

Money Is Available.

Concerning the practical profit accruing to home owners from renovization Dr. Parker also said:

"One of the largest Philadelphia trust companies made a careful study covering the last six months of 1932 of the financial returns from individual homes owned or managed by it. An analysis of the figures unmistakably revealed the fact that the income derived from properties which had been renovized was from 7 to 10 per cent higher per annum than those which had not."

The owner of business property is in search of ways to retain his tenants and often he must meet the competition of newer, more attractive buildings. His way out is to renovize. To make his a good investment, in other words, a customer-bringing design.

The District of Columbia Banker's Association indorsed the renovize campaign and has formulated a scheme for loans. Their plans and any other information as to financial arrangements may be obtained at any of the Washington banks. Loans for this purpose can be obtained up to $500.

The renovize idea must be fully presented to the public through campaigns conducted by civic organizations.

Results Suprise.

The Washington Board of Trade and other civic organizations have endeavored to make the home owner renovize conscious in the last few months. We think we have helped a great deal, considering the many circumstances which have arisen since we formulated the campaign, such as the bank holiday and other distrubing trends in business.

One of the means by which we have carried the appeal to the people was a renovize exposition to acquaint those interested with the building appliances and equipment available.

We have a renovized shanty on a United States park at Fourteenth and Pennsylvania avenue, which is intended to show how an old building can be improved. This little house has been visited by nearly 30,000 people, all interested, particularly in the fact that such results could be obtained from the shell of a house which was bought from the United States Government for $1.

It was not the best subject for that purpose because anyone who might have a house to renovize would certainly have more than four walls and a roof. Nevertheless, it shows what can be done with buildings in a dilapidated condition.

I am advised that up to June 1 of this year the various renovation campaigns throughout the United States have secured pledges for work totaling $106,000,000. This substantial assistance to the construction industry should be a real help to the recovery program.

Littlepage Lists Chamber's Aid In Trade Gains

Basis Laid for Lasting Business Growth, He Says in Report.

Definite progress has been made toward laying a new basis for more lasting business growth in Washington as the result of activities by the Washington Chamber of Commerce and in cooperation with other civic agencies during the year, Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the chamber, declared last night in his annual report over station WMAL.

"Realizing that the days of easy profits are a thing of the past, the Chamber of Commerce has directed its efforts to getting better results through more efficient use of our present business structure," he declared.

He cited among the chamber's accomplishments during the year: legislation resulting in the street railway merger; inclusion of Washington in Federal emergency relief appropriations; leadership in the local NRA campaign, and the final hearing before the Public Works Administration on a loan for the proposed Chesapeake Beach Ferry.

Mr. Littlepage will be the guest of honor of directors of the chamber at 12:30 a. m. today at the Willard. He will address the entire membership of the chamber at its annual meeting, to be dedicated to the NRA, at the Mayflower tomorrow night.

Nuisance?

D. C. Officials Will Study Skating Problem.

Skating, one of Washington's favorite evening sports, is to be discussed by the District Commissioners at their board meeting this morning to determine how to abate the nuisance, of any.

Complaints from residents of several neighborhoods prompted police to ask advice on the law and the policy of the Commissioners. Corporation Counsel William W. Bride ruled that skating in roadways and thoroughfares is prohibited by law, but skating on sidewalks is legal Roping off streets in various sections to provide safe skating places has been suggested. The plan will be studied by the Commissioners.

Grant Directs Federal Unit In Chest Drive

President Calls on Heads of All Departments to Cooperate.

Acting on request of President Roosevelt, honorary president of the Community Chest of Washington, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, for eight years director of U. S. Buildings and Grounds in Washington and now attending the Army War College, has accepted the chairmanship of the Governmental Unit for the Community Chest campaign to be held November 20-29 inclusive. This was announced yesterday by Frank J. Hogan, campaign chairman.

Coincident with the announcement that Col Grant would head the Governmental Unit and that Maj. Gen. George S. Simonds, commandant of the Army War College, had granted him the necessary leave, it was stated that President Roosevelt had sent from the White House a letter to the heads of all Government departments, bespeaking their hearty cooperation on behalf of Col Grant.

President Roosevelt pointed out that, as good citizens and residents of this community, those on the Government pay rolls naturally will desire to contribute their share to the relief of their less fortunate neighbors. He explains the department heads already know how important he considers the maintenance of relief work by privately contributed funds and that he need not, therefore, emphasize his special interest in the success of the Community Chest

The President says he has approved organization of a governmental unit as in the past for the collection of pledges and donations from Government employes and urges cooperation of each department head with the unit and the selection of a chairman to organize and supervise the work in each department.

New Transient Bureau Corps Of 8 Approved

Office, Starting Nov. 1, to Care for Wanderers Stranded Here.

Organization of the new Transient Relief Bureau was approved by the District Commissioners yesterday with the appointment of a personnel of eight.

Miss Adelaide C. Barker was named assistant supervisor of the bureau, which is headed by Arthur Rosichan. Miss Barker has been secretary of the application bureau of the Community Chest. That organization loaned her indefinitely to the Transient Relief Bureau.

The Transient Bureau will be a unit of the District Public Welfare organization, although it will operate with Federal funds. It is expected to begin functioning by November 1 and will handle all cases of transients applying for relief in the District.

It will be a part of a Nation-wide network of similar agencies designed to stop the wandering thousands of indigent transients through the country. It is etsimated 250 of the transients flow into Washington each day and seek aid from public or other organized charities.

An allotment of $60,000 has been asked from the Federal relief fund. This will be used to defray expenses of the bureau itself and provide relief for needy strangers.

Lodging places are to be provided for those seeking aid until such time as investigations can be made and wanderers can be returned to their homes or otherwise provided for.

Those whose appointment was approved yesterday were, in addition to Miss Barker: Ruth Hudnut, Margaret Whitaker and Adrian Mayer, interviewers; Philip Akre and Mrs. Martin Taitel, case workers; Bernice Manwaring, stenographer, and Francis St. Austell, supervisor of employment.

Florida Governor Here For Public Works Talk

Accompanied by his cabinet, Gov. David Sholtz of Florida was in Washington yesterday for public works conferences with Administrator Ickes.

With the governor at the Ickes conference and also when he called on President Roosevelt at the White House were Attorney General Cary Landis, Comptroller J. M. Lee, Tresurer W. V. Knott, Public Works Board Chairman C. B. Treadway, P. G. Buckner, W. H. Burwell, Engineer Ernest Cotton and former Gov. Cary Hardee.

Cincinnati Home Loan Bank Pays U.S. $95,830

An early return on the Government's investment in the Home Loan Bank system was made yestreday when President Roosevelt was handed a check for $95,830 from the Cincinnati Home Loan Bank.

The check was the first dividend of the bank and was part of the $121,700 dividend paid by the 12 regional banks, representing a 2 per cent return on the Government's subscription.

Tydings Makes Request; Anacostia River Curb Planned.

Destructive floods caused by overflow from the eastern branch of the Anacostia River will be curbed if the public works administration approves a request for funds made yesterday by Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland.

Upon the urgent representations of citizens of Hyattsville, Bladensburg, Riverdale, Edmonston, East Hyattsville, North Brentwood and Colmar Manor, Senator Tydings forwarded the request for public works funds to the Maryland advisory public works committee.

Judge Alfred Bailey, chairman of the Bladensburg flood control committee, who enlisted the support of Senator Tydings for the project, said that floods in recent years had caused much damage to these towns. The loss of at least one life also has been recorded.

Judge Bailey said dredging of the river from Hyattsville to the District of Columbia line would provide a remedy. A meeting of the flood control committee is scheduled at the Bladensburg fire station at 8 o'clock tonight.

German Settlement Anniversary Marked

More than 400 persons attended a meeting at the Hamilton Hotel last night, arranged by the Concord Club and affiliated German associations, in commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the first immigration of Germans to the United States, which resulted in the settlement of Germantown, Pa.

William Rodenberg, former Representative from Illinois, told of the role Germans played in American history. Dr. Friedrich Schoneman, University of Berlin, told of events leading up to Germany becoming a united nation. Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador, spoke informally on recent German events.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

The Hand in Classical Art.

It has been said that few artists paint the human hand satisfactorily to themselves, the subjects of the portraits, the critics, the general public, or the anatomists. However, they seem to be improving and there is hope that the shortcoming may be mastered. Portraits painted within the last 100 years are far better than those of 400 years ago, so far as depicting the hand goes.

In a Century of Progress collection in the Art Institute of Chicago the pictures painted 500 years ago had hands that, in the main, were caricatures. The fingers were exceedingly long, without the proper shape, and all out of proportion. Many of the artists appear to have had a stock hand in shape, size, and position, and this apparently was attached to the figure merely to fill in a certain section of the canvas. In some of the paintings the fingernails are very peculiar in length and breadth.

There is no evidence of disease of either the hands or the nails shown in these pictures. The peculiarities are partly the result of poor drawings. Doubtless the artist was thinking particularly of the scene, the story, or the facial expression, and regarded the hands as of no importance. They are partly the result of the choice of models.

The great bulk of the people of these countries in that day had to do hard manual labor and their hands must have shown it. Doubtless the ordinary hand had short, broad, stubby, and often crooked fingers and the joints were enlarged. Long, tapering fingers are evidence that the owner does not do manual labor. They often mean that he is of a family whose members have led lives of physical ease for a few generations. The subjects chosen for the painting and the models selected by the artists are unquestionably in part responsible for the slender hands portrayed.

Modern artists are much more given to painting the proletariat. They are or were realists. The people they painted often had gnarled and twisted hands. The bones of the fingers were enlarged. Particularly were the fingerjoints made up of knobbed and enlarged heads of bones. In some of the modern portraits it can be surmised that the gnarling of the fingers is the result of arthritis and not the product of manual labor.

Some of these finger deformities are due to gouty tophi placed near the joints. Most of them are the result of the mild deforming arthritis that is prevalent in the fingers and hands of old ladies. One portrait of an elderly, well-fed matron, probably a woman of position whose family had risen in the world since her youth, shows arthritis of this type rather than the hand deformities which result from hard labor. The deformity consists principally of enlargement of the heads of the bones of her fingers, causing the region to be large and knobby.

Gaining Height.

Mrs. J. O. writes: Is it possible for a boy of 20 to increase his height by being stretched?

Reply.

No further increase in height can be expected after 17 years of age. Height can be increased a little by standing straight. There is nothing to stretching, of itself. It may lead to training in standing straight. This is under the influence of the will to a certain extent. On the other hand, slouching and slumping lessens height. Those who gain height by standing straight may hold the gain for years if they are thoroughly trained and determined. But sooner or later slouching wins the battle.

Court Rules Lowly Ham Bone Is Deadly Weapon.

The lowly ham bone attained distinction in District Supreme Court yesterday when a jury decided that he who wields one is guilty of wielding a deadly weapon.

It came about this way: Dewey Scott and James Quarles, both colored, were engaged in an argument when James picked up a derelict bone and smote Dewey on the head with it.

Scott went to Casualty Hospital with a fractured skull and a broken collar bone, and yesterday, after he told his story in court, a jury decided that hereafter the ham bone would have to take its place in legal jurisprudence as "a deadly weapon."

Assistant United States Attorney James Kirkland recommended that Quarles be remanded to jail to await sentence.

U. S. Is Urged To Buy Milk For Children

Rep. Crosby Asks Million Quarts Daily to Feed Charity Charges.

Crosby's telegram, directed to Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, pointed out that 2,000,000 school children are now cared for by Community Chests and other relief agencies.

"Bankrupt producers should be benefited by this to the extent of $8,400,000," he said. "The allocation would be a comparatively small sum and should be paid through county agents of the Department of Agriculture."

The distribution, he suggests, should be handled by Community Chests and other relief agencies.

Hearings of the Senate Milk Investigating Committee are not expected to be resumed until the middle of next week. Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the committee, was engaged yesterday in a study of data involved in the purchases of subsidiaries by the National Dairy Products Corporation.

Speaker Rainey has assured Representative Crosby of his "sympathy and aid" in his proposal to have a one-price plan for milk producers throughout the country, eliminating the basic-surplus price schedule.

Maj. Brown Begins Second Year in Job

Police Head Inspecting All Police Stations.

Stating that he "didn't feel a bit different," Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday began the first day of his second year as police chief by personally making the annual inspection in 4 of the city's 11 police precinct stations.

With Maj. Brown during the inspection of the Third and Second precincts was Thomas Littlepage, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who expressed keen interest in the day's activities, the police chief said.

Inspection of the 11 stations will require three days. Equipment, clothing, buildings and everything connected with the department comes under the close scrutiny of police officials and the District Commissioners, it was reminded.

U. S. Decrees More Beauty On Roadsides

Public Works Board Indicates Curb on Sign Boards.

The Public Works Administration yesterday announced the launching of a Nation-wide movement designed to improve roadsides. The program is expected to eliminate, or at least restrict, the use of signboards which have done much to spoil the natural beauty of rights-of-way, officials indicated.

Provisions designed to protect the natural landscape and the eventual screening of highways with trees and shrubs are included in a resolution adopted by the special board for public works. Foliage of the trees and shrubs would effectively screen billboards from the sight of motorists.

The resolution provides also that so far as feasible the rights-of-way for highway built with loans or grants from public works funds shall be at least 150 feet wide and that footpaths parallel such roads. This last provision, it was pointed out, makes for the safety of pedestrians who now are endangered by automobiles.

No interference with highways now under construction with P. W. A. funds will be caused by the new resolution, officials said.

Aside from the beautification of highways, the Public Works Administration, through its new highway program, will promote tree planting and prevent to some extent soil erosion along roadsides. It was estimated that an extra 20 feet of right of way along all Federal highways would result in 5 acres of reforestation for every mile planted.

The resolution calls upon the chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, Thomas H. MacDonald, to determine the scope and devise the means of carrying out the improvements.

The resolution follows:

"Resolved that all loans or grants made after January 1, 1934, to finance projects for the construction, repair or improvement of public highways shall contain such provisions as are necessary to insure that:

"1. Such trees and shrubs be planted along the borders of the highway and maintained as will in the course of time bring about screening of the highway to the extent planting and screening are feasible. The chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture, shall determine the scope and apply the means of effectuating this provision.

"2. So far as practicable and feasible, as determined by said chief, width of such highways shall not be less than 150 feet and foot paths to be provided for."
